Omicron Delta Kappa Taps Eight

250 Guests Expected

Fathers Will Arrive Saturday For 'Y'-Sponsored Dads' Day

Dads' Day, a traditional fall project of the YMCA will begin this Saturday as the Blue Devils clash with South Carolina's Gamecocks in Duke Stadium.

First signs of the fathers' arrivals will appear Friday afternoon when the boys on West pick up cots for their fathers' two-day stand.

Punic Pugilists To Rally Friday

Togas, Torchlight
Open Roman Games

"When in Rome, do as the Romans do!" will be the cry Friday night as the Gothic arches take on a definitely Latin look for the Punic Pugilistic Pep Rally and Roman Games which will take place at 7 p.m. in the old Amphitheater (alias baseball field.)

The Roman Games will feature the Amazons from East and the Gladiators from West who will participate in such contests as the egg-tossing, one thousand miles to Rome, with the "garbage-tossers" as an additional attraction. The stars of the show will be Lew "Flavius" Marvin, Nat "Mark Anthony" Greenblatt and Frank "Nero" Hainer.

The Amphitheater will be lit by torches (no purity lights), and the FAC's will bring their freshmen groups to the Games which will serve as a prelude to the open house in the Student Union.

There will be two women from each dormitory and one from each sorority with similar representation among the men.

The Pep Board and cheerleaders will be dressed in Roman theme, and the show will be climaxed by a Pep Board surprise.

Pep Board hopes to make this last pep rally "fun, different and successful," said LaVerne Olney, co-chairman of Pep Board.

Duke, Carolina Agree To Expel All Vandals

Student leaders of Duke and the University of North Carolina decided to expel any vandals found on either campus at a meeting last Thursday night.

The decision to punish vandals who exhibit their school spirit by defacing their opponent's campus is to be enforced by the Judicial Board at Duke and the Honor Court at U.N.C.

Noting that signs already had been painted on East Campus and on the entrance to West, the Student Government presidents, Editor of the Chronicle and the Daily Tarheel, Pep Board presidents, YMCA presidents, and representatives of the Judicial Board and the Honor Court met in an attempt to prevent further outbreaks of delinquency.

On Saturday morning the Dads will arrive, go to the Union lobby, register, and pick up tickets for the game and the banquet.

Following the game, Dr. Arthur Kale of the Divinity School will speak at a father-son banquet. University president, A. Hollis Edens, will give the invocation at 6:30 p.m. Bill Huntley will be Master of Ceremonies, and John Swartz will welcome the Dads and introduce the distinguished guests.

Entertainment in the Woman's College Auditorium on East Campus will consist of a technicolor movie, "This is Duke University," and amateur acts including the Duke Triple Quartet.

Dads' Day will officially end on Sunday morning with the church service in the Duke Chapel. Dr. Cleland will lead the service.

Bill Frederick, vice chairman of the Dads' Day Committee, said he expected approximately 250 fathers to attend the event.

Planning and organizing started last Spring, and was continued during the summer months.

Frederick also stated that, "If extensive planning and organization can give assurance for a good Dads' Day then this year's program should be highly successful."

Convention Set For Legislators

Armed with bills designed for debate and organizational improvement, delegates from East and West campuses will travel to Raleigh Thursday for a 3-day session of the North Carolina State Student Legislative Assembly.

Legislators representing the West Campus are: Henry Carnegie and George Coltrane, Interim Council members; Herd Bennett, floor leader in the House of Representatives; Phil Cato, Dave Hanner, Bill Frederick, K. D. Pyatt, Murray Weill, Bill Bramberg, Jim Harbison, Phil Leinbach, Joe Smith, Wright Moulton, Dick Smith, Norm Higgins and Buddy Beacham.

East Campus members of the Interim Council are: Dial Boyle and Becky Watson, Odessa Southern, Tallulah Brown, and Marjorie Gay will have seats in the Senate. Women representatives in the House will not be officially confirmed until Thursday morning.

Both groups are presenting bills to the mock legislature.

