Seniors Brace For Annual Mix

Weaving their way along Myrtle Drive in a car caravan to greet their fellow classmates of East Campus, the male members of the class of '56 will carry the senior coeds off to the baseball field next Saturday afternoon, Oct. 1, for an informal listening-in party on the game with Tennessee from 2-5 p.m.

Sparked by the efforts of chairman Carl Bentz and encouraged by good class participation in a similar effort last year, the planning committee of the '56 Mix has promised a Duke Ambassador's combo, free refreshments, and skits planned by Lew Marvin and Frank Hainer.

Thursday evening at 10 p.m. West Campus seniors will visit the Woman's College dormitories and extend a personal invitation from West to East. Dates are not necessary to join in on the party, and the wearing of Bermuda shorts and khakis will stress the informality of the occasion.

Seniors are asked by the committee to furnish their own portable radios and blankets. Besides the entertainment mentioned above, games of football, softball and horseshoes can be played on the wide open spaces.

In case of rain, the party will be moved into the Old Gymnasium.

Knowland Will Speak Wednesday At UNC

The Carolina Forum of the University of North Carolina extends an invitation to Duke students to hear Senator William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), Senate Minority Leader, speak Wednesday, Sept. 28, in Hill Hall at 8:15 p.m. on the Chapel Hill Campus.

Senator Knowland's address will mark the opening of the 20th annual series of outstanding speakers who have visited the University at Chapel Hill.

A special campus celebration has been planned for later in the fall to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Carolina Political Union's speaker presentation program.

Following the program, a reception will be held in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial Student Union.

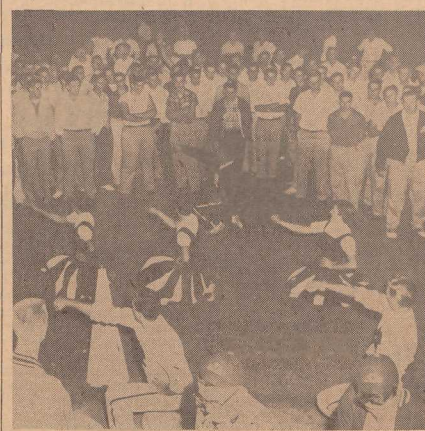

545 Freshmen Enroll In YMCA; Excell All Records Of The Past

YMCA President Phil Leimbach reports the Class of 1959 has topped all previous records for Y memberships with eighty-six percent of the class enrolling.

Leading the class and winning the fifteen-dollar prize from the Y is House I, the only house to report 100% enrollment this year. Reports are: Lev Clark, membership chairman, list the following percentages: House I — 100%, House K — 97.3%, House L — 97.1%, House M — 94%. In addition to the 545 freshmen who joined, 11 upperclassmen memberships brought the total to 556 new members.

Members of the Y are invited to attend the meetings and volunteer for work on any of the projects to be undertaken.

Pep That Paid

No one can deny that student support helps a team or that pep rallies help the students. Apparently the students in this group carried their spirit from last Friday's rally to the State game in Raleigh. 33-7!

Church Groups Receive New Religious Advisers

Two of Duke's denominational church groups have new advisers this year, and West Campus has a new associate director of religious life. The Rev. Arthur Brandenburg who received his B.D. degree from Union Theological Seminary in New York City is replacing Ed Spann as Chaplain to the Methodist student Fellowship. The Lutheran's new advisor is Miss Melba Taylor who is a recent graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College.

The Rev. Harvey Floyd, who came to Duke from Emory, where he received his B.D. degree, is the new associate director of religious life on West Campus. The largest number of students in several years attended a reception Thursday night introducing these three and all the other members of the religious staff of the university community.

Church night, Friday, also drew approximately seven hundred and fifty freshmen to several different denominational get-togethers.

Barbara Smith, president of the Student Religious Council has announced that an International Tea will be held in the Arc from 3 to 5 p.m. Oct. 2. All members of the university community are invited to this tea held in honor of Duke's foreign students.

Elections Commence In Freshman Houses

Procedure for freshman elections commences today when the freshman houses begin to elect their floor representatives.

On Oct. 3, the various houses will choose their house officers from the floor representatives. Also at this meeting, each house will nominate one candidate to run for the position of freshman class president. This candidate may or may not be a house officer.

The house candidates are to be introduced to the freshman class at an assembly on Oct. 4, formal campaigning beginning that night at midnight. The formal campaigning is scheduled to end on midnight of the tenth, with the elections being held on the eleventh. Preceding the election, each nominee will be given the opportunity to address the class during freshman assembly.

Rhodes Awards

Competition for Rhodes scholarships awarded for Oxford University for Oct., 1956 will begin in October. Those interested should contact Professor W. Bryan Bolch in 105 Law School Building as soon as possible.

