Murray Wrong, Declares McGuire

Officer Says No Student Slugged At Friday Game

By BILL KING

Lieutenant W. H. Upchurch, of the Durham Police Department and officer in charge at Friday night's basketball game, asserted that no student was hit with a stick during the flare-up after the game.

Also, in a telephone conversation with a Chronicle reporter Sunday afternoon, head coach Frank McGuire of the Carolina basketball team said: "Everything that Murray said was wrong, and we have concrete proof."

Ivy Elects Members; Brown Takes Trophy

Ivy president, Diane Schwartz, presented the dorm and sorority scholarship awards last night at the WSGA assembly. The names of the freshmen tapped into Ivy were also announced.

The dorm cup went to Brown House with a 2.7683 average. Aycock was second with 2.7048.

To qualify for Ivy, freshmen must have a 3.25 average. New members are Marjorie Althouse, Judith Austin, Norma Sue Barnes, Roberta Bash, Sarah Jane Bennett, Alice Ann Bivins, Mary Branton, Martha Gail Bryan, Kathleen Carney, Ann Denny Clark, and Sarah Ellis. Sharon Flanagan, Alma Fooks, Patricia Gaddy, Karen Gilliland, Louise Green, Susan Hall, Judy Johns, Helen Kelley, Sheila McClerran, Harriet Navasky, Anne Orren, Elaine Oshinsky and Margaret Ann Riddle

Saturday, the Durham Morning Herald reported that Frederick O'Neal Jones "allegedly was rapped on the head by a city policeman. . . ." Upchurch denied this however, and stated that he talked to the doctor who examined Jones, and that "the doctor said that a student had an epileptic fit or some kind of spell, but," he added, "no one was hit."

Jones himself cleared up the controversy. He declared "The policeman, in his effort to get to the source of the disturbance, accidentally hit me in the adam's apple with the side of his hand. This caused my throat to tighten, and I couldn't get enough air. Lack of air caused me to pass out."

Jones added that "I am convinced that the policeman was not swinging at me or anybody and that the whole thing was just a freak accident." He admitted that he was examined by a doctor, but claimed that the doctor "found nothing wrong with me since there was nothing wrong. I had no epileptic fit."

Panhellenic Council Declares Mix-Up Renders Bid Invalid

Without preferring any charges, the Panhellenic Executive Council has closed its investigation of the mix-up in a sorority bid extended February 19 at the end of rush.

The preferential bid of a freshman rushee has been declared invalid. The bid placed Pi Beta Phi first and Kappa Kappa Gamma second, although the freshman stated she had put them in reverse of that order.

Accusing no one and closing the case unless further evidence turns up, the executive council issued the following statement.

"On Wednesday, February 19, 1958, the Executive Council of the Woman's Panhellenic Association was asked to investigate an alleged discrepancy involving the extension of a sorority bid to a freshman rushee. With the assistance of a legal advisor and university officials, a thorough investigation was made. After careful consideration of all available evidence, we, the members of the Executive Council, feel justified in declaring the preference slip used by the Preference Board invalid. We of the Executive Council declare the case closed, to be reopened only in the event of the discovery of additional evidence."

The statement was signed by the members of the executive council, Sally Kraus, president; Marie LaLiberte, vice-president; Anne Kennerly, secretary; and Carol Cleave, treasurer.

At a meeting of the entire Panhellenic Council last night, the question of opening a space for the freshmen in Kappa Kappa Gamma was discussed.

Radiothon, Solicitations Open Annual West Campus Chest Charity Drive

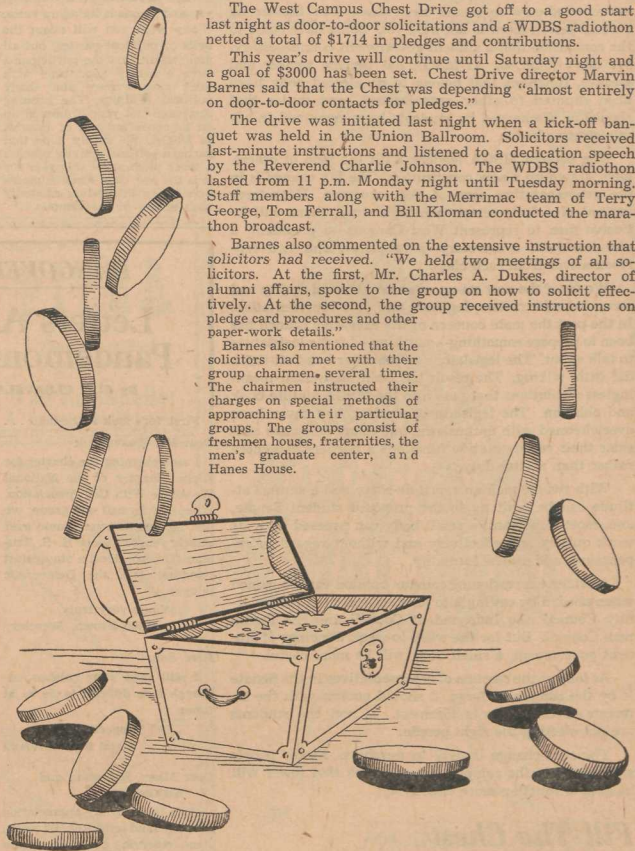

The West Campus Chest Drive got off to a good start last night as door-to-door solicitations and a WDBS radiothon netted a total of $1714 in pledges and contributions.

This year's drive will continue until Saturday night and a goal of $5000 has been set. Chest Drive director Marvin Barnes said that the Chest was depending "almost entirely on door-to-door contacts for pledges."

The drive was initiated last night when a kick-off banquet was held in the Union Ballroom. Solicitors received last-minute instructions and listened to a dedication speech by the Reverend Charlie Johnson. The WDBS radiothon lasted from 11 p.m. Monday night until Tuesday morning. Staff members along with the Merrimac team of Terry George, Tom Ferrall, and Bill Kloman conducted the marathon broadcast.

Barnes also commented on the extensive instruction that solicitors had received. "We held two meetings of all solicitors. At the first, Mr. Charles A. Dukes, director of alumni affairs, spoke to the group on how to solicit effectively. At the second, the group received instructions on pledge card procedures and other paper-work details."

Barnes also mentioned that the solicitors had met with their group chairmen, several times. The chairmen instructed their charges on special methods of approaching their particular groups. The groups consist of freshmen houses, fraternities, the men's graduate center, and Hanes House.