George London To Lend Operatic Aura To Page

George London, the American bass-baritone who in three seasons has become known as one of the great operatic singers of our time, will present the second recital of the Duke University All-Star Concert Series in Page Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 19.

The young baritone grew up in Los Angeles, where he sang in church choirs and received early musical training. During 1946, London toured with the Bel Canto Trio, which also introduced a young tenor named Mario Lanza. Giving up a promising concert career, London traveled to Vienna in 1949 to begin an operatic career. After two seasons there which brought him rave reviews, he returned to the Metropolitan to open the 1951 season as the bass lead in "Aida."

Since then London has sung in the Vienna State Opera, La Scala in Milan, and has participated in the Bayreuth, Salzburg, and Edinburgh Music Festivals. In this country, he has had outstanding concert tours and operatic triumphs. In 1952 the singer received particularly noteworthy critical laurel for his performance in the title role of the opera "Boris Godunov."

London is now the Metropolitan's leading bass-baritone. His repertoire includes Mozart, Puccini, Verdi, Offenbach and Wagner. His program at Duke will include varied songs in German, Russian, French and English.

Available tickets may still be obtained by calling J. Foster Barnes, Duke Concert Series manager or the Page Auditorium box office.

Social Standards Plans Fall Ball for Dec. 4; Coeds Choose "Santaland" as Dance Theme

Because many students will be leaving the campus before Thanksgiving this year, the annual Fall Coed Ball will be held Dec. 4, in the old gym on West Campus.

Pledges to buy bids, which went on sale yesterday, may be signed all this week in the Union. A representative from Social Standards Committee, sponsor of the dance, will be in the Union from 9:00 a.m. until noon.

The cost of these bids will not exceed $2.75 according to Lane McGregor, chairman of the Coed Ball. More bids will be available this year since the larger West Campus gym is being used instead of the traditional East gym.

This year's Ball will turn the gym into a replica of "Santaland," with snowman, Christmas trees and Santa Claus.

Breakfast will be served after the dances in the parlor of each dormitory on East Campus, instead of the Union as it has been in the past. Girls and their dates will be served from midnight until 1:00 a.m.

The first of two dances sponsored annually by the Social Standards Committee, this affair will be one to which the girls will invite the boys.

Appointments Office Requests Information

Miss Fannie Mitchell, head of the Appointments Office, announced today that seniors should come by 214 Flowers to register for job interviews this spring.

Miss Mitchell stated that any senior in Trinity College, the College of Engineering, or the Woman's College is eligible for aid from her office, free of charge, in obtaining work after graduation.

Due to the necessity of filling biographical data and securing some half dozen recommendations, the appointments office "strongly urges" that every senior take advantage of the service offered by the office, whether they expect to find employment through other channels or not. Also it was pointed out by the office that the data compiled now may be of service in later life, if a graduate wishes to change jobs and wishes to make use of the Appointments Office help in securing new or different employment.

Judgment Day

John Paton Davies served his government as a foreign service officer for 23 years. He was tried nine times as a security risk and cleared each time. But he was fired.

The charge which Secretary of State Dulles claimed made it necessary to fire Davies was "bad judgment." Bad judgment, according to the official pronouncement, included dissenting from "established policy outside of privileged boundaries." We wonder how then the State Department can justify withdrawing Davies' pension simply because he used "bad judgment." If such were standard procedure we think the taxpayers would have a much lighter load: All bureaucratic blunderers would have their pensions cut off.

Futhermore, it would be easy to ascertain blunderers. Everyone who has disagreed with a policy now in force has shown "bad judgment" and would be subject to economic discipline. But we think that the State Department's humane handling of this matter is infinitely superior to that pictured in George Orwell's 1984 where such heretics are "vaporized." Dulles and his sidekicks are to be highly commended for their forbearance.

And why not, while we're at it, change that insipid old American babble about the accused being innocent until proven guilty? There really is no sense in clinging to such an unrealistic catch phrase any longer.

We also suggest that hereafter those, who are to be tried as Davies has been, be given the choice of a series of trials such as he got or the opportunity to stand before a twentieth century replica of the Star Chamber. In all fairness to the accused, he should be allowed a choice, and his decision, assuming he is mentally competent, will have to fall with the latter.