Faculty Artists Will Perform

The first program of the Duke University Arts Council will feature John Hanks and Loren Withers, members of the Duke faculty, in a performance Friday night, Sept. 30 at 8:15 p.m. in Page Auditorium. This program will be open to the public with no admission charges.

Mr. Hanks, tenor, has recently made opera, recital, radio, TV, and oratorio appearances in New York and other cities. In 1954 he was tenor soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Withers, noted pianist, has been a faculty member here for five years, but has also presented solo recitals and performed with orchestras in a number of states.

The evening program will include selections from Schubert, Franck, Massenet, and Purcell, and five contemporary "Songs of Israel." Also Withers will play a concert etude by Liszt and a Chopin nocturne.

Tuition Change Effects Cost-Free Chanticleers

Crandall, Tudor Announce Planned Changes, Individual Photo Schedules And Charges

This year, for the first time in the history of Duke University, the yearbook, Chanticleer, will be free.

Since the students returned to the campus last week the Chanticleer has been the subject of many rumors; but now these rumors have become fact. Bill Tudor, business manager of the yearbook, stated, "Many students are shocked this year on finding that every one will receive a yearbook free. This has come about by the administration's raise in tuition. As a result of this raise, publications are receiving more money."

The Chanticleer is in store for many new changes this year. Jini Crandall, editor, reports that among the changes now in mind are less copy, more pictures, and several colored pictures to brighten the book.

There will also be an effort to identify all persons in group pictures, and there will be pictures not found in past years—fraternity and sorority presidents.

Featured also will be a student directory in the book giving the page number of every picture in which a student appears.

Even though the administration is supplying the money for free books, the students will as in the past have to pay the

Famed Billiard Dean Appears On Campus

Charles C. Peterson, known as the greatest trick-shot billiard player of all time, will display his talents to university students on Sept. 28, 27, and 28. Mr. Peterson will be in the Student Union game room from 1-3 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. on these dates.

Millions of college men and women have been instructed by the "Dean of Intercollegiate Billiards." Mr. Peterson will not only demonstrate fundamentals and basic shots, but he will also give helpful hints to improve tournament caliber.

Forum Program

Opening the current season with Shaw's St. Joan, played by the Stratford Players of Ontario on Nov. 10, the Student Forum has released the following plans for the remainder of the year: Doris Fleson in December, W. H. Auden on Feb. 16, Arts Week Feb. 21-27. Arts Week this year has as its theme Renaissance art. Included in the program are scale models of Leonardo da Vinci's inventions, Renaissance paintings and lectures and panels.

Pogo Portraits

Pasting, painting, and papering by the BOS-Sandals are producing prominent and pulsating Pogo portraits. Jo Ann McLawhorn, Carolyn Peters, Sally Wheeler, and Dinah Porter can be seen decorating for the dance, "Going Pogo," that will be co-sponsored by the two organizations next Saturday night, Tuesday at noon, bids for the event will go on sale. Members of the Sandals will manage the selling campaign, and the tickets may be purchased at the West Campus bus stop or the arcade between the Student Union and House P. Couple bids are $2.25 and those for the stags are $1.50.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Chronicle:
MSGA is putting new emphasis on Traditions this year, and on behalf of MSGA and the Traditions Board, I would like to thank you for the interest you showed in our program by your article in the Sept. 23rd issue of The Chronicle.

I would, however, like to offer one correction. Your article stated that dinks were inaugurated in the early 1930's. I believe it would be correct to say that dinks were first worn by freshmen in the fall of 1925. Mr. Dukes, director of the Department of Alumni Affairs, in a recent conversation told me that the tradition of wearing dinks began his freshman year, 1925. He went on to tell me that his class, the class of 1929, wore their dinks for the entire nine months of school. Thus, we can see that as the Chronicle article brought out, the tradition has changed some during the years.

I feel that traditions are an important part of university life, and once more — thanks for supporting the traditions program of our University.

SAM McMILLAN,
Vice-President, MSGA

Writer Sees Unwritten Traditions

The author of this column has returned to Duke after studying at the University of London his junior year.

By BILL STUBBS

"Men's Student Government," according to bulletins posted in prominent places around our tranquil quadrangles, "is putting a new emphasis on traditions this year."

"A Freshman shall tip his Dink . . ."

"A Freshman shall not sit on the chapel steps . . ."

"Every Freshman shall be given a written test on the history and traditions of Duke University . . ."

And so on. Some might think it a shame that our traditions are legislated and enforced rather than traditional and customary, but we tell them we're a young university, and we have to set these things moving somehow.