Players To Give Comic 'Volpone' On March 7-8

The Duke Players will present Ben Jonson's comic masterpiece, Volpone, on Friday and Saturday evenings, March 7 and 8, at 8:15 in Page Auditorium. Volpone is an example of Elizabethan ribald comedy, abounding with lots of ribald humor, according to George Autry, president of the Players. It is written in verse.

Under the direction of Professor Kenneth Reardon, the cast, headed by Buddy Fox, Carol Corder and Peter Coffey, has been rehearsing the play for almost two months.

Buddy Fox, who plays the lead role, is a second year law student. He played the psychiatrist in The Teahouse of the August Moon and has been producer, director, stage manager and actor in a Pennsylvania professional theater.

Peter Coffey, a graduate exchange student from England, has had experience acting in London. He plays the part of Mosca (the parasite).

Carol Corder, more familiar to students as the Chanticleer Beauty Queen, will play Celia.

Reardon, who directs Volpone, also directed Teahouse, which won an award at North Carolina State College Friday in competition with several other colleges and universities.

Gary Tummore, who was responsible for the set in Teahouse, also designed and built the set for Volpone.

Admission will be $1 or by season ticket. All seats are reserved. The Page box office will be open daily from 2 to 5 p.m. through Thursday, and from 2 p.m. to curtain time on performance nights.

Commenting on the play, Autry said, "Duke Players' first two productions this year, Uncle Vanya and Teahouse, were tremendously well received, and received unanimously well favored reviews. With Volpone's talented and experienced cast, this production should surpass the first two."

Edens Gives Donation

President A. Hollis Edens makes the first contribution to the annual West Campus Chest Drive, presenting a check to Drive director Marvin Barnes. The drive, with a goal of $5,000, will include door-to-door solicitations and a marathon radio broadcast.

Another Try

West Campus has been casting about for an effective MSGA for a long time. We've tried reorganizing the government into a ponderous forum; we've tried legislative committees; we've tried experienced leaders; and we've tried new men and new ideas. But the strong student government is not here yet. Some have come to the conclusion that a student government is unnecessary. We don't think so. As MSGA has become weaker and weaker, functions that belong to an elected body have been shunted to other organizations, and duties that should be discharged by students have remained in administrative hands.

The present MSGA leaders, with the help of others, have drawn up a new constitution. The big change is in the representative part of the structure. Henceforth instead of a forty-seven man legislature, there will be twelve men to represent West Campus—a president, a vice-president, a secretary, a treasurer, and two representatives from each class.

We favor the new set-up as a move toward reality and away from formalism, legalism and over-representation. In the past the main concern of the executive branch has been to prepare something—anything—for the legislature to talk about. The legislature on the other hand off-times did little talking. The result has been many near-meaningless resolutions that pass into the MSGA statute book and oblivion. The legislature, we feel, has never been overwhelmed with enthusiasm, and many delegates consider their representative functions a burdensome chore rather than a vital duty.

With twelve men an esprit-de-corps and a serious attitude can be built up in the proposed student Senate, and, most important, a small body can proceed with its work quietly and effectively and without regard to appearances and useless formality.

A wider expression of campus opinion can be gained when needed by calling into joint session the Interfraternity Council, the Independent Council and the Freshman Council. But for the week-to-week workings of student government, a small body will be more useful.

As long as the election of representatives in the Senate is by the campus at large, it should govern with the interests of the students foremost. If not, the students are not electing the right people.

The real change is only in numbers. Fewer people will represent the campus, but we think that fewer will be able to function more effectively.

Fill The Chest

East Campus, made up of less than 1200 students, annually contributes some $2500 to the Campus Chest; but West, with its 2300 inhabitants, is never able to scrape up even that sum. West's wealth is made evident in many places—the parking lots, Bailey's, The College Shop; only when solicitors knock at doors are its pocket-books shut tight. This year the men must open their doors and their wallets in order to meet the $3000 goal of the Campus Chest and surpass their female counterparts.

The Chest drive saves everyone a lot of trouble. Except for the work put in by Alpha Phi Omega and the canvassing committee, the drive is painless. No one has to do anything—except give. The many charities which might solicit here are combined into this one group. And students, saved from continual pestering, can fulfill their responsibility as world citizens with or without giving it a thought.

Children, the mentally and physically ill, poverty-stricken people, and students in other countries will be helped by every penny given during this week's drive. The needs are only too obvious; it is up to the students to provide their care.

And on East the Campus Chest is in the process of collecting pledges made last semester. Promising to give in the future was an easy task, but the women are now to show the sincerity of their pledges by their money. Both West and East must fill the chest.

Tower Talk

It's about time for the political shenanigans to begin now. But things don't look bright for the back-room boys this year. People should be talking low over the dinner table and staying up late puffing on cigarette after cigarette, for this is how the future political leaders are chosen. Instead of that, everyone is sitting around wondering who is going to run. We thought there was a dearth of candidates last year; this year sees a famine. The parties have not even caucused yet, and no one is lining up votes.

Say what you will about the evils of political parties, but all must admit that the participants have a hearty good time with their pseudo-crises and shady political dealings. The ensuing campaign last year drummed up an immense amount of interest in MSGA. We surely hope that partisan political activity reaches a fever pitch again this year for it is the one time when students concern themselves excitedly with affairs of the campus.

HANGOVER

Letters And Pandemonium

By CLIF CLEVELAND

First, let's look at the mail . . .

Dear Mr. Cleveland:

I am returning the charter for Alpha Chapter of the National We Agree With Clif Association. When we formed our group, we had no idea that you would ever attack venerable ole H. S. Truman. This we deem a sin against mankind (i.e. the Democratic wing).

Yours very truly,
Bilbo Brown, Secretary

Dear Son:

I still read your column, although it is difficult to do so at times.

Respectfully,
Carol R. Cleveland

Dear Msrs. Harrelson and Kirkland:

As a token of my appreciation for your kind letters of last week, I am reserving for each of you a copy of my latest work, I Was a Teenage Truman-phobe plus a lifetime photograph of me in my grey flannel leotard. You may pick these up at the Chronicle office at your convenience.

