Duke, UNC Battle Tomorrow

Kick-Off Banquet

Campus Chest Starts Drive Next Monday

"Give to the Campus Chest" becomes the watch word this coming week as the West Campus Chest, under the direction of Dave Schimmel, starts its annual drive.

On Monday, at 5:15 p.m. in the graduate center dining room, a kick-off banquet, featuring Dr. Waldo Beach, will begin the drive extending until the following Monday.

One of the seven organizations benefiting from the drive is a campus scholarship newly set up this year. The purpose of this scholarship is to help some student who, without financial help, might not be able to come back to Duke the following year, according to Schimmel.

ELIGIBLE STUDENTS
The awarding of the scholarship will be done by a student committee who will choose a faculty advisor. Students who consider themselves eligible and have approximately a 2.0 average may, at some time in the spring, apply for the scholarship.

This type of scholarship is badly needed and sadly lacking on campus this year, according to John Dozier, assistant secretary of the University.

The scholarship will be worth $300. The rest of the scholarship money collected this year will be used to set up a principal so that the scholarship might be self-perpetuating.

Other charities in the drive are: Edgemont Community Center, 25%; John Avery's Boy's Club, 25%; Heart Fund 10%; Cancer Fund, 10%; United Fund, 10%; and World University Service, 10%.

Rachel Cozart Chosen Chanticleer Queen; Conover Selects Court of Eight Attendants

Amid the gaiety and splendor characterizing the annual Coed Ball held last Wednesday night in the old gymnasium on West Campus, Fred Shaffer, crowned Rachel Cozart the 1954 Chanticleer Beauty Queen.

Prior to the coronation, while the Duke Ambassadors played "Artistry in Rhythm", the court appeared and formed a circle in the center of the dance floor. Serving as maids of honor were Claire Marcom and Lenore Green. Completing the list of beauties selected to compliment the Queen were Carrel Power, Doris Ann Linberger, Shirley Held, Mary Bryson, Peggy Paul, Helen Stokes, Meb Benton and Nan Tatum.

Completing the theme of "Artistry in Rhythm" were oil portraits of the 20 finalists. These 11 x 14 portraits were displayed on easels around the dance floor.

The Queen and her court were chosen from a group of 20 finalists by Harry Conover, head of Conover Modeling Agency.

Bonfire To Set Spirit For Carolina Contest

Beginning the weekend's festivities with a blaze, the annual bonfire burning will light up a Pep Rally at Coomb's Field, 7 p.m. Friday. Coach Bill Murray and Captain Howard Pitt will be present with cheerleaders, band, and Blue Devils.

In tomorrow's final contest of the season will be a pre-game performance by the Duke Marching Band, and half-time demonstrations by the Duke ROTC Drill Team and the UNC Band.

Before the kickoff, spectators on the home side will participate in welcome cheers, which will be echoed by the Carolina students.

Card trick chairman Rube Scharges announced that ten card tricks will be used. Besides a spectacular array of novelty numbers, there are tricks to support the Campus Chest drive and the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale.

Scharges pointed out that Carolina card tricks will be shown at the same time and urges the cooperation of all Duke students in "putting on a good show."

After their escapades with the Duke statue on West, (which left him with a speckled coat of blue paint), they proceeded to drive around the quadrangle in front of the Chapel until they were routed by a group of men who according to some sources bombarded the UNC cars with bricks.

The undaunted Carolina students then reportedly turned toward the old gymnasium, forcibly entered, cut the chain that supported the Victory Bell, and escaped with the bell. The president of the Men's Student Government at Carolina had the bell returned Wednesday morning and returned peace to the besieged Duke campus.

The Pep Board was informed by Durham's chief of police that Friday night the annual Christmas parade would be held in Durham and would still be going on when Duke's bonfire-pep rally ends.

He requested that the Duke would not let their game enthusiasm carry into town, and he informed the Pep Board that the police force would be doubled.

Fred Biehl, chairman of the Pep Board, asks that the Duke students "show their spirit" for the coming game in the right direction.

In this year's renewal of the ancient rivalry, the Blue Devils are favored by two touchdowns.

Carolina Painters Redecorate Statues, Remove Victory Bell

By DICK OTTER
CHRONICLE Staff Reporter

Preluding tomorrow's game with Carolina, several unidentified students, rumored to be from UNC, invaded the Duke campus Tuesday night, paint brushes in hand, to redecorate the statue of Washington Duke on East Campus and James B. Duke on West.