"The Traditions Board shall provide the Freshman with information sheet giving . . . the traditions . . ." But is this sheet complete; does it list all of our traditions? Some might think our young student body has already formulated, without formality of legislation, quite a few traditions that might be added to the list.

"A Freshman shall have a crew cut and possess at least one pair of dirty white bucks, six repp ties, and two pairs of khaki pants, all of which shall be worn frequently on campus."

"A Freshman may work for a campus publication, pledge a fraternity and taken an active part in one of the two political parties on campus, but he shall not engage in the formation of a new society, political, social, literary or otherwise."

"A Freshman shall follow these traditions during his sophomore and junior years, until he reaches his senior year and realizes it is too late to engage in any non-traditional activity which might have increased his benefit received from Duke University."

In short, some might think that, in spite of the tender age of our institution, we have of late become so staid in our ways that there is very little student spirit and initiative exhibited other than that seen at athletic events. We ARE a young university, but some might think we are growing old without taking advantages offered to us by our youth and the facilities of Duke.

Of course, "some" might easily be wrong, but, then again . . . on the other hand . . . she had a wart.

Mann Publishes Guide

"You Can Make Money on the Stock Market: Your Personal Investment Guide," a new publication by Evrette J. Mann, professor of Economics at Duke, is being released this week by The Macmillan Co. of New York.

Professor Mann is at present on a two-year leave of absence serving on the American Technical Mission in Europe, giving seminars on industrial cost accounting and budgetary controls for businessmen.

$1.50 fee for their picture. Asked whether he thought the students would cooperate in having their pictures made, Tudor replied, "This year we have started off with a bang. There have been more student pictures than in past years, over 1,000 so far."

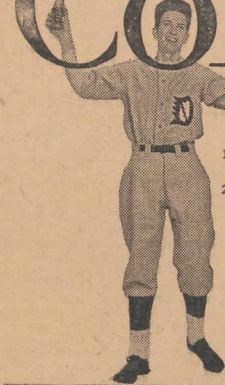

For those who have not had their pictures made, the photographer will be in Hanes House until Monday, Oct. 10th, when he will return to West Campus.

At Dean Brinkley's honors assembly held last night, the annual scholarship cup was once again won by Giles House, though Pegram House ran a very close second. Thirteen new members were tapped for Ivy, freshman scholastic honorary, and gold D's were awarded for top averages in each class.

ANYONE FOR FOOTBALL?

Pancho Sigafoos, pale and sensitive, first saw Willa Ludovic, lithe as a hazel wand and fair as the morn, outside a class in money and banking. "Let us not hem and haw," said Pancho to Willa. "I adore you."

"Thanks, hey," said Willa, blushing prettily. "What position do you play?"

"Position?" said Pancho, looking at her askance. (The askance is a ligament just behind the ear.)

"On the football team," said Willa.

"Football?" cried Pancho, his lip curling in horror. "Football is violence, and violence is the death of the mind. I am not a football player. I am a poet."

"So long, mac," said Willa.

"Wait!" cried Pancho, clutching her lissome young forearm. She placed her foot on his pelvis and wrenched herself free. "I only go with football players," she said and walked, shimmering, into the setting sun.

Pancho went to his room and lit a cigarette and pondered his vexing problem. What kind of cigarette did Pancho light? Why, Philip Morris, of corris!

Philip Morris is always welcome, but never more than when you are weary and sore beset. When a fellow needs a friend, when the heart is dull and the blood runs like sorghum, when darkness prevails, then, then above all, is the time for the mildness and gentleness that only Philip Morris can provide.

Pancho Sigafoos, his broken psyche welded, his fevered brow cooled, his synapses restored after smoking a gentle Philip Morris, came swiftly to a decision. Though he was rather small for football (an even four feet) and somewhat overweight (370 pounds) he tried out for the team—and tried out with such pluck and perseverance that he made it.

Pancho's college opened the season against the Manhattan School of Mines. The Miners were always a mettlesome foe, but this year, strengthened by four exchange students from Gibraltar who had been suckled by she-apes, they were especially formidable. By the middle of the second quarter, the Miners had wrought such havoc upon Pancho's team that there was nobody left on the bench but Pancho. And when the quarterback was sent to the infirmary with his head driven into his ribcage, the coach had no choice but to put Pancho in.

Pancho's team-mates were not conspicuously cheered as the little fellow took his place in the huddle. "Gentlemen," said Pancho, "some of you may regard poetry as sissy stuff, but now in our most trying hour I can think of no words more apt than these lines from Milton's Paradise Lost: 'All is not lost; the unconquerable will and study of revenge, immortal hate, and courage never to submit or yield!'"

So stirred was Pancho's team by this fiery exhortation that they threw themselves into the fray with utter abandon.

