AEPhi Leads Sorority Averages for Third Time

By LIZ LENGVEL
Chronicle News Editor

Alpha Epsilon Phi won the Panhellenic scholarship cup for the third straight time with a scholastic average of 2.8987, .0823 lower than last semester.

The cup was presented at the assembly held last night in the Woman's College Auditorium.

Alpha Chi Omega rose from fourth last semester to take second place with an average of 2.7541. Sigma Kappa came up from last to third with 2.7283.

Seven sororities, including Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Sigma Kappa, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, and Alpha Delta Pi, placed above the All-Sorority average of 2.6614. Five sororities topped the Non-Sorority average of 2.6796.

Pro Musica To Give Program Tomorrow In East Auditorium

The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will present a program of early Spanish and Flemish music in the Woman's College Auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p.m., sponsored by the Student Forum.

There will be no advance sale of tickets for the performance. General admission tickets will be available at the door for $1 after 7:30 p.m. Coeds may use Student Forum tickets.

The Pro Musica was set up to revive the musical masterpieces composed before the 18th Century.

Included in its repertoire are English songs and madrigals, music of the Renaissance, Italian Baroque music, medieval music from Spain, Germany and France, and sacred music of the churches of these periods.

The group was founded in 1952 by Noah Greenberg, its director, and five of its members. At present, the Pro Musica consists of six vocalists and four instrumentalists.

Vocalists include a counter-tenor, two sopranos, two tenors and a bass.

The program features such rare instruments as the one-keyed flute, the family of five recorders, the rebo (medieval fiddle) and the harpsichord.

Thiessen Confident After 'Slow Start'

By LEONARD PARDUE
Chronicle News Editor

West's Campus Chest campaign, after getting off to what drive chairman Brian Thiessen called a "slow start," collected pledges and cash totaling $1,274.87 towards a goal of $3,500 by early this morning.

Thiessen said that about half of the 2700 men and women that he hopes his solicitors will contact during the week had been approached by last night.

He attributed the so-called "slow start" to the fact that solicitors were unable to begin collecting until after the Kingston Trio's performance Monday night.

"I have every confidence that we will reach our goal," Thiessen stated. He added that the success of the campaign depended on the work of the solicitors. "It's in their hands," Thiessen commented.

As of 1 a.m. this morning, West freshmen have contributed $446.92 in pledges and cash. Hanes House, contacted for the first time last night, has given $115.70 in pledges and cash.

Contributions from the Men's Graduate Center, also contacted for the first time in the drive last night, were listed as $32.55 in cash and pledges.

Fraternity men have contributed $259.48. Independents have contributed pledges and cash totaling $20.22. This exceeds total independent contributions last year. At least one fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon, boasts a 100 per cent pledge and contribution effort.

Thiessen pointed out that attempts are being made to get several other Durham disk jockeys for the show. He said that the radiothon, which begins at 11 p.m., would remain on the air as long as pledges are phoned in.

Trustees Choose Successors For Three Retiring Members

The Board of Trustees has named two North Carolina businessmen and a clergyman to replace three long-time trustees who have retired from the Board.

Frank O. Sherrills of Charlotte, Thomas F. Southgate Jr. of Winston-Salem, and the Reverend Robert W. Bradshaw of Durham were the men named, President A. Hollis Edens announced yesterday.

They were selected to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of George G. Allen of New York, Dr. W. W. Peele of Laurinburg, and Judge J. P. Frizzell of Snow Hill, all with more than 20 years service on the Board.

Sherrills, president of Selected Foods Inc. and S & W Cafeteria, served for ten years as a director of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce.

Southgate graduated from the University in 1937. He is vice-president, general sales manager, and a company director of the Hanes Knitting Company.

Bradshaw, born in Norfolk, Va., earned an A.B. degree here and an M.A. from Columbia. He became pastor of the Duke Memorial Methodist Church in Durham last July.

Allen, a trustee since 1923, is chairman of the Duke Endowment. He also headed the Duke Endowment building committee when West Campus was built in the late 1920's.