Cordially,
Clif Cleveland

Now, about that game . . . The Clevelands came up for the game because they had heard about Duke and Carolina but had never seen the two schools in action against one another. I sat with them to aid in their enlightenment. Our seats were fine except for one minor item—they were in the midst of the most vocal Carolina camp; instinctively, I noted the route to the nearest exit in case the presence of Blue Devil supporters should create a riot.

"You see . . . because Duke and UNC are so close together, a strong rivalry has developed between the two schools. But it's a rivalry marked by a spirit of friends. . ."

At this point the UNC team appeared, and I was forced to break off my explanation of the friendly competition for five minutes while the Carolina people screamed and clapped and jumped up and down. By the time I resumed, the game had gotten under way.

"Like I was saying—every renewal of this rivalry is marked by good-natured . . ."

Carolina scored and there followed another five minutes of unbroken bedlam. After a basketless spell Duke scored and in the spirit of the competition I uttered a mild "go Duke!" . . . and the floodgates of wrath opened. A Carolina gentleman to my left started the discussion by recommending my presence in hell; his suggestion was seconded by a fellow with dark glasses and twenty inch biceps. So I elected to be quiet.

A Carolina player, overwhelmed by the delusion that he was taking in the Golden Gloves, took a good-natured swing at one of the Devils, and a swarm of Duke students pushed onto the court to get a better view of the friendly rivalry. All of this was O.K. since it was a Duke-Carolina contest: I couldn't get this across to the folks.

And then it was over. A regiment of happy policemen rushed out on the floor to help students celebrate. Finally, friendly, good-natured Coach McGuire, obviously disappointed that the students made no attempt upon the lives of his cagers, added color to the occasion by calling for a police escort.

As we left, Sister spoke, "You were telling me about Duke and Carolina."

"Forget it," I said.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, the Chronicle:

In the Chronicle of February 25, 1958, there was a letter from two men graduate students challenging the undergraduates to prove themselves "not beneath contempt." It is regrettable that graduate students find it necessary to increase the lack of rapport presently existent between graduate and undergraduate students by making such a statement. The proposed debate should rather be a panel discussion of "How To Better Relations Between Graduate and Undergraduate Students." Both groups of students would benefit from any working agreement resulting from such a panel and from further efforts to bring the entire student body closer together.

Speaking as a graduate student, and echoing sentiments of other graduate students, I find one of the major griefs to be that of feeling isolated from campus life. This state results partially from the lack of time of the "carrel-bound" graduate student and partially from the lack of integrated student activities.

On the other hand, the graduate student, if in closer working and "playing" conditions, might have much to offer the undergrad. His experience of "suffering" through four years of academic and growing pains might provide an excellent example and advice to one still struggling. The graduate student body is composed of individuals from a variety of colleges. Perhaps they could supply ideas for rushing, an honor system, social events, and studying.

I hope that as a result of the letter from the two gentlemen of the Men's Graduate Center, the undergraduates will not be hasty in forming a feeling of contempt toward the graduate students.

Student Union Chooses New Board Of Governors

The Student Union Board of Governors last week selected eleven rising seniors for the 1958-59 Board from more than 40 applicants from East and West campuses and Hanes House.

Working on the basis of applications and personal interviews held last Wednesday and Thursday, the old board chose the eleven who will co-ordinate next year's Student Union activities and policies.

Chosen from East Campus were Judy Caracristi, Robin Holm, Jane Sale and Nancy Talcott, while Ellen Devol will represent Hanes House on the board.

Debaters Participate In Maryland Contest

The debate team has returned from the University of Maryland Tournament held on February 28, in College Park, Maryland. With 34 schools participating the University team finished in the upper half while Northwestern captured first place.

The topic was Resolved: "That Requirement of Membership in Labor Organizations as a Condition of Employment Should Be Illegal." Linwood Hollowell and Randy Thrasher argued positive, while Jo Smith and Carl Newberg took the negative side.

West Campus representatives chosen were Keyvan Tabari, Jim Bertch, Carlyle Windley, John Lynch and Don Fry, with George Weber chosen to represent the College of Engineering.

In addition to the eleven student members, the board also includes Mrs. Lanier Pratt and William J. Griffith. The student selections must be approved by the various student governments to be final.

The newly-elected members and this year's board will meet later this week to elect officers for next year. Positions to be filled are chairman, treasurer, secretary and assistant treasurer.

The Board of Governors will hold interviews Wednesday, March 12, through Friday, March 14 to select chairmen for the seven Student Union committees. Applications, which must be returned by next Monday, are available from East dormitory representatives or in 202 Flowers Building.

Department Of Music Will Offer Perry, Joint Gibson-Everett Recitals This Week

The Department of Aesthetics, Art, and Music will present two concerts this week. Tonight Miss Jane Perry will give her senior piano recital in the Asbury recital hall at 8:15 p.m. A joint recital featuring Miss Jeanne Gibson and Ronald Everett will be held in the Asbury auditorium at 8:15 Friday night, March 7.

Miss Perry is a piano student of Professor Loren Withers. Her selections will represent baroque, classical and contemporary music.

A soprano, Miss Gibson, assisted by Mrs. Ruth Friedberg at the piano, will sing two groups of songs. The first is composed of music by the 18th century Italian composer Francesco Durante, and two arias, "Voi Chi Sapete" and "Un Moto Di Gioia" from Mozart's opera Le Nozze Di Figaro. Her second group is made up of songs by Debussy and Faure.

Miss Gibson, a student of John K. Hanks, completed her B.A. degree in music at the end of first semester.

Ronald Everett will be joined by Mrs. Friedberg in the performance of Sonata for Clarinet and Piano by Darius Milhaud. He will also play The Trio, Opus 11, by Beethoven. The first two movements of the famous Quintet for Clarinet and String Quartet by Mozart will include John Goodkin and Mrs. Maya Powell as violinists, Edward Doughtie as violist, and May Baker as cellist.

East Campus Chest Collects Fall Pledge

Marion Fernando, chairman of the East Campus Chest Drive, announced that representatives for the charity drive will come around to all the dormitories to collect the pledges made in the fall campaign on tomorrow and Thursday nights.

The goal of the drive was $3,000 and was achieved within $300. The pledges are an important part of the drive and surpass the amount collected in cash in the fall.

With regard to the Murray-McGuire controversy, McGuire proposed that "it's best not to talk about it. I'm so worried now that I don't know which way to turn."

According to the Durham Morning Herald Sunday morning, Murray said, "In all my coaching experience, I have never seen a more obvious exhibition. [I referring to McGuire's holding his team on the floor for an estimated 20 minutes after the game] was the most revolting act by a college coach I've ever witnessed."