As a consequence, the entire squad was hospitalized before the half. The college was forced to drop football. Willa Ludovic, not having any football players to choose from, took up with Pancho and soon discovered the beauty of his soul. Today they are seen everywhere together—dancing, holding hands, smoking, smooching.

Smoking what? Why, Philip Morris, of corris!

M. E. MURDAUGH—CLASS '43

TWO SHORT BLOCKS FROM FIVE POINTS

• Buck Shots •

By BUCK TALMAN

Displaying both flashing offensive power and tight defensive strength, Coach Bill Murray's '55 football gridirers rolled to an impressive 33-7 season opener victory over the Wolfpack of N. C. State College Saturday night in Raleigh.

State halfback, Eddie West, had the ball jarred from his grasp on the opening kickoff, and from that moment on the Wolfpack were well aware that they were in for a real ball game. Ronnie Falls gathered in the bobble, and nine plays later Duke had marched 35 yards for the initial score of the game with quarterback Sonny Jurgensen sneaking over from one yard out.

After the kickoff, State was held for three plays and then forced to go into punt formation. However the pass from center was low, and the Devils were presented with another scoring opportunity at the eight yard line. All-American halfback Bob Pascal plunged over from the one. Jim Nelson's placement was good, and Duke led 13-0 with only 8:45 off the clock.

Another State miscue set up the third Duke touchdown as Doug Knotts gobbled up Colbert Micklem's fumble on the Wolfpack's 16 yard line. Bryant Aldridge promptly took a hand off from quarterback Dale Boyd and raced the distance to the goal. Late in the third period Aldridge went straight up the middle for 58 yards and a T.D. but the Devils were off sides and so it was only wasted wind.

Duke's fourth tally came midway in the second quarter when Sophomore Ed Rushton, a name we're bound to hear more of in the future, intercepted a pass on the 39 and sped goalward for the T.D.

Led by little Billy Hunter, Earle Edwards' charges were still not to be completely denied. They took over on their own 20 after Nelson's kick had gone well into the end zone, and marched 80 yards for their only score of the game. There was no stopping Hunter as he ran and passed the Pack the necessary distance. One of the most spectacular plays of the evening came during this drive. Hunter was apparently trapped for a loss, but on the way down he managed to get off a pass to end Ronnie Gall on the three yard line. Three plays later Cris Christy plunged over from the one foot line for the score. But that was all for the Pack as they never got an encouraging chance again.

Duke's final marker was chalked up midway through the third period when Aldridge, who had been denied his long run, blasted over from the six. They threatened on several other occasions, but fumbles or intercepted passes prevented them from reaching paydirt.

After the first three touchdowns were punched across, the Devils went into a pretty much standard offense, and those expecting to see Duke's razzle-dazzle were greatly disappointed for a very obvious reason. There was no need in giving the numerous Tennessee scouts too much literature to take back to Knoxville.

Football Crossroads

The crossroads of intercollegiate football might well be the continued analysis of the composite ACC fall schedule, this latest formula being for the 1955 season when the ACC teams encounter every major gridiron conference in the country and every major bowl winner.

Dr. Nicholas G. Georgiade, assistant professor of plastic surgery here, has received the 1955 award of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery for his research paper "A Clinical and Experimental Investigation of the Preservation of Skin."

Maxson Announces Intramural Policy

Finley Maxson, senior intramural manager, explained the purpose and rules of the league to the house managers Thursday night.

All entries have to be in the Intramural Office by Thursday, Sept. 29. Football will begin Oct. 4, at 3:30 p.m. The schedules will be made up and game times will be posted on the bulletin board of the Old Gym. Only football players will be excluded from fall intramurals.

For the other sports, tennis, badminton and horseshoes, game times will not be posted. It will be up to the individuals themselves to meet with their opponents and set a definite time to play the game. If the game is not played within a week's time, one of the two will be moved up the ladder. This ascension will be left up to the intramural manager's discretion.

Pep Rallies Planned For All Home Games

Kit Weir, pep board chairman, has announced plans for pep rallies and other related events for the 1955 football season.

Blue Devil home games with William and Mary, Pittsburgh, Wake Forest and Carolina will be preceded by pep meetings and various displays to inspire the team to victory.

The homecoming game with Pitt, Oct. 22 will gain nationwide attention, since it will be carried all over the U. S. by a major radio network. Tentative plans also call for the pep rally Oct. 21 to be broadcast nationwide. In addition, there will be displays by each house and fraternity section.

The game with traditional rival North Carolina will be the concluding feature of the season, and will be televised nationally by NBC-TV on Dec. 3. This will mark the first time a game from Duke Stadium has ever been televised nationally. The annual bonfire will be staged the night preceding the big clash.

UNC will be out to gain its first victory over Duke since 1949.