After their escapades with the Duke statue on West, (which left him with a speckled coat of blue paint), they proceeded to drive around the quadrangle in front of the Chapel until they were routed by a group of men who according to some sources bombarded the UNC cars with bricks.

The undaunted Carolina students then reportedly turned toward the old gymnasium, forcibly entered, cut the chain that supported the Victory Bell, and escaped with the bell. The president of the Men's Student Government at Carolina had the bell returned Wednesday morning and returned peace to the besieged Duke campus.

The Pep Board was informed by Durham's chief of police that Friday night the annual Christmas parade would be held in Durham and would still be going on when Duke's bonfire-pep rally ends.

He requested that the Duke would not let their game enthusiasm carry into town, and he informed the Pep Board that the police force would be doubled.

Fred Biehl, chairman of the Pep Board, asks that the Duke students "show their spirit" for the coming game in the right direction.

East Casts Votes; Monsters Receive Award at Half-Time

Votes from 612 East Campus coeds disclose that the campus monster resides among the ranks of the brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Zeta Beta Tau received 20 entries from fraternities and freshman houses in their original Monster Rally. Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, to whom a cup will be presented during the half-time of the Carolina game tomorrow, was followed by Kappa Alpha in the competition for the ugliest man.

According to Al Max, president of Zeta Beta Tau, "the fraternity was pleased with the interest shown by the fraternities as well as by freshman houses. We hope that the contest will become a part of the Duke tradition."

Deciding votes in the contest were cast by coeds in the dining halls of Southgate and the East Campus Union Monday night through Tuesday.

Duke Favored By Two Tallies Over Old Foe

By CHARLES WRAY
CHRONICLE Sports Editor

Duke's luckless, twice-beaten Blue Devils entertain Coach George Barclay and his much-improved University of North Carolina Tarheels tomorrow afternoon in Duke Stadium at 2 p.m. in the season's finale for both teams. A near capacity crowd of 40,000 is expected to witness the Atlantic Coast Conference headliner.

The Dukes have a chance to clinch the unofficial ACC title tomorrow against the Tarheels, and Carolina will be trying for its first victory in four years in the ancient rivalry.

Duke is currently tied with the Orange Bowl bound Maryland Terrapins for the top spot, both with identical 3-0 records. The undefeated Terps did not schedule the Dukes this season, therefore the newly-formed conference could not crown an official champion.

ANCIENT RENEWAL

Tomorrow's game marks the thirty-ninth renewal of the ancient rivalry, dating back to 1888. Duke has won 19 times, Carolina has won 17, and three have ended in ties. The Tarheels won four straight during the Justice era, but since then the Dukes have dominated the rivalry with three straight victories.

In 1952 Duke won 34-0, which was the worst defeat handed a UNC team in the history of the rivalry.

THREE STRAIGHT

Carolina started the season by rolling to three straight victories, two of them against ACC members, Wake Forest and State. Then the Tarheels reverted to the form that had been predicted for them in the pre-season ratings. They lost five straight games, but two of those defeats were dealt them by the number one and two teams in the Associated Press poll, Maryland and Notre Dame.

Last week, the Tarheels chalked up their fourth triumph against the University of Virginia, 35-7, and had four more touchdowns called back by penalties.

TOMORROW'S TEST

Both teams will enter tomorrow's test in near top physical shape. Tarheel tackle Thad Eure, who twisted his knee in the South Carolina game, had been counted out for the season, but the injury has responded well to treatment and there is a chance that he will be available for limited duty.

Dick Lackey bruised an ankle in the Virginia game, but he has (Continued on Page Three)

Black Friday

Friday after Thanksgiving is the cruellest day in all the year . . . breeding dead classes out of the holiday atmosphere. (with apologies to T. S. Eliot.)

If ever there was a day of lame-duck class sessions, it is today, the jinx of the school year calendar. And what else could a day of classes be, psychologically ill-placed between a holiday and a big football weekend?

A tradition, maybe. Or the complaint against it is. But the classic answer, that-the-calendar-of-events-has-been-made-up-for-the-next-two-years-and-cannot-possibly-be-changed, does not improve with age. It is untrue.

The cold fact is that, as many committees as students have appointed to look-into-the-matter, not one has brought the request before the body that controls Duke's holiday schedule—the Board of Trustees.

The real obstacle to such a holiday lies in article six of the By-laws of the Duke University Constitution entitled, "The Academic Year." A sentence in this clause states simply: "Thanksgiving is a holiday."