Peele, who served as bishop of the Methodist Church's Richmond area for 14 years, became a trustee in 1921. Frizzell, appointed to the Board in 1937, is a Superior Court Judge.

Marian Rice, Carol Corder Elected To Top YWCA Posts Last Night After Assembly

Marian Rice and Carol Corder were elected president and vice-president respectively of the YWCA after last night's WSGA assembly.

Also elected to 'Y' offices were Lois Elby, secretary, and Mary Kay Sweeney, treasurer.

Mary Madry and Marian Sapp, candidates for president of WSGA, both asked for better communication on campus and respect for the Code of Campus Living in campaign speeches delivered before the assembly.

Refusing to make any rash promises, Mary Madry went on to define the purpose of WSGA, including such points as unifying individuals as a whole, enforcing regulations under its jurisdiction and co-ordinating campus activities as they exist now. She asked for a clarification of the unstated purpose of WSGA and the student's place in it.

In the matter of communication, she proposed utilizing present means and creating new ones whenever possible.

"I would sincerely like to meet the administration on common ground and come to some conclusion as to what are the aims of the Woman's College," she said.

Marian Sapp stressed honesty and responsibility in communication between all segments of the University community, regardless of the forms it takes. She said that misunderstandings between student body and administration and East and West Campus are due to the lack of complete communication.

"There is something good here. We must not allow it to sink in the proverbial whirlpool of social indifference," she said in expressing her desire to make the Code of Campus Living work on East Campus.

Miss Sapp also pointed out to the assembly that "there are some things which cannot, at present, be done" by student

Students For Students

Well fed, clothed and housed, the American university student cannot begin to imagine the conditions under which hundreds of thousands of students the world over are forced to live—if one can call it that—for the sake of a higher education.

It is unconceivable that in Asia, where the problem is particularly acute, students should eke out a grim existence in squalid shacks (such as the one above) lacking heat in subzero weather; that as college students they could subsist on the barest diet of unsanitary food; that 95 per cent of the students in some Oriental countries should have tuberculosis, which will mean death for many if some treatment is not provided; that students in India and other eastern universities should attempt to study science without the benefit of microscopes or textbooks, which simply are not available.

But that such is the case should mean something to the American college student in particular. It is mainly through his interest and contributions that the American Committee of the World University Service is able to contribute significantly to the international efforts of that organization to alleviate the conditions under which students are struggling elsewhere.

The World University Service, which stands to gain 15 per cent of this year's Campus Chest collection ($525), is the sole international organization making a concerted effort to provide students with the means of self-help in areas where it is so desperately needed. This help takes the forms of materials for the construction of tuberculosis clinics which the students build themselves, books, mimeograph machines, scholarship aid for refugees and financial aid for student housing. In every case the beneficiaries raise large sums to match WUS funds.

It is fitting that students should support an organization which in many cases means the difference between life and death for other students, and in some cases means the difference between Communism and self-determination among the world's future leaders. Duke students can support this organization through the Campus Chest this week.

When 'Whammies' Fail

Included on the agenda of tomorrow's Traffic Commission meeting presumably will be a discussion of MSGA's recommendation to prohibit students who are caught speeding over 50 m.p.h. on Myrtle Drive from driving further on University property. We hope that the proposal will be recognized for what it is, a special attempt to punish wanton speeders, and not brushed aside because it fails to mention the 35-50 m.p.h. class of offender.

By mentioning only the 50 m.p.h. violators, MSGA is not suggesting that it is all right to drive up to this speed. The assumption, right or wrong, is that current enforcement methods, if used sufficiently, will control the "average" speeders. MSGA is only asking the Commission to enact more stringent measures against the worst offenders, who are not deterred by "whammies."

We hope that the Commission will realize MSGA's intention and then accept the challenge to control Myrtle better.