Upchurch Sunday commented, "I felt like if we hadn't been with the team [Carolina's] and if they had left just when the game was over there wouldn't have been no trouble." He threw in "The Carolina team has always left before." University athletic officials requested that Upchurch and his men go out on the floor to stop trouble. They were asked to stand around both teams, according to Upchurch.

McGuire, however, told his team to remain on the bench until the floor cleared. When 20 minutes had passed, Upchurch asked McGuire if he wanted a police escort to the locker room, though the officer didn't think it necessary. McGuire accepted the escort, and the team walked safely off the floor.

Collectomania

Don't ever tell them we said so, but collectors are a queer set of fish.

There's a certain madness that one breathes in with the dust of old books that is out of this world. The feel of old bindings, the glitter of worn gold letters, the knowledge that one holds in one's hand the very book that the author himself may have casually lifted from a pile at the binder's—these odd things intoxicate like wine.

Collector's shelves reflect a variety of tastes, but wherever you go, the chaps who have found the joy of owning the very best copy of the books in their field form a sturdy and loyal brotherhood.

Maybe you're the stuff collectors are made of. If so, you have many a happy day ahead of you. Come over and spend a leisurely half hour in our old book corner. Better men than you have discovered a rich personal satisfaction in just such a spot.

Past WSGA Head Gives Main Speech Tomorrow Night

Dial Boyle Jackson, president of the 1955 WSGA, will give practical hints on leadership tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. in the East Duke Building Music Room at the second WSGA sponsored leadership training program.

Last Wednesday's program was attended by 135 to 140 students, according to Liddy Hanford, this year's WSGA president, who commented that tomorrow's program will be more practical and that Mrs. Jackson has some excellent ideas to present.

Following Mrs. Jackson's speech, there will be a movie, "All I Need Is a Conference," which will show how to run a meeting, how to preside, etc.

The session will then divide into four discussion groups led by Nancy Lee Smith, class of 1954; Ruth Westcott Barnhart, 1955; Sam Macmillan, 1956; and Fred Sheheen, 1958.

Mrs. Jackson has had much experience in East Campus activities as a Sandal, assistant treasurer and executive secretary of WSGA, a member of Phi Kappa Delta, Phi Beta Kappa, Glee Club and Choir and president of her freshman class.

Mrs. Barnhart and Mrs. Smith both worked on the WSGA Council—Mrs. Barnhart for two years and Mrs. Smith as vice president of the Council.

Macmillan was vice president of the MSGA for two years along with other activities ranging from BOS to captain of the swimming team. Sheheen is editor of this year's Chronicle, president of ODK and in Who's Who.

The next program, a week from Wednesday, will be a mock meeting to illustrate the uses of parliamentary procedure.

President Edens Announces Changes In Business Staff

President A. Hollis Edens has recently announced three staff changes, including the appointment of a new business manager and a new assistant comptroller.

Gerhard C. Henricksen, Comptroller and Assistant Treasurer of the University, has been named Business Manager and Comptroller succeeding A. S. Brower, who will continue to serve as Treasurer.

Stephen C. Harward, who joined the staff in July, 1956, was named Assistant Comptroller. He will also continue to serve as Internal Auditor of the University.

The Board of Trustees, acting on a request from Brower to be relieved of his duties as business manager, approved the changes last week.

In making the announcement, Dr. Edens praised Brower, stating that "The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees and the members of the entire Board join me in expressing our high regard for Mr. Brower and our appreciation of what he has meant to Duke University through the years. His broad understanding of a business office in an academic community has contributed singularly to the program of the institution. We have accepted his resignation with regret, but we find comfort that he will be able to serve the University as Treasurer."

Panhellenic Presents Fashion Show Tonight

The Panhellenic Association is presenting Spring Fashions for a College Budget tonight at 8 p.m. in the East Duke music room.

The show, sponsored by Montaldo's, is for the benefit of the Panhellenic scholarship. Models will be from each sorority.

Tickets can be purchased for twenty five cents from the Panhel representative for each sorority. Door prizes will be given.

President of Panhellenic Association is Sally Kraus and the vice-president is Marie LaLiberte.

ARTICLE IV

MEMBERSHIP

Every male undergraduate student registered at Duke University shall be a member of the Association. Any of the rights, privileges, and obligations of such membership may be legally removed for cause.

ARTICLE V

EXECUTIVE

SECTION 1. The officers of this Association shall be: a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer. They shall perform all the functions and have the power and responsibility usually associated with such offices subject to any limitation contained in this constitution.

SECTION 2. Duties and powers of the President.

He Shall:

- convene and preside over meetings of the Student Senate;
- convene and preside over joint meetings of the Inter-Fraternity Council, Independent Dormitory Council, and Freshman Council when so directed by the Student Senate;
- act as official representative of the Association in its relations with all outside agencies;
- have appointive and proclamative powers as provided for in this constitution and by the Student Senate;
- possess such power as may be necessary and proper to enforce the statutes of the Association and carry out the functions of his office as prescribed by this constitution;
- report to the Association at least once a year on the activities of the Association;
- appoint, with the approval of the Student Senate, such executive officers as shall be necessary for the proper execution of his duties. He shall have the power to remove such persons from their position.

SECTION 3. Duties and powers of the Vice-President.

He Shall:

- in the temporary absence of the president be vested with all powers of that office;
- perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the president;
- exercise such other powers as are provided for in this constitution;
- perform duties assigned by the Student Senate and approved by the president.

SECTION 4. Duties and powers of the Secretary.

He Shall:

- keep accurate records of the meetings of the Student Senate;
- be responsible for notifying members of the Student Senate of each meeting of that body.

SECTION 5. Duties and powers of the Treasurer.

He Shall:

- collect, disburse, and account for the revenues of the Association;
- in conjunction with the president be the sole member of the Association empowered to sign vouchers except that during the absence of either the president or treasurer, the vice-president shall sign for the absent officer;

C. publish a semi-annual report of income and expenditures.

SECTION 6. If the office of president be vacated after the newly elected officers are duly installed, the vice-president shall immediately succeed to the position. In the event that a vacancy occurs in the office of vice-president, secretary, or treasurer, prior to the end of the first semester of the term in office, a special election shall be held to fill the vacant position. For any vacancy occurring in the second semester of the term of office, the Student Senate shall by two-thirds vote of its entire membership elect a successor to fill the unexpired term. If the president-elect shall vacate his position before being duly installed, a special election shall be held to fill the position.