The way to enlarge such a clause is stated clearly a few paragraphs further on: "The by-laws may be amended at any regular meeting of the University Trustees by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the then membership of the board, providing that the proposed amendment is submitted through the Secretary of the Board to the Members at least twenty days before the meeting." Note: twenty days, not two years.

Why investigating committees have not gone to the Board of Trustees or to the President of the University with their request is unknown. If the students really want action, this is the course to follow.

Tiresome Spirit

Editor, the CHRONICLE:

Mr. Bradshaws called certainly is traditional one, and also a rather tiresome one. The editors expressed the hope, optimistically they say, that excess energy will be invested in more appropriate pursuits than the Duke-Carolina rivalry. I quite agree that rivalry is wholesome, but so is a good meal. I find neither at Duke.

That is, where can one find any rivalry against our neighbor to the southwest? . . .

It is a pity that my spirit at Duke concerning this game has to be submerged, even drowned in a sea of "courteous conduct for which Duke has always been noted." How about going over to Chapel Hill and painting the town blue?

"No," our president says, "let no act of vandalism . . . mar the fine spirit which typifies this rivalry."

That's right, let them come over here and paint the statues blue (if they can tear off the covering) while we indulge in "more appropriate pursuits." DAVID BRAUN had protested that first clipping infraction which was actually against Tennessee, but which cost Duke fifteen yards, the subsequent decisions of the referees in the Army, Navy, and Tech games would have been more carefully considered.

At least one of four referees should be able to recognize one out of two clipping penalties, especially when they come in the same play at such a crucial moment, and it should be mandatory that all referees be able to count to four.

The team has had a good season which, with a few breaks at the right time, could have been as good as any in the history of Duke football. They deserve a vote of confidence, and may we hope that in the future they will get the breaks necessary to defeat both their opponents and the ever present four man team in striped suits.

Defense of Traditions

Editor, the CHRONICLE:

Prompted by your editorials concerning freshman traditions, ("Yellow Dinks," Nov. 13) I am writing this letter so that the present concept of traditions and the present method of enforcing them here will receive the written support of at least one person.

I am not attempting to defend in particular this year's Traditions Board, for I believe that the selection of only sophomores to the Board which can not be attributed to the members themselves, is a very poor idea since the members have only experienced traditions from one side—that of the freshman. . . .

As for the deprecation by the CHRONICLE of the choice of yellow for the color of the dink, I disagree. Although the color was probably not chosen because of its association with cowardice, I feel that this is not an entirely invalid association.

How can a person who has just arrived here be expected to have enough school spirit, which the editorial implies is acquired, to learn the cheers on his own?

Moreover, how many freshmen would bother to buy dinks? Or would it be even a question of bothering since a large number of the freshmen probably would not even be aware of the tradition, not being required to know anything about traditions?

Reese Praises 'Il Trovatore' Performance

By SARAH REESE

The Charles L. Wagner Company presented one of its best performances at Duke University in Il Trovatore. As a whole the presentation was excellent.

Mr. Armando Aliberti, the conductor for the performance, deserves congratulations for his efforts to keep the opera moving moderately fast.

The individual performances showed a general understanding of the roles. Miss Elinor Warren gave the most consistently excellent performance of the entire cast. Miss Warren excelled drama-wise and voice-wise.

Arthur Budney revealed understanding of his role as the Count, a convincing portrayal. The interpretation of the role of Manrico done by Mr. Lo Monaco was done acceptably well. His introductory aria was his best.

Miss Militza Kosanich's performance was the least enchanting of the entire cast.

Smith Returns To Duke Drills; Spirit Is High

worked out with the team since Tuesday and should be in top form tomorrow. Left halfback Larry Parker is on the injured list.

In the Duke camp, the big news is the return to heavy drills of hard-driving halfback Red Smith. Smith, the second leading scorer in the ACC, has a lofty 5.7 yards per carry, which leads the regulars in this department. There were no major injuries in the Tech game, and for the first time this year the Dukes should be at full strength.

VETERAN TEAM

Carolina has a veteran team of thirty-three lettermen bolstered by some promising sophomores, but they have been handicapped by the lack of an experienced split-T quarterback. Sophomore Leonard Bullock is expected to draw the starting nod from Coach Barclay after his outstanding performance in the Virginia game, but once Bullock leaves the game the Tarheels lose their main aerial threat. Bullock has completed 19 of 38 passes this year.