THE GLOBAL SPOTLIGHT

Future of Cyprus Still Clouded

Edited by HELENE MILLAR

The agreements of recent weeks founding the independent Republic of Cyprus are thought by some to have ended a serious threat to Western security by healing a split in NATO. Others feel, however, that it may be only the beginning of further trouble unless the first president of the new republic is a sufficiently enough administrator to safeguard against future intervention of the well-organized Communist party there.

The independence agreements resulted from a conference during the first week of February at Zurich between Prime Ministers Konstantin Karamanlis of Greece and Adnan Menderes of Turkey along with their foreign ministers. The new republic is to have a Greek Cypriot president and a Turkish Cypriot vice-president. In the new legislative chamber, the Greeks would hold 70 per cent of the seats, the Turks 30 per cent. Britain would be allowed to keep her bases. Independence is to be guaranteed by a treaty.

The following week the proposals were taken to London and placed before the British, Archbishop Makarios, the Greek Cypriot leader, and Dr. Fazil Kutchuk, Turkish Cypriot leader. General satisfaction was evidenced in the initialing of the cover document by Prime Minister Macmillan and Premier Menderes and Karamanlis.

Thus ended four years of conflict between Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots and the British. The "crisis" is officially dated from April 1, 1955, when a series of very damaging explosions were set off by one faction to begin their campaign for union with Greece. Actually this had been the Greek policy since 1953 or 1954, but now it was adopted by the Greek Cypriots themselves.

Turkey opposed this policy on the basis of the 1923 Treaty of Lausanne, which recognized British annexation of Cyprus. If there was to be any change of hands they felt Cyprus should be returned to its former owner—Turkey. As the Greek movement gained in strength and terror, the Turkish position changed and until the agreement on February 11, they stood for partition of the island.

Britain offered Cyprus constitutional reforms in the summer of 1954 but was determined to keep her sovereignty. And so, the agreement of early February shows a compromise on the part of all three factions.

The gravest danger of the Cyprus crisis was that to the broader Western alliance, NATO. That aggression against one member is aggression against all appears ridiculous when two subscribers to this pact are on the verge of war. Now, if the terms of the settlement are carried out, strength will have been restored to a vital part of Western defense, as well as peace to an explosive part of the world.

Of special importance to NATO are the British bases on Cyprus, a spot whose strategic value has vastly increased since the withdrawal of British forces from the Suez Canal Zone. Although the bases are not NATO bases as such, their remaining in the hands of one of its members would presumably make them usable for those purposes.

In addition, the settlement represents an important victory for Western diplomacy. It has deprived the Soviet of a ready-made trouble spot in an important area and has demonstrated the ability of free peoples to give large interests precedence over lesser ones. Only time will tell whether execution of the plan will be effective enough to continue the triumph.

'Oedipus Rex'

By GARY TABOR

Unique in presentation and dynamic in force is the screen version of Sophocles' Oedipus Rex. Using the techniques of modern photography, director Tyrone Guthrie has filmed the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespearean Festival Production of the powerful tragedy which was written in 254 B. C.

In the Festival Production, youthful and ambitious Guthrie chose to present the play as it might originally have been presented before an Athenian audience at a spring Dionysian festival. As to the success of this experimental venture, Thornton Wilder comments: "It brings us nearer than any performance I have ever seen to a realization of what Greek theater was."

Oedipus Rex is the story of a man who is born in the House of Thebes, upon which the Gods have placed a curse. For the transgressions of his ancestors, Oedipus must be punished. Despite efforts to elude the effectuation of the infallible decree, Oedipus fulfills the prophecy that he would kill his father and marry his mother.

It is with the revelation of his patricide and his incestuous sin, committed unwittingly, that this tragedy of darkness and light primarily is concerned. In seeking out the murderer of his wife's former husband, King Oedipus, with the weight of evidence grown too heavy, tips the scale ironically to himself. It is then Oedipus can feel the excruciating pressure of the vice of fate, in which his soul is relentlessly caught.