But before we can expect all this progress, it will be necessary to extend special dispensations to those such as John Foster Dulles, who, some claim, himself went outside "of privileged boundaries" when he publicly disagreed with the Democratic Administration when he was an aide of Dean Acheson.

We think another blow has been struck for national security and we can hardly wait until those interested in such things set up a local thought police chapter here; something that is now sorely missing. We hope the initiation fees aren't too high.

From The Editor's Desk

We had the unique experience of meeting with a real-live editor of the Daily Tar Heel last Thursday night at what was billed as a "love feast." These love feasts are annual dinners at which student leaders from Duke and UNC get together to cut down on vandalism which has a way of preceding the Big Game each year.

We had been somewhat peeved at the Tar Heel for some weeks due to their rather vigorous policy of blasting dearauldurke consistently, but not too accurately. The last of these blasts, in a column written by someone named Coe, as much as accused Duke of withholding the films of the Navy massacre from the Durham TV station. Apparently no one at Chapel Hill realizes that the game was the "All-American Game of the Week" which was filmed by a commercial outfit which had no connection with Duke University. Furthermore, the film was distributed on a nationwide basis for presentation on television football review programs.

Earlier in the season the Tar Heel in its editorial columns advocated that the Durham-Chapel Hill highway be blocked off to keep the aloof worshippers of Mammon (that's us) from Chapel Hill. The primary motivation for this trivia was the inability of personable Charles Kuralt, the editor of the Tar Heel, to get a seat in Rathskellar. Times have been when we've seen only Duke people there and still plenty of empty seats. We mean to say that were it not for Duke, Chapel Hill might not have the ability to support the Rathskellar at all.

We delivered what we thought was a clincher when we pointed out to Kuralt that if the road were blocked off his compatriots would probably suffer from nervous breakdown being as their supply of liquor would be cut off. Orange County has a way of staying dry year after year, and if it weren't for dearauldurham and its ABC establishments, UNC would probably wither for lack of its accustomed nourishment.

BETWEEN THE HALVES

With HERB LODDER

On the rebound from a 40-7 loss at the hands of Navy, Coach Bill Murray's eleven edged Wake Forest 28-21 last Saturday afternoon before a homecoming crowd of about 11,000 fans. The Deacons, who fell behind 21-0, never gave up in a contest which saw most of the action coming in the second half.

The game was an up and down affair for the Blue Devils. On touchdown plays, and several other times they looked impressive but on several instances, particularly in the first half one wondered how they could look so ragged and still win.

Jerry Barger and Bryant Aldridge were again impressive in the backfield. Aldridge was outstanding as he smashed the Wake line for good gains, averaging 6.3 yards for 12 carries. Barger engineered three of the Duke Touchdowns, scoring one himself, and throwing a 19 yard scoring aerial to Tracy Moon for the other. The third touchdown, which was the first of the game, came in the second quarter at the end of an 86 yard scoring drive as Jerry pitched to Bob Pascal who circled right end untouched.

Duke's offensive air attack as well as its offensive blocking has looked sharper as the season rolls on. The Sonny Jurgensun pass to Ed Post for 65 yards and a touchdown was a fine piece of deception and a good example of execution of assignments.

Defensively, however, the Duke's have fallen down. Pass defense slipped to a low in the Navy game, and last Saturday wasn't up to the par that was set in earlier games this year. It is in the middle of the line, though that we appear to be weakest. Saturday, Nick Maravic, who has been a "so-so" fullback for Wake Forest picked up 122 yards in 22 carries to lead the Deacon backfield. So it has been with every team we have played this fall. Fullbacks through the center have gained constantly. Remember Murakowski from Purdue?? How about Markinkov from State, Ubell of Army, Tracy of Tennessee, and Navy's halfback Bob Craig, who cracked the center of our line for long gains?