LACKEY STARTS

Lackey will draw the starting nod at fullback with Nick Marcopolous due for considerable action. Lackey and fullback-halfback Billy Williams have handled the punting for the Tarheels this season, and as a result the team ranks first in the nation in that vital department.

The Carolina line is led by stocky guard Ed Patterson, a second team All-ACC selection and Captain Ken Yarbrough.

FORWARD WALL

The Dukes will count with what is perhaps its best forward wall since the war. All-American tackle Ed Meadows, Bobby Burrows, Howard Pitt, and Johnny Palmer lead this group with Ralph Torrance, who played the best game of his career against Georgia Tech, Jesse Birchfield, and Sonny Sorrell the other starters.

Jerry Barger, the daring field general, is slated for the opening nod to guide Duke's split-T attack. Worth Lutz will be available for relief duty. Smith will pair with Lloyd Caudle at the halfback slots, and Byrd Looper and Jack Kistler, both seniors, will divide time at fullback.

The line-up:

Duke	Pos.	UNC
Sorrell	LE	Korcornik
Meadows	LT	McCreedy
Burrows	LG	Neville
Palmer	C	Koman
Torrance	RG	Patterson
Birchfield	RT	Yarbrough
Pitt	RE	Lane
Barger	QB	Bullock
Caudle	LH	Keller
Smith	RB	Gravitt
Kistler	FB	Lackey

UNC vs. Carolina

Come On Duke Tarheels!

By DAN LEHMAN

CHRONICLE Sports Reporter

Don't be surprised if you happen to attend a Duke football game this year, and hear the Blue Devil followers yelling, "Come on Tarheels." This sounds crazy, but the fact remains that Duke Coach Bill Murray could field a starting eleven composed entirely of North Carolina boys.

This eleven would be a hard one to beat with Ed Meadows, Howard Pitt, and Bobby Burrows present in the line, and backs Red Smith, Worth Lutz, Jerry Barger, Lloyd Caudle, and Byrd Looper all calling the Tarheel state home.

Along the forward wall Murray's All-North Carolina team would read like this: Pitt of Hertford, and Sonny Sorrell of High Point at the ends; Meadows and W. D. Pespeman of Winston-Salem at the tackles; Burrows of Asheville, and either

Jim Logan of Asheville or Elbert Whitley of Albemarle, guards; and either Ronnie Falls of High Point or Albemarle's Doug Knotts to choose from for the center position.

The Tarheel backfield would consist of either Lutz, a hometown boy from Durham, or Barger from Salisbury at quarterback; at the halfback posts would be Smith from Winston-Salem and Caudle of Lewisville with Byrd Looper of Gastonia holding down the fullback slot.

All told, out of a squad of 52, 30 Blue Devils call North Carolina their home state. Of the remaining, not one is from west of the Mississippi. This roster includes six Pennsylvanians, four Virginians, two from Illinois, Tennessee, and New York, and one from each of the following: Indiana, New Jersey, West Virginia, Alabama, Georgia, and Maryland.

Carolina watch out, here come the Tarheels!

Blue Imps Display Effective Offense; Bass Scores Three

A powerful and hustling Duke freshman football team swamped the Carolina Tar Babies in Kenan Stadium yesterday afternoon, drowning the light Blue and White under a deluge of touchdowns, 47-26, before approximately 15,000 fans.

Intramurals

By DAN LEHMAN

Today marks the end of division play in intramural football for the year. The "big" game, SAE "A" versus Sigma Chi, was played today, with the winner becoming the favorite in the school playoffs.

SAE lost last week to the KA "A" team, 7-6, but was declared the winner when Kappa Alpha was found to have used ineligible players.

In other Division I games, the Phi Deltis whipped Lambda Chi, 13-0, and Beta and Lambda Chi forfeited to Kappa Sigma.

LEADER UPSET

Division II's top game found the KA "B" team upsetting the league leading Pi Kappa Phi team, 14-0. The Pi Kappas managed to hold their lead however, and will probably represent Division II in the playoffs. In the only other League II game Phi Kappa Sigma beat Delta Sigma Phi in a thriller, 2-0.

Divinity School trounced the KA "D" squad 13-0 in a Division III contest. Other scheduled games found the Kappa Sig "B" team forfeiting to KA "D", the Independents slipping by Sigma Nu, 7-0, and the Law School staying on top in the division standings by beating the Tau Eps, 15-0.

HOUSE N WINS

House N clinched the Division IV title by downing House J, 13-0. House N finished the season with six wins and one tie, just ahead of House K, which won their sixth in a row, after dropping its opener to House N, 14-6.