Nosce te ipsum. Man must learn to know himself and, to gain this knowledge, he must suffer. Oedipus' suffering is symbolized by a self-inflicted blindness. Through his loss of external vision, Oedipus gains internal insight.

With this film production of Oedipus Rex, the audience is dazzled by the unique mode of presentation. Accustomed to naturalistic realism of the modern play, one must adjust himself to the conventions of the ancient Greek theater. The simplicity of the set, the use of masks, and the presence of a chorus are foreign elements to the contemporary viewer, and unless he is made aware of these conventions and their function, his appreciation of the film will be marred.

Adding to the power of the Sophoclean tragedy is the high caliber of performances given

YOUNG IDEAS

In Defense of

By JOHN YOUNG

The annual invasion of the Angier B. Duke finalists will occur this weekend at which high school seniors from all over the South competing for the $4,000 prize.

Many students, in drawing comparisons between the Duke scholarship awards and the Morehead scholarships of UNC, frequently express the opinion that the Morehead scholar is a better representative of his school. That is to say, that a Morehead scholar is a better example of the "all-around man" than is the average Angier B. Duke scholar, who may be an excellent student, but who is not an athlete of some worth and a leader in student affairs.

But the "grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence," and such an argument would be hard to prove or disprove. Therefore, a more accurate comparison between — and a more accurate evaluation of — the two coveted scholarship prizes should be made in the light of the basic facts of the total scholarship program of the two schools.

Last week, 47 high school seniors were offered Morehead scholarships worth $5,000 each. UNC has expressed hopes that someday they will be able to offer 100 such awards annually. Duke gives away each year 26 $4,000 scholarships. These prizes are offered to students throughout the South mainly, but six national scholarships are also available. There are six scholarships for men in North Carolina; three for women in North Carolina; two regionals for men in South Carolina; two scholarships at large for men in North and South Carolina; one at large for women in North Carolina; two regionals in Virginia, one of which includes the District of Columbia and two countries in Maryland; one regional each for Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, and one for West Virginia and Kentucky combined. The three national scholarships for men and three for women are also included.

On the surface, it looks as if the Morehead is a far better scholarship program. But a closer look reveals that it is somewhat inferior. In the first place, the Moreheads do not reach as large a cross section of the country, as do the Duke scholarships. And in the second place, the secondary scholarship program of Duke is far superior to the one at Carolina. Our school's entire scholarship program involves $800,000 a year. We have a tremendous program for aiding those high school seniors who do not quite win a full scholarship, but who unquestionably need financial assistance.

In other words, if the Duke scholarship committee did not feel the need for an adequate secondary scholarship program, which is very vital to any successful scholarship program, all the money could be employed to establish one large scholarship fund comparable to the Morehead in quantity and quality.

And may I add, as an afterthought, that it is hoped by this columnist that those men who will select the winners this weekend, will follow the advice of the scholarship committee and select the men who have "done well in two or three things, and who have an excellent academic record," and not judge solely on the basis of the College Boards and the Ohio State Psychological test.

MSGA Handles L&M Tickets

By BOB WINDELER

Tickets for the annual Liggett and Myers Show will be distributed in the MSGA office tomorrow and Friday between 2 and 5 p.m.

Students must present their identification cards and are limited to only one ticket, announced Carl Wolfson, assistant to the president of MSGA.

"There are only 1500 of these complimentary tickets and when they are gone, that will be it," Wolfson added. Only a very few are available for the evening performance; most of the tickets distributed to University students will be for the afternoon performance.

The show, which will be presented next Tuesday at 3 and 9:15 p.m. in the Indoor Stadium will feature vocalists Jimmie Rogers and Molly Bee, pianist Roger Williams, and comedian Dick Shawn. James Arness, star of television's Gunsmoke, will also make an appearance.

Comic singers Homer and Jethro and the Mattison Trio Dancers are the latest addition to the show. Homer and Jethro, RCA recording artists, specialize in parodying big hits. The Mattison Trio features modern jazz-tap dancing.