ARTICLE VI

LEGISLATIVE

SECTION 1. A. The legislative powers of the Association shall be vested in a Student Senate consisting of two representatives from each of the four classes and the executive officers of the Association. Of the representatives of the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore Classes, one representative shall be a member of a social fraternity and one representative shall be an independent.

B. For the purpose of this Article, an independent student shall be one who is not a member or pledge of a social fraternity at Duke University.

C. The Student Senate will meet on call of the president and will meet at least once a semester.

D. The Student Senate shall have the power to charter, to supervise, to regulate, and to determine the status of all men's student campus clubs and organizations; to impeach any elective or judicial officer of the Association on the grounds of malfeasance, misfeasance, or nonfeasance in office on the concurrence of at least two-thirds of the entire membership of the Student Senate; to enact regulations pertaining to elections held at the direction of the Student Senate; and such laws, statutes, rules, and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry into effect the provisions of this constitution and to afford the members of the Association effective student government.

E. Any student or representative of a student group shall have the right to appear at any regular meeting of the Student Senate to present, for the Student Senate's consideration, matters of campus-wide interest.

F. In the event that a vacancy occurs in the Student Senate prior to the end of the first semester in office, a special election shall be held to fill the vacant position. For any vacancy occurring in the second semester of the term of office, the Student Senate shall by two-thirds vote of its entire membership elect a successor to fill the unexpired term.

SECTION 2. A. The President of the Men's Student Government Association shall call at the direction of the Student Senate the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Independent Dormitory Council, and the Freshman Council into joint session to consider matters of campus-wide interest which the Student Senate feels are of sufficient importance to require such widespread campus representation. The President of the Association shall preside over this joint session. When acting in joint session the Council shall act as one body.

B. Decisions and actions of this joint session shall be considered by, though in no way binding upon, the Student Senate in the execution of its legislative functions.

C. At the discretion of the Student Senate, the President of the Association may forward relevant business to the individual councils for action.

ARTICLE VII

ELECTION

SECTION 1. The elective positions of the Men's Student Government Association shall be: the president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the Association and the members of the Student Senate.

SECTION 2. All elective positions shall be held for a term of one year or until the successors to the elective positions are elected and installed.

SECTION 3. With the exception of first semester freshmen, no person shall be eligible to be a candidate for or to hold any executive, legislative, or judicial position or class office, elective or appointive, unless such person shall have compiled an overall "C" average, and retention of such office is conditioned upon the maintenance of an overall "C" average.

ARTICLE VIII

JUDICIARY

(The Judiciary, covered by Article 8, remains essentially as it is now.)

ARTICLE IX

AMENDMENT

SECTION 1. This constitution may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the total membership of the Student Senate.

ARTICLE X

RATIFICATION

SECTION 1. This Constitution shall go into effect when ratified by a two-thirds vote in the existing Legislature and a majority of the votes cast in a referendum of the student body of Trinity College and the College of Engineering and when signed by the President of Duke University.

SECTION 2. Until the installation of the new officers of the Men's Student Government Association, the present governmental structure shall be used in the execution of the functions of the Association.

Scholarship Finalists To Vie This Weekend

Scholarship finalists from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia will compete here this weekend for Angier B. Duke Memorial Prizes and Duke Regional Scholarships.

The contestants will be tested and interviewed to determine the winners at this eleventh annual finalists meeting. There will be a luncheon honoring the contestants Friday at 12:15. Friday afternoon will be taken up with tests.

A dinner in the Union Ballroom will follow at 6 p.m. That night they will be guests at the Duke Players presentation of Volpone, and at a Flowers Building reception at 10 p.m.

Saturday morning the contestants will have interviews beginning at 8 a.m. A Student Union open house and a concert by the Duke Ambassadors will fill Saturday morning. A luncheon at 12:30 in the Union Ballroom will close the program.

East Campus Junior Class Gives 'Jazz Mad' Concert

"Jazz Mad," an informal jazz concert sponsored by the East Campus junior class, will begin Saturday, March 8, at 2 p.m.

The East Campus junior class has arranged to have four combos on hand for the occasion. The concert, which will be held in the East Campus Gym, is to be informal. Bermudas will be worn, and those who attend should bring blankets and cushions to sit on the main floor of the Gym.

Ken Jolls will lead a group from the Duke Ambassadors, consisting of five pieces, which will play Dixieland. Jim Crisp, from Durham, will bring a piano, bass, and drum trio. In this group, the piano will be featured, and the music will be similar to that played by Errol Garner or Don Shirley.

Hubert Shearon, who was previously a student at N. C. State, will bring a combo of four, from his group "The Five Sharps."

There will be one other combo, led by Frank Wilson of U.N.C., which will play progressive jazz. Cold drinks and doughnuts are to be sold in the lobby of the gym during the concert.

Tickets to "Jazz Mad" are $40 each. They will be sold this week on East Campus in the Union, on West Campus at the bus stop or at the Dope Shop, and at the door to East Campus Gym before the concert.

Committee chairman for "Jazz Mad" are Betsy Day, in charge of publicity; Kay Howard, in charge of the program; Loretta Boswell, in charge of tickets; and Betsy Goldman, in charge of food.

Air Force Recruits

Captain Wister B. Traynham, Commander of Air Force recruiting activities in eastern North Carolina, will be in the Union lobby today and tomorrow.

Also with the team will be Captain Anne Bacheson, Air Force Nurse Procurement Officer, who will be in the Hanes House lobby tomorrow afternoon.

Dodge To Give First-Hand Impressions Of 'Soviet Education: A Challenge To America' Tonight In Chemistry Building At 8

Recently returned from Russia, Dr. Homer L. Dodge will give his first-hand impressions of "Soviet Education: A Challenge to America" tonight at 8 p.m. in the Chemistry lecture room.

Dodge, president emeritus of Norwich University, recently completed an extensive trip into the Soviet Union where he made the first and only thorough on-the-spot study of the Russian educational system by an American since World War II.

Accompanied by his son, Dodge visited several universities, engineering colleges and technical schools, plus teachers college and a secondary school. He visited classrooms and laboratories and talked with teachers and administrators.

"It is disturbing," Dodge has lamented, "to find how extremely well planned and organized the Soviet system is."