Ineffectiveness of the high tackle is a possible answer. It seems that since a man runs with his feet on line plays it would be much more plausible to stop his feet than to hit high. We don't believe that Duke has a poor line, the men having been able to give a good account of themselves offensively. We feel, however, that their tactics should be changed when it is proved that they aren't effective.

Weekend Sports In Review

The Blue Imp football team went down to it's second defeat of the season at Clemson, S. C., Saturday night as they were whipped by the bay Tigers, 12-6.

Duke, who drew first blood in the second quarter with a 30-yard touchdown pass from Bob Brodhead to Steve Criffield, saw their lead dwindle to a tie until the fourth quarter when Clemson quarterback, Gene Crocker sneaked over for the winning TD from one foot out.

SOCCER

UNC's soccer men shut out the Blue Devils by a 2-0 count on the Duke field Friday afternoon. The Tarheels, completely mastered defensive play to hold off Duke, who now has a season record of 3-5.

CROSS-COUNTRY

The Blue Devil varsity and freshman cross-country teams crashed the win column Friday afternoon as they whipped the Wake Forest Demon Deacons. The varsity won, 17-43, while the Imps barely missed a shut-out, 16-43.

George Rodgers and Dave Hanner came over the finish line together to lead Duke, while Dave Pearl and Henry Wells also tied for first in the freshman meet.

Varsity Cagers Meet Camp LeJeune; Frosh Squad to Play 17 Game Schedule

Duke University's basketball team got down to serious business Monday afternoon with a scrimmage game against Elon College. Although no official score was kept the Blue Devils showed the fans in attendance that big things can be expected of them this season. The team meets Camp LeJeune on Wednesday and travels to Hickory, N. C., on Thursday to conduct a basketball clinic for high school coaches.

The freshman team has been named by coach Tony Drago. Those making the team are: Bucky Allen, Jim Newcome, Ken Bishop, Ed Bryson, Tony Buharsky, Mike Godt, Joe Harris, Burke Hawkins, Hayes Clement, Bill Mewbourne, Ed Simms, Sid Smith, Covie Windsor, Paul Schmidt, John Cole, George Whyte, Harry Blackburn, Joe Lintenyach, Jim Cowie, Richie Kirschbaum, Ken Whitney, Buddy Zenda, and Wayne Bussey.

The squad will play 17 games this season, beginning December 1. Last year's freshman cagers completed their season with a record of 12 victories and 5 defeats. The outlook for the season looks encouraging with an abundance of height and scoring ability.

Independents Meet

At a meeting held Thursday night, the Independent Dormitory Council heard reports from the various committees, and approved three motions initiated from the floor.

The first motion passed was a resolution approving an agreement between students and faculty leaders of both UNC and Duke, stating that any acts of vandalism by either school would result in expulsion of the guilty parties.

Bureau Offers Counseling, Aid

Dr. Weitz Will Test Engineers' Abilities

By DEAN BELK
Chronicle Staff Reporter

On the third floor of Flowers building, above and beyond the waiting lines at the telephone booths, the Bureau of Testing and Guidance is busy helping the student solve his problems.

The function of the agency is to help students make educational, vocational, personal and social adjustments. Much emphasis is placed upon the confidential nature of the free counseling service.

The Bureau, a certified agency of the National Vocational Guidance Association, is headed by three counselors: Dr. Henry Weitz, Director, who was also Director of the Psychological Service Bureau at the University of Delaware before coming here in 1950; Dr. Robert Colver, former Assistant Director of the Bureau at Arkansas Poly Tech; and Dr. W. Scott Gehman, senior counselor, the latest addition to the staff and former Assistant Director of the Division of Intermediate Registration at Penn State. It is a psychometrist on the staff.

There is continual research into means that will make the educational experience more effective. A recent study by Weitz, Colver, and Southern resulted in the exemption of 45 per cent of the Junior class from

From 1953 to 1954 the Bureau administered 4710 individual tests. There were, in addition, 2726 students in 28 group testing programs. Some of the group tests were the pre-med, pre-law and Selective Service exams.

During the last four years 1110 received counseling. Of these only one fourth sought advice on personal and family adjustment. The other advises received educational and vocational guidance.