Les Elgart's orchestra will provide the musical background for the show as well as do several solo numbers. Elgart's orchestra last played here for Joe College Weekend in 1956.

Rodgers has made several gold records including "Honeycomb" and "Kisses Sweeter than Wine." His latest record is "Because You're Young."

Williams, a pianist who plays both classical and popular music, became famous almost overnight with "Autumn Leaves," which sold over three million records. He has accumulated nine gold records.

No announcement of a program has been made. The show is an annual affair sponsored by the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company and the Durham Merchants Association.

'Joe College in Movieland' Picked as Theme; Floats Will Depict Year's Popular Movies

"Joe College in Movieland" will be the theme of this spring's big weekend, Roif Towse, Joe College steering committee chairman, revealed today.

Colorful floats, designed by fraternities and sororities, will depict themes of the year's popular movies, Towse said.

Mary Lynn Moody was elected steering committee secretary and Chuck Kuebler appointed arrangements chairman at Friday's steering committee meeting.

Kuebler will appoint parade, box-lunch, publicity, program, and various sub-committee chairmen sometime next week.

Deadline for float entries has not been definitely set, Towse stated, but will be announced within a week and a half. After arrangements have been confirmed, an announcement will be made concerning the warehouse in which the floats will be constructed.

Towse added that the parade will begin at 3 p.m. Friday, May 1, and that the route may be changed so that the parade will proceed through the downtown business section. Arrangements concerning the final parade route will be discussed with the police department.

The Athletic Association has arranged for a home tennis match to be played during the weekend, Towse said.

by the Stratford Players. Most outstanding, in the demanding role of Oedipus, is Douglas Campbell.

Other superior aspects of the film are the artistically enhancing masks, designed by Tanya Moiseiwitsch and Jacqueline Cundall, and the photography of Roger Barlow, with its appropriately muted tones of Eastman color.

No screenplay has been especially written for the motion picture. The English version of William B. Yeats is used, and with it is gained a stronger sense of the sacrificial and ritual characteristics which were central to the ancient religious festivals.

Oedipus Rex, which is being shown this evening and Saturday evening in Page Auditorium, demands your attendance. It is a dramatic experience which no person at all interested in the theater can afford to miss.

At the Wash Duke

Singers Empty Souls--And A Pitcher

By MARY RHAMSTINE
Chronicle Feature Editor

Just knock three times and you're admitted to Room 209 of the illustrious Wash Duke to see the casually collegiate Kingston Trio sitting calmly on the end of the bed during a broadcast for WDNC.

Nick Reynolds, short, brown hair and most talkative gives a delay and the radio audience a sales talk on their newest album. "It has one great song on the California gamblers who go down to Tiajuana to play, 'Tiajuana Jail,' 'Si, Si, Si,' the group comments.

The trio plus three, bass player, Buckwheat, ("he's the funniest character"), their road manager and pilot arrived in Durham Sunday night late, when "nothing much was shakin'," adds blond Dave Guard.

With the radio man gone, the group hits upon the idea of a pitcher in the Tavern and offer to have the interview there. This is living.

Pete Sterner, their road manager, Reynolds and Bob Shane proceed with you while Guard excuses himself to sack before the show that evening.

STANFORD PHI DELT

Relaxed and in their element, Reynolds gives a little background. Raised in Honolulu, Shane and Guard were both from service families and in the same high school. While Guard went on to Stanford where he was a Phi Delt, Shane went to Menlo Business school and graduated with Reynolds in 1956 when Guard also graduated.

"We're from the only place in the world, man!" Shane comments when talking about the West Coast, home to the Trio. Reynolds lives in Sausalito on a houseboat. "We're very good friends with many beatniks," he tells, "not the phonies." He goes on to add that many of the beatniks are talented, but successful.

Shane alone remains single, but plans to get married this year and then "probably move to the coast."

"We like to play colleges more than anything else... You get a sort of intellectual association... Our music isn't too intellectual," and Reynolds explains the reason for the stiff one night stands they play so much.