"The Soviet educational system is being successfully used as a powerful tool in building a Soviet Union strong economically, politically, and militarily," Dodge has declared.

Dodge is speaking here under the auspices of Sigma Pi Sigma and Sigma Xi. Dodge was associated with the University of Oklahoma for 25 years, where he developed the department of physics and the graduate school and also founded and directed the research institute.

He has served as the first president of the American Association of Physics Teachers and received its Oersted Medal for distinguished services in the field.

During World War II Dodge was responsible for recruiting and placing the nation's scientists in atomic projects and other vital civilian and military jobs. He has written numerous articles for publications such as the New York Times and the Scientific American.

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 2

Though this column is intended solely as a vehicle for well-tempered drollery, the makers of Marlboro have agreed to let me use this space from time to time for a short lesson in science. They are the most decent and obliging of men, the makers of Marlboro, as anyone can tell from sampling their product. Only from bounteous hearts could come such a lot to like—such filter, such flavor, such flip-top box. The filter works; the flavor pleases; the box protects. Who can resist such a winning combination? Surely not I.

Today let us take up the science of medicine, which was invented in 1066 by a Greek named Hippocrates. He soon gathered around him a group of devoted disciples whom he called "doctors." The reason he called them "doctors" was that they spent all their time sitting around the dock and shooting the breeze. In truth, there was little else for them to do because disease was not invented until 1477.

After that, doctors became very busy, but it must be admitted that their knowledge of medicine was lamentably meagre. They knew only one treatment—a change of climate. For example, a French doctor would send all his patients to Switzerland. A Swiss doctor, on the other hand, would send all his patients to France. By 1789 the entire population of France was living in Switzerland, and vice versa. This later became known as the Black Tom Explosion.

Not until 1924 did medicine, as we know it, come into being. In that year in the little Bavarian village of Pago-Pago an elderly physician named Winko Sigafos discovered the hot water bottle. He was, of course, burned as a witch, but his son Lydia, disguised as a linotype, made his way to America where he invented the Mayo Brothers.

Medicine, as it is taught at your very own college, can be divided roughly into two classifications. There is internal medicine, which is the treatment of interns, and external medicine, which is the treatment of externs.

Diseases also fall into two broad categories—chronic and acute. Chronic disease is, of course, inflammation of the chron, which can be mighty painful, believe you me! Last summer my cousin Haskell was stricken with a chron attack while he was out picking up tinfoil, and it was months before the wretched boy could straighten up. In fact, even after he was cured, Haskell continued to walk around bent over double. This went on for several years before Dr. Caligari, the lovable old country practitioner who treats Haskell, discovered that Haskell had his trousers buttoned to his vest.

Two years ago Haskell had Addison's disease. (Addison, curiously enough, had Haskell's.) Poor Haskell catches everything that comes along. Lovable old Dr. Caligari once said to him, "Son, I guess you are what they call a natural born catcher."

"The joke is on you, Doc," replied Haskell. "I am a third baseman." He thereupon fell into such a fit of giggling that the doctor had to put him under sedation, where he is to this day.

But I digress. We were discussing medicine. I have now told you all I can; the rest is up to you. Go over to your med school and poke around. Bring popcorn and watch an operation. X-ray each other. Contribute to the bone bank . . . And remember, medicine can be fun!

Devilfish Make Strong Showing Behind Carolina In ACC Swim Championships

Five second place finishes and five third place finishes, plus eight other entries among the top six in each event gave the Duke swimming team a strong showing in the ACC three-day meet held this past weekend in Chapel Hill at the UNC pool.

Although there were no team point scores, the Chronicle's unofficial score gave Duke second place among the eight schools. Awarding six points for first, five for second, etc., Duke piled up a total of 87 points, second behind UNC's 109. The rest of the conference scores were: Maryland, 58; N. C. State, 51½; Virginia, 15; Clemson, 14; Wake Forest, 6½; and South Carolina 6.

The closest that Duke came to a first place was in the 50-freestyle, where sprinter Steve Young finished inches behind UNC's defending champion Bill Roth.

Young also placed third in the 100-freestyle.

Guy Langer swam to a third in the 1500 meter and a third in the 220 freestyle.

Ed Elsey picked up ribbons in three events, the best effort of any of the Devilfish. Elsey finished fourth in the 200-backstroke, second in the 200-individual medley, and fourth in the 100-backstroke.

Emmett Pace and Steve Hough were the only other swimmers to place in two events. Pace was third in the 200-backstroke and third in the 100-backstroke.

Hough came in sixth in the 200-butterfly and fifth in the 100-butterfly.

Bob Weaver finished fifth in the 200-butterfly.

Gary Dickinson came in third in the 50-freestyle, and Rick Morgan finished fifth in the 200-breaststroke.

Distance swimmer Bruce Soule, who picked up quite a few first place finishes in the 440-freestyle in dual meets, finished second to UNC's triple-winner Tony Schiffman.

In the relay races, Duke was a brides-maid twice to the speedy UNC team. Pace, Pickens, Hough, and Soule were Duke's entries in the 400-medley, while the 400-freestyle had Dickinson, Elsey, Pace, and Young.

The swimmers will get a two-week rest before resuming action. Their next appearance will be in the Eastern Intercollegiate.

The fine showing in the conference, both in dual meets and in the individual championships, was the best that Duke has ever done in the ACC.

The Devilfish posted a 9-2 record in dual meets, which, percentage-wise, is the best record that any Duke sports team has had this season. It also was quite an improvement over the 6-5 record of last year. In the conference, Duke was 6-1, which was good for second place. Last year Duke was tied for second in the conference with a 5-2 record.

Losses in dual meets this year were suffered at the hands of UNC and Navy. Victories were over conference opponents N. C. State, Maryland, Virginia, Clemson, Wake Forest, and South Carolina, along with non-conference wins over Georgia Tech, Rutgers, and The Citadel. Both losses were away from home, so the swimmers were undefeated at home.

Wrestlers Lose Match To Maryland

The Duke varsity wrestling team finished the season with a 3-3 record Friday night when they bowed to Maryland's undefeated conference champions by a 32-0 score.

It was the worst defeat that Duke has suffered this year, but it was the unpenitent shutout that the Terp powerhouse has administered. Maryland has never lost a conference match, and has won the ACC title every year.

