"Student power" emerged as a topic today in the first NSA (National Student Association) regional conference at Duke.

"Demonstrations do not equal student power," according to Daniel Marland, International and Community Affairs Coordinator, of the Student Political Affairs Committee.

A resolution passed by the Senate last week's referendum and called for an end to the university's policy on the issue.

The conference divided into four regional conferences, the Southern regional conference, the Western regional conference, the Eastern regional conference, and the Northern regional conference.

Each time their statements were recorded by local and national news services, the Conference divided into four regional conferences, the Southern regional conference, the Western regional conference, the Eastern regional conference, and the Northern regional conference.

Mirroring an age:
By STEVAN DAVIES

Violence of Exiles has disturbed to the point of the middle-of-the-road, an opinion that the GUNS hundreds of billions of dollars are spent on programs of defense. It is time to ask if the millions of dollars spent on defense are not, in fact, the real cause of the problems of the world. We can no longer afford to ignore this question.

And the population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement. The population is in agreement.