AT STATESVILLE TODAY

Davidson on Tuesday and on to Statesville today. "It's Tom Dooley Day in Statesville," Shane tells and adds that Dooley was a "genuine North Carolina born and died in Statesville." "We'll dance around his grave or something gory."

"The ultimate plan is to work colleges four months, Europe once a year... night clubs as to fit in the schedule... and three months vacation," Reynolds muses hopefully.

A tour in Australia is definite for December, while their first trip to Europe is not set. "A goodwill State Department tour, like Satchmo made, really looks good," Reynolds explains.

Success is still new to the Trio and so is their Twin-Beech plane. "We've only had it a month... don't know how we'll divide it up on vacation," notes Reynolds.

The Trio separates when on vacation, and the tours, when they are constantly together, are mostly work. Reynolds comments, "It's like being married with none of the advantages."

AMAZED AT INCOME

Records opened up the entire circuit of college concerts which "we could play all the time." Amazed at the little work and good income from their records and albums, Reynolds tells, "The last took four days to record... I like

The Show Goes On... And On

After Monday night's Kingston Trio concert most of the audience went home, but the KAs, and anyone else that knew about it, entertained the singers at a "party" in Hope Valley. Using a repertoire that likely will never be put on wax, the singers entertained the fraternity until the wee hours of the morning and enjoyed themselves at the same time. There was no report as to whether or not the trio made it to Davidson last night.

Model World's Fair, Vanguard To Highlight Engineers' Show

EDWARDS

A model of the United States Brussels World's Fair pavilion and Vanguard satellite models will highlight the annual Engineers' Show March 20 and 21 in the College of Engineering.

Bill Edwards, a senior EE, is chairman of this year's show. The civil engineering wing is building the World's Fair model for display at the show. Other CE exhibits include a miniature operating canal lock.

Vanguard satellite models along with an operating closed circuit television system and the Navy's most modern space suit will be features of the electrical engineers' displays.

The closed-circuit TV system will be an Engineering Show "first."

The mechanical engineers are constructing a display which will demonstrate a pulse jet. The display will include measurements of the jet's acceleration. The ME's will also present a model air-glide automobile.

Publicity co-chairmen Tom Taylor pointed out that last year's show drew more than 9,000 spectators, making it, he said, one of the spring's top attractions here.

Dick MacEwen, Carroll Beatty, and Jack Dinwoodie are chairmen of the civil, mechanical, and electrical engineering wings respectively. The show will be open from 2 to 10 p.m. both days. There is no admission charge.

Traffic Commission Expected To Consider New Myrtle Drive Regulations Tomorrow

The Traffic Commission is expected to consider the MSGA proposed regulations concerning travel on Myrtle Drive tomorrow at its meeting.

Dr. Herbert J. Herring, vice-president in the division of student life and chairman of the commission, said that he expects the proposed regulations to be discussed, time permitting.

The first Senate recommendation stipulates that students lose the privilege of driving on University property if arrested by the Durham Police for speeding in excess of fifty miles an hour. Though the speed limit of 35 miles an hour would still be enforced, the Senate is requesting that students be denied registration privileges for one semester in addition to the Durham Police Department fine.

The second proposal calls for a parking ban on both sides of Myrtle Drive between West Campus and East Campus. The Senate's final recommendation seeks equal treatment to students, faculty, and staff.

Earlier in the week, Herring was not sure exactly how the Traffic Commission would take up the Senate's proposals.

A proposal that traffic lights be installed on Myrtle Drive has also been mentioned. The Senate, however, took no action on this point.

Only Texas has more farms than North Carolina, and North Carolina has the largest rural population of any state.

Scoring big with slick ideas

like the Electronic Secretary* answering unit, product of America's second largest telephone system

Your phone is always "tended" when an Electronic Secretary unit is on your "line." For it answers calls in your absence and takes messages as well.

Here's how it works. When your phone rings, a recorded voice informs the caller that you are out—and invites him to leave his name, number and any information he wishes you to have.