Three Duke wrestlers, 147-pound Ken LaBone, 167-pound Sam Menefee, and heavyweight Larry Speer went into the match undefeated. These three men and co-captain Bill Meffert, in the 157-pound class, were the most consistent winners for the Duke team this season. Ronnie Kaufman, a 130-pounder, and Rick Carr, in the 123-pound flyweight class were other regulars who saw action in every meet. The 137-pound and the 177-pound classes were mixed up due to injuries before and during the season. George Esposito, the first man in the 137-pound class last year, was injured before the season and saw no action. Roger Kempler, the number one man in the 177-pound class, messed up his knee during the season, and was not in top form the whole year.

What's it like to be with IBM?

First of all, what does an Applied Science Representative do? In John Jackson's own words, "I work constantly with key executives of the many and varied customers served by IBM in the territory for which I am responsible, advising them on the use of their electronic data processing machines. I consult with these customers, analyze their scientific and technical problems for solution with IBM machines. Occasionally, I write papers and give talks and demonstrations on electronic computing. All in all, it's pretty fascinating . . ." In other words, he is a full-fledged computing expert, a consultant . . . and a very important person in this coming age of automation through electronics.

A consulting sales job

During the three years that John Jackson has spent with IBM as an Applied Science Representative, he has guided innumerable customers to new and better ways of doing things with electronic computers.

Consulting with top executives

For example, a leading aircraft manufacturer wanted to experiment with a radically different design for a nuclear reactor. Although the basic format had been established, the project still required many months of toil with mathematical equations. The aircraft people decided that they couldn't afford to wait that long, so they called on IBM. After consultation with top executives, John Jackson helped to map out a computer program that saved the organization over 100 days of pencil-chewing arithmetic. Later, for this same company, he organized the establishment of computer systems for aircraft performance predictions and for data reduction of wind tunnel tests. At the same time, he worked with this company's own employees, training them in the use of IBM equipment. He remains in touch with this customer to assist with new studies and problems as they develop.

A new field for the mathematician—IBM computers

Why did John Jackson decide to join IBM? Today, he is exercising his mathematical know-how in a field that was practically unheard of ten years ago. Even now, this kind of work may be news to you. It was to him a few years back when he was an undergraduate at the University of Colorado. At that time, he was considering mathematical research. But he liked the excitement and diversification of business and industry, and he wanted to use his mathematical background in that area. It was not until he was interviewed by IBM that he became aware of this new field for mathematicians. A few months later, he began his career as an Applied Science trainee.

Mathematician John B. Jackson, like many other mathematicians, engineers and physicists, came to IBM directly from graduate school. Today, an Applied Science Representative, he reviews his progress and tells how he uses his math background in a new field.

John Jackson has progressed rapidly since he joined the Company. He's now the Washington representative operating with one of IBM's key Divisions, Military Products, in the Washington, D. C., office. With his wife Katherine, daughter Lisa, and John, Jr., he enjoys life in the nation's capital.

Discussing a mathematics problem

Interesting and challenging responsibilities, plus the knowledge that he is making a substantial contribution in a rapidly expanding area of IBM that is important to the Company and to the nation, assure John Jackson that he is moving along a road of real future opportunities.

This profile is just one example of what it's like to be with IBM. There are excellent opportunities for well-qualified college men in Research, Development, Manufacturing, Sales and Applied Science. Duke's "Flaming Five" In ACC—Jim Newcome, Paul Schmidt, Bob Vernon, Bucky Allen, and Bobby Joe Harris

Pretzel Says: McGuire Is A Poor Sport; Fans' Enthusiasm Is Good

By FRANK PREISSE
Chronicle Sports Editor

Frank "Sportsman" (Ha, ha!) McGuire put on quite a display in the Indoor Stadium Friday night. The black-headed Irishman has labeled himself, in our opinion, as a first-rate poor sport. His conduct at the game was no credit to the University of North Carolina.

Although we were too far from the UNC bench to see and hear all that McGuire did, we were amazed at the first-hand reports of his actions. The gestures and words he used have no place on a basketball court, or off of it for that matter.

Splitting Harvey Salz and hatchet-man Lee Shaffer are prime examples of McGuire's sportsmanship. All season long McGuire has been crying about the bad treatment that his boys have received from the crowds. We really feel sorry for them. Poor little boys. Ted Williams takes the boos and hits .388. He's a man. It seems obvious that Carolina players aren't yet men.

We were talking to coach Hal Bradley about this so-called crowd disturbance. He said that he didn't mind the boos. Bradley felt that they should make the players try even harder to play their best. No, Hal doesn't worry too much about the fans. He just coaches. And he's doing a heck of a good job. Maybe if McGuire stopped moaning about the crowds and about what a great team he would have if Joe Quigg hadn't broken his leg, UNC might play a little better ball.

Yes, in our opinion Frank McGuire is a poor sport. It's a shame that he allowed some of his boys to perform in the manner they did Friday night. He allowed Salz, Shaffer, and Cunningham to perform beyond the bounds of good sportsmanship. We just hope that Brennan, Kearns, and Keady don't begin to follow their examples. There is no doubt that Brennan and Kearns are very good ball players. They can only hurt themselves by following Friday night's example.

We have always thought that a healthy rivalry between UNC and Duke was a good thing. But there is no place for this type of play in the rivalry.

One more thing before we move on to something cleaner. When McGuire refused to let his boys go to the dressing room after the game, and then finally went in under a police escort, he definitely slighted both the Duke students and Administration. By implying that the Duke students would stoop to brawl with his players, he once again lowered himself in our opinion. We don't think that Duke students, no matter how excited they get, would lose their self-control and start a free-for-all with players from an opposing team.

It's amazing how this basketball season has affected the usually staid Duke fans. Even coach Hal Bradley has dropped his quiet appearance on several occasions. Bradley has probably been up off the bench more times this season than the past three put together. During the West Virginia game, he argued with a ref for at least ten minutes. In the four years that we have been here, we had never seen Hal do anything like that before. And since that game, he has been on his feet innumerable times during the season. While he isn't exactly the jumping jacks that Bones McKinney and Everett Case are, his enthusiasm is indicative of the change in the team this year. No longer is Duke a team of individuals, but a fighting club spurred by team ball players.