The Blue Imps trailed their arch rivals from Chapel Hill 14-13 at the end of the first quarter.

Then the Duke frosh pushed across three tallies in the second quarter to take the lead at halftime, 33-14. Both teams scored twice in the last half.

BASS STARS

Buddy Bass, ex-Durham High flash, edged Jan Jay for high-scoring honors for the Imps. Bass sprinted for three touchdowns while Jay scored two six-pointers and added five extra points.

Sonny Jurgensen and Harold McElaney contributed a touchdown apiece to the Duke cause.

Hustling Dan Cox, 217 pound co-captain, was a standout performer for the Dukemen on defense. Despite a few defensive lapses which shook Carolina backs loose for long gains, the Blue Imp line was strong down the middle.

Fayetteville High School's All-State griddier of last year, Leonard Black, turned in a brilliant job for the little Dukes at end. His circus grabs of Jurgensen's tosses were instrumental in Duke's second quarter surge.

Fred Beasley, 155 pound Duke speedster, brought the crowd to their feet several times with fancy end runs and punt returns.

KLOCHAK LEADS

Carolina's offensive thrusts were high-lighted by the running of Donald Klochak, a 218 athlete from Fairhope, Pa. Klochak's off-tackle slants set up both of the Tar Babies' second half touchdowns.

This was the last game of the season for both teams. Duke has been undefeated, winning from Wake Forest, N. C. State, VPI and Carolina.

Church Groups Appoint Heads For Religious Emphasis Week

Paul Upstead and Marian McSurely were appointed co-chairmen of Religious Emphasis Week by the Religious Staff following their meeting last Monday.

Religious Emphasis Week, an annual affair sponsored by the Duke students will be held Feb. 14-17.

World-famous religious leaders have been the principle speakers in the past, and this spring the committee will bring Dr. Ralph Sockman and Dr. Edwin E. Aubrey to the campus.

Dr. Sockman is rector of Christ Methodist Church in New York City and the author of several books, the most recent being How To Believe. Dr. Aubrey is a professor at the University of Pennsylvania.

WEEK'S PLANNING

The planning for the week, which has traditionally been executed by the students, is divided into six committees. The committee heads as chosen by Upstead and Miss McSurely are: publicity, Brad Craig and Nancy Ormand; personal counseling, Charlotte Bowers and Verne Caviness; arrangements, Shirley Arthur and Herb Loder.

Also appointed were: hospitality, Jenelle Smith and Bob Garner; book display, Banks Godfrey and Kitten Curry; forums and panels, Ken Orr and Trish Brown.

Judicial Board States Automobile Rules

As a result of two cases of freshmen operating cars, the Judicial Board on Tuesday, Nov. 17, set up a new ruling in relation to operation and possession of automobiles during the freshman year.

The new ruling is to the effect that operation of an automobile is liable to suspension rather than automatic suspension, and possession of a car means automatic suspension for the offender.

NO AUTOMOBILES

Paul Parker, chief justice of the board, commented, "Once again I would like to remind freshmen that they are not to drive or be in possession of an automobile. If in doubt about the regulation, see Dean Pratt."

This week three cases were brought before the board, the first being a charge of drunkenness on campus. The student was reprimanded and penalized with disciplinary probation and a letter home.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF

Tomorrow night after the game with Carolina, the YMCA will sponsor the annual Victory Ball in the East Campus Gymnasium from 9-12 p.m., announced president Ken Orr.

Jack Hail's Duke Ambassadors will furnish the music for the occasion and dress will be informal.

In the arena-style theatre of East Campus' Branson Hall Building, the Duke Players will present Elmer Rice's "The Adding Machine," Dec. 2-5.

Heading the cast of the three-act drama are William Neale, Sally Anne Macomber, Sally Morse, Charles Becker, Judith Le Fever, John W. Doeblir, and Alvin Fox.

Duke President Hollis Edens announced that Charles H. Livengood, professor of law at Duke, has been named University marshal.

In his new position, Prof. Livengood will carry out details of University occasions such as Commencement, Founders' Day, and duties that were previously handled by his predecessor Dr. W. Brewster Snow, who left Duke last Spring to join the faculty of Rutgers University.

Eta Kappa Nu, national honorary association for electrical engineers, has just elected five Duke seniors to membership, based on scholarship and leadership.

The five students, Norman Block, John Roberts, Leslie Chesson, Edgar Poe III, and William Yengst, will be initiated Monday night by the Beta Eta chapter at North Carolina State College.
