Duke Meets Terps In First-Place Fight

By HERB LODDER
Senior Sports Reporter

Tonight will be the big one for ACC basketball, as the Duke Blue Devils meet the Maryland Terrapins at College Park, Md. It will be a fast breaking high-scoring offense versus a possession minded, stellar defense; and the winner will undoubtedly become the top seeded team in the ACC Tournament in Raleigh on March 4-6.

The Terps increased their league-leading record to 7-1 last night in College Park when they topped the third-place Wake Forest Demon Deacons 74-53. The Maryland win left the Blue Devils in second place, one game back of the pace-setters, Duke boasts a 5-1 conference mark.

Maryland built its low-scoring offense around the sharp-shooting eye of Gene Shue, the Terps' nomination for All-American honors.

Maryland has never had an All-American basketball player, in fact, they have never come close to it. This year with Shue, they have. Undoubtedly, he is one of the greatest players in Southern basketball.

TWELVE RECORDS

The 6-2, 170-pound senior set 12 various records last year as he made his bid for national recognition. In 23 games he averaged 22.1 points per contest, and broke several scoring records at College Park. He was selected as the "Most Valuable Player" in the annual Southern Conference tournament in Raleigh last spring, and it was his 33 points that led the Terps to victory over Duke in that tournament.

With all the Duke players in good physical condition, it looks like Coach Bradley will start Rudy D'Emilio and Joe Belmont at guard, Bernie Janicki and Ron Mayer at forward, and either Marty Doherty or Junior Morgan in the center slot.

SATURDAY BREATHER

On Saturday Duke drew a breather against VPI and whipped the hapless Gobblers, 107-53. Maryland, on the other hand, barely eked out an overtime victory over Navy, 61-60. With only four seconds remaining, Shue dunked the winning bucket in the hotly-contested game played at Annapolis.

It is always dangerous to look at comparative scores, yet it should be remembered that Duke has already handcuffed Navy twice this season, each time with little difficulty. The Terps, as mentioned, were just able to edge the Middles.

The game will be carried by WDBS beginning at 8:15 p.m.

HARRELL

Mack Harrell To Sing In Page on Thursday As Series Concludes

Baritone Mack Harrell, of the Metropolitan, Chicago, and San Francisco opera companies, will appear in the last regular concert of the Duke All-Star Series for 1953-54, Thursday, Feb. 18 at 8:15 p.m., in Page Auditorium. Called "prince among vocal artists" by the New York Herald Tribune's Virgil Thomson, Harrell made his Metropolitan debut in 1940, after a successful Town Hall debut in New York City, a European tour, and appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Montreal Music Festival and at the White House.

Harrell, who is now on a coast-to-coast tour which will take him to 30 states, has had more engagements as a soloist with orchestras during recent seasons than any other singer on the American concert stage.

Violinist Jascha Heifetz will present an extra "off the series" program March 19. The concert by soprano Zinka Milanov, postponed because of illness, is now set for April 20, announced J. Foster Barnes, manager of the series.

Three Groups Plan Yearly Blood Drive; Set for March 22-24

This year's blood drive, to be held March 22-24, under the direction of the Marine Semper Fidelis Club, the Air Force Arnold Air Society, and the Naval ROTC unit, announced Hunter Hadley, chairman.

Dick Ware is heading the drive for the Air Society, Hunter Hadley for the Marine Club, and Dave Lerps for the Navy.

The present collegiate record is 1500 pints. Duke missed breaking this record last year by approximately 500 pints, receiving a total of 1008 pints.

Hadley stated, "Although the Korean war is over I hope we won't decrease our blood donations, because the demand now is as great as ever in the Veterans' Hospitals and in the fields of scientific research."

Each ROTC member who contributes blood will receive 10 merits, and a trophy will be awarded to the fraternity, independent, or freshman dormitory having the greatest percentage of donors.

Every donor under 21 must have a release signed by his or her parents. These releases will be distributed to all fraternities, independents, and armed service units, and may be obtained from Hunter Hadley.

As last year the blood donations will be taken with the assistance of Red Cross workers at the Indoor Stadium.

BAYAR

President of Turkey Will Visit University On Nation-Wide Tour

On the last phase of a nationwide tour which began Feb. 1, President Celal Bayar of Turkey and his party will visit Duke University and the Liggett and Myers tobacco manufacturing plant on Thursday afternoon.

Following a demonstration of cigarette manufacturing at the Liggett and Myers plant, the group will arrive here at 4 p.m. where university officials will greet them and conduct them on a tour of the campus.

In the evening President and Madame Bayar and their party, which includes high-ranking Turkish officials, American government representatives and newsmen, will be honored at a dinner to be held upstairs in the East Campus Union. Members of the state committee for the Turkish President's visit and Duke officials and faculty members will attend.