And as far as the change in the fans goes, how often have you seen Duke students writing letters to the newspapers, or a football coach sounding off about an opposing basketball coach. Congratulations to Tom Ferrall, Bill Kroman, Carroll Betty, and coach Bill Murray. We hope that this kind of spirit lasts for many years. If it does, Duke will always have winning teams, for when a fighting team with the material that Duke has, whether it be football or basketball, knows that the students and administration are behind it, it won't lose very often.

Those last-second timeouts are tremendous. Bobby Joe Harris is really giving Frank McGuire a taste of his own medicine. McGuire doesn't like it, but we do.

Duke racked up a great record against the other members of the Big Four in all winter sports. The swimming team and the wrestling team both lost to UNC while defeating Wake Forest and N. C. State. The freshman basketball team beat Wake and UNC four times, while losing twice to State. The varsity whipped State, Wake, and UNC in every conference game, while losing to UNC and beating Wake in the Dixie Classic. That's a record of 19-5. Not bad at all.

Devils Play Deacs Thursday

By ART SANTO-DOMINGO

IM Basketball Ends

Intramural basketball season is moving into its final week as the standings begin to jell for the playoff games. The playoffs are expected to get underway either the last of this week or the beginning of next week.

The playoff setup will probably be similar to that of last year. If this is the case, the schedule will look like this: first round byes to winners of the first five divisions, with the winners of the last six divisions playing three games in order to make an eight-team field for the quarter finals.

Entries for volleyball and badminton were supposed to be turned in by last Saturday. These sports will begin as soon as basketball is finished.

On Friday the Chronicle will carry complete standings of all the basketball divisions.

More Sports On Page 7

Entering the ACC tourney first seeded after a great triumph over Frank McGuire and his Tarheels, the Blue Devils meet Wake Forest in the first round at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

The Deacons fell to the Devils thrice during the season, once in the Dixie Classic and twice in conference play, but coach Bones McKinney's men have a history behind them of being tough in the post-season tournament. The Baptists have never been beaten in the first round of the get-together in Raleigh.

In the other pairings UNC, which lost the draw for second place to State, goes against Clemson, the same club they belted in last year's first round, at 2 p.m., State takes on South Carolina at 4 p.m., and fourth seeded Maryland tangles with Virginia at 9:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Should the Devils win, they will meet the winner of the Maryland-Virginia tussle on Friday night at 7:30. The other two survivors, probably State and Carolina, go at 9:30. The final game will be played on Saturday night at 8 p.m.

If N. C. State gains the finals, the Wolfpack opponent would automatically be the conference representative in the NCAA tournament which begins in New York on March 11. The Wolfpack, playing on its home court, will have a big advantage, but is ineligible for the NCAA playoffs because of the Jackie Moreland incident.

If the Blue Devils are to win, they have their work cut out for them. Entrance has a lot to do in the final outcome. The Flaming Five likely will need help from the bench in putting out 100 per cent for three nights in succession.

Friday night's win over UNC could provide momentum that can carry the Dukes through the weekend for all the chips.

As things stand, the Dukes are in the right bracket. Either State or Carolina, two of the toughies, will be knocked out before the final game. However, any team could rise up and take the bid to the NCAA by virtue of a few hot nights on the Reynolds Coliseum hardwood.

Blue Devil Trackmen Take Third In ACC Behind Terps, Tarheels

By RICK WALTER

Participating without the services of sprinter Dave Sime, the Duke University varsity track team captured third place in the fifth annual ACC Indoor Championship Games held at Chapel Hill last Saturday.

Sime, who was held out by track coach Bob Chambers because of a "muscle twinge," will resume action in the spring outdoor meets.

Big Dave might have made the difference between a second and third place finish but Maryland's mighty array of runners piled up an almost insurmountable total of 532.5 points as compared to Duke's 18½. Even if Sime had captured three first places it would have given the Devils no better than second place in the meet.

The outstanding runner for the Devils was sophomore Cary Weisiger who turned in fine performances against two of the best runners in the country. Cary finished second to Burr Grimm of Maryland in the mile run. Grimm's time was 4:12.5, a new record for the meet. Cary also placed second to Dave Scurlock of UNC in the 880 yard run. Last week Scurlock ran the half mile just 1.3 seconds off the world's indoor record. Tom Bazemore of Duke also gave a fine performance finishing third in the 880 right behind Weisiger.

Another fine performance for the Dukes was turned in by Curt Cobb in the 600 yard run.

Curt set a blazing pace for the first two-thirds of the race but then fell to the unbelievably fine kick of UNC's Scurlock who pulled ahead in the final lap to capture first place with a time of 1:12.7, a new meet record. Cobb finished fourth.

In the broad jump, defending champion Bob Lavery of Duke captured third place while in the high jump Jim Booher of Duke tied for third. In the 600 yard dash Jon Elder of Duke who was apparently hampered by a knee injury, managed to place fourth.

Another fine performance for the Dukes was turned in by Jack Linden who took third place in the 70 yard hurdles. The Duke mile relay team put on a fine effort in the first three legs but succumbed to Maryland's bid in the final lap. The team consisting of Curt Cobb, Tom Mennaker, Tom Bazemore, and Paul Bollman captured second place in the event.

The whole meet belonged to Maryland who had too many good boys in too many events. Outstanding performances by Scurlock and Bishop of UNC in the 600, 880 and two-mile run and the pole-vaulting of Davenport and Roberts of U. Va. along with the high-hurdling of Goodroe of USC and the shot-putting of Coates of USC kept the meet from being a clean sweep by the Terps.

In the freshman events it was pretty much the same story. The finest fresh performance for the Dukes was turned in by Jerry Nourse in the mile run. Jerry was on the heels of Maryland's Frank Colavita all the way but just couldn't match the Maryland boy's tremendous finishing kick. Jerry finished second to Colavita who set a new freshman record with a time of 4:24.1, bettering the old fresh mark set by Duke's Weisiger by a full 5 seconds. In the shot-put Jim Vincent of Duke placed third while the Devil's Ernie Taylor captured a fourth in the 880 yard run. The outstanding freshman record with a time of meet was turned in by Bill Johnson of Maryland who captured first place in the 70 yard high and hurdles. In doing this he bettered the times turned in by the varsity hurdlers in both events by 2 tenths of a second.

But despite being outmanned in every event by the Marylanders, the Devils gave an all out effort and perhaps with the material as well as psychological advantage of having Sime in top shape and competing in three events the Dukes could have given the Terps a run for the money. As it was the Devils showed real promise for the outdoor season which will commence this week.