A group of graduate students who are interested in the near East will have an opportunity to meet the President in the Duke Library sometime during his visit.

During their two day visit of North Carolina the group will make their headquarters in Raleigh and will also include in their itinerary North Carolina State College, the University of North Carolina and the Shelton Looms in Rocky Mount.

Friday night the President and his party will depart from Raleigh for New York City, thus concluding their country-wide tour of major cities in the United States which, among others, included San Francisco and Chicago.

Orr Announces Date Of YMCA Elections

Election of a new president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the YMCA for next year has been set for Monday, March 8, according to president Ken Orr.

Any member of the YMCA is eligible to apply for the nominations, Orr stated. However, all applications must be turned in before the deadline of Friday, Feb. 26, in order for the applicant to secure an interview with the nominating committee. From these interviews, the committee will select two men to run for each of the offices.

Application blanks may be obtained in the YMCA office, or from Ken Orr, in J-501.

Dr. Sockman To Deliver Final Religious Week Talk

Third Period Classes Will Not Meet;

Chapel Service Begins At 10:30 A.M.

Concluding Religious Emphasis Week for 1954, Dr. Ralph W. Sockman will preach on "The Faith That Works" at a service of worship in the University Chapel tomorrow morning at 10:30 a.m.

To give students and faculty members an opportunity to hear this sermon, third period classes will be suspended.

Tonight's activities include a dinner for the Steering Committee in the West Campus Union (with Dr. Sockman and Dr. Edwin E. Aubrey, principal speakers for Religious Emphasis Week, as guests).

Following this dinner there will be a panel in the West Campus Union on "Faith and One's Vocation" at which Dr. Aubrey will act as leader, with Colonel J. P. McBryde representing the military; Dr. T. T. Jones, medicine; Dr. Frank Hanft, law; Dr. W. M. Fairbank, physics and Dr. F. T. deVyver, business.

Beginning the three-day program of religious thought and study with a sermon in Duke Chapel Sunday morning, Dr. Sockman stressed that faith is hope plus something expected, faith is sight plus something unseen, and faith is belief plus trust.

Following a dinner for the campus-wide Religious Emphasis Committee and an open house for the hospital staff and personnel in Hanes House in the afternoon, Dr. Aubrey addressed an interdenominational meeting Sunday night on the topic, "Faith Reasonable and Unreasonable," defining the meaning of faith and emphasizing past experience and possibility as important factors in the development of faith.

Preceding a panel on "Faith and Freedom," Dr. Aubrey talked on "Christian Faith and Academic Freedom" at a faculty-luncheon in the West Campus Union on Monday.

In the evening Dr. Aubrey discussed "Christian Faith and Modern Naturalism" at a dinner for graduate students.

CITY BOUND—Packing up for their trip to New York City to attend the Christian Citizenship Seminar are Judy Kaster and Miki Southern. Representing Duke University in the Chronicle, these delegates will bring back information of political and philosophical interest to the campus. The second half of the program will be held in Washington, D. C. where the delegates will study the federal government. In Washington, the representatives will have a chance to meet several key senators and congressmen.

Outside Interests

One thing that bothers us about this campus, especially the West part of it, is the lack of interest in problems and issues beyond the confines of Duke. Very few of us make a habit of thinking about and discussing with our fellow students the national and international problems of the day. How many Duke students really know or care about the Eisenhower farm program or whether the present U. S. policy toward Communist China is correct? Neither are many Duke students concerned with the philosophical yearnings and leanings of modern man. Rather you will find campus bull sessions dominated by the subjects of sports and sex.

If this University is ever to be the top-ranking institution it should be, its student body is going to have to break down the moss-covered walls that presently surround its mind and begin to adopt a more serious attitude to the outside world. Only in such a manner will young college graduates ever be able to leave here ready to take their place in the community.

A step in the right direction might be for the fraternities, independent organizations and East Campus dorms to supply their social rooms with some of the better current books and magazines. By building up small libraries these various groups would be doing a service to themselves and to those students that follow in at least providing students with the opportunity to read thought-provoking material. This, in turn, would help students to think more often beyond the "Tight Little Island" of campus affairs.

Good Material Leaves Patrons Well Satisfied

By LEE EDWARDS
Chronicle Associate Editor

If a concoction of high spirits, flamboyant leadership and a shrewd selection of material is mixed together, it is bound to please. The Duke Men's Glee Club and J. Foster "Bishop" Barnes displayed all three last Friday night and sent home some 1400 patrons happy and humming.

The program began slowly with the classical section of the concert, which was simple in score and presentation, except for Handel's "Let Their Celestial Concerts," which tested severely the club's ability.

Two soloists performed next, second tenor Bill Jennette, who sang quite nicely a simple ballad "There is a Layde" (although one could wish that he had chosen a number that utilized more properly his obvious talents) and pianist Donald L. Richardson whose selection of Chopin's "Polonaise" suffered from too many mistakes.

The next four numbers produced the best disciplined singing of the entire concert. It remained for Paul Conway to conduct the club in its best number, Richter's "The Creation," when utilization of eric lighting with well-paced singing captured the attention and admiration of the audience.

After intermission, the Glee Club returned for the second and by far superior portion of the program. Four spirituals were sung with gusto and good feeling by the 150 young men who were obviously enjoying what they were doing.

Displaying a fine voice and unfailing humor, baritone Bill Duke performed next to the great enjoyment of the house which brought him back for two encores.

Next in the two-hour concert came the Double Octette, which continued the light and informal tone of the evening by singing two Richard Rodgers tunes and one by George Gershwin. However, it might be well for this group to refurbish their repertoire more often.

A patriotic note was introduced in the last division of the program when "Yankee Glory," "Dixie," and "This Is My Country" were all sung, the last two being encores.

String Quartet Gives Concert on Saturday In East Duke Building

Performing the works of Haydn, Schubert, and the late Hungarian composer Bela Bartok, the Amadeus String Quartet will give a concert this Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Room of East Duke Building.

The concert will be the fourth presentation of the season by the Chamber Arts Society.

Now making its second American tour, the Amadeus Quartet was organized in Great Britain only six years ago, and has since made numerous appearances in continental Europe and America.

Although it was organized in England, the Quartet has only one native Englishman, cellist Martin Lovett. The other three, first violinist Norbert Brainin, second violinist Siegmund Nissel, and violinist Peter Schidlof, are of Austrian descent.

The program for Saturday night is as follows: Haydn, "Quartet in C major, Opus 54"; Bartok, "Quartet No. 4"; and Schubert, "Quartet in G major, Opus 161."

Guest card admissions will be available at East Duke Building for those who are not members of the Society. Single admission is $2.50, and $1.50 for Student Guest Cards.

Art Exhibit

President A. Hollis Edens will officially open a state-wide student art exhibit in Winston-Salem on Feb. 20.

Dr. Edens will speak at the opening ceremony on the importance of art in education.

Calendar Chairman

Social Standards announced recently that Aurelia Gray will edit the committee's publication "It's Not in the Handbook" for incoming freshmen, and that Jo Anne Withrow will be in charge of next year's calendars.

The Fan's Fare

By CHARLES WRAY

Football season is still a long way off, but The Chronicle Sports Department has been flooded with inquiries as to why the Duke football team annually plays no more than four home contests.

The answer is a simple one—a lack of funds.

Duke's student activities fee, of which the athletic association receives ten dollars per student, is not adequate to finance a home schedule of more than four games. Other colleges, some of which play more than four home games, have larger fees, and of the ones which do not charge a larger fee, the athletic association gets a greater percentage of the fee than here at Duke.

Since intercollegiate football must pay for a university's athletic program, it, like any other business, must realize a profit. In old days, the revenue from football footed the bill for only three other teams; now there are a total of sixteen teams which depend on subsidies from the grid program. In other words, the same amount of money must go further.

Also the quality of the home schedule must be taken into consideration. The athletic department had much rather offer the students four top-notch home attractions than five mediocre ones.

One should also consider the fact that, on the whole, Duke athletic teams do not attract great crowds in the Durham area. For instance, if the Duke-South Carolina game were played in Columbia as it has been for the past several years a crowd of from 25,000 to 35,000 would be virtually assured, but here in Durham next fall the game will be lucky to attract 20,000 fans.

The situation is not as bad as it seems, however, since students are admitted to Big Four away games for the student book plus a dollar. This gives the Blue Devils practically a seven-game home schedule every other year.

Cagers Top Century Figure Against VPI

Duke University's high-powered offense topped the century mark for the fourth time this season at it blasted the luckless VPI Gobblers, 107-53 last Saturday.

The smashing score was the third highest point total in Duke history. The other higher scores were set as the Devils picked up 110 points against Furman, and 109 against William and Mary earlier this season.

Six Duke players hit in double figures—Bernie Janicki with 19, Joe Belmont with 16, Rudy Lacy and Ronie Mayer had 15 each, Fred Shabel with 12 and Charlie Driesell with 10.

Despite the top-sided victory, VPI produced the night's high scorer in Bill Matthews, who tossed in 20 points.

The Devils, who are now rated 15th nationally, have a season record of 17-5, and are second in the ACC with a 5-1 record.

Tech has only won 2 games out of 20 this season.