When you return—or when you phone in—all calls are repeated to you word for word. Results no more "missed" messages, no more lost business, no more worrying about leaving the phone untended any hour of the day or night.

This is just one of many ways Gen Tel is adding new dimensions to telephone communication. We know that, in an America which is expanding fast on all fronts, it is imperative to expand both telephone service and telephone versatility.

And we're meeting the challenge by developing new products and better methods for bringing more and more people together.

House Counselors Demmin, Wright Discuss Current Problems With WSGA Council

Two house counselors from East, Miss Millicent Demmin of Aycock House and Mrs. Olive Wright of Giles House, met with the WSGA Executive Council Monday night to discuss the problems currently facing the WSGA.

Council members felt that the basic problem is the lack of communication with the Administration, and they asked the two house counselors what suggestions they had for steps toward improvement of this situation.

Miss Demmin and Mrs. Wright expressed the idea that work should begin in an area in which the council could be sure of an agreement with the administration and work from there. They felt that the initial step would be a letter from the WSGA council to the deans expressing a desire to meet with them.

A letter is to be written by a committee from the council and presented at the council meeting Monday evening.

POVERTY CAN BE FUN

It is no disgrace to be poor. It is an error, but it is no disgrace. So if your purse is empty, do not skulk and brood and hide your head in shame. Stand tall. Admit your poverty. Admit it freely and frankly and all kinds of good things will happen to you. Take, for instance, the case of Blossom Sigafos.

Blossom, an impetuous freshman at an Eastern girls' college, was smart as a whip and round as a dumpling, and scarcely a day went by when she didn't get invited to a party weekend at one of the nearby men's schools. But Blossom never accepted. She did not have the tall fare; she did not have the clothes. Weekend after weekend, while her classmates went frolicking, Blossom sat alone, saved from utter despair only by her pack of Marlboros, for even an exchequer as slim as Blossom's can afford the joys of Marlboro—joys far beyond their paltry price: rich, mellow tobaccos, lovingly cured and carefully packed; a new improved filter that works like a charm. Croesus himself could not buy a better cigarette!

However, Marlboro's most passionate admirers—among whose number I am paid to count myself—would not claim that Marlboro can entirely replace love and romance, and Blossom grew steadily morose.

Then one day came a phone call from an intelligent sophomore named Tom O'Shanter at a nearby men's college. "Blossom," said Tom, "I want you to come down next week for the barley festival, and I won't take no for an answer."

"No," said Blossom.

"Foolish girl," said Tom gently. "I know why you refuse me. It is because you are poor, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Blossom.

"I will send you a railroad ticket," said Tom. "Also a small salami in case you get hungry on the train."

"But I have nothing to wear," said Blossom.

Tom replied, "I will send you one suit of cashmere, two gowns of lace, three slacks of velvet, four shoes of calf, five socks of nylon, and a partridge in a pear tree."

"That is most kind," said Blossom, "but I fear I cannot dance and enjoy myself while back home my poor lame brother Tiny Tim lies abed."

"Send him to Mayo Brothers and put it on my tab," said Tom.

"You are terribly decent," said Blossom, "but I cannot come to your party because all the other girls at the party will be from rich, distinguished families, and my father is but a humble woodworker."

"I will buy him Yosemite," said Tom.

"You have a great heart," said Blossom. "Hold the phone while I ask our wise and kindly old Dean of Women whether it is proper for me to accept all these gifts."

She went forthwith and asked the Dean of Women, and the Dean of Women laid her wise and kindly old hand on Blossom's cheek and said, "Child, let not false pride rob you of happiness. Accept these gifts from Tom."

"Lord love you, Wise and Kindly," breathed Blossom, dropping grateful tears into the Dean's reticule. "I must run and tell Tom."

"Yes, run, child," said the Dean, a smile wrinkling her wise and kindly old eyes. "And ask him has he got an older brother."

1958-59 Blue Imps Overcome Lack of Height With Hustle

Although their biggest man was only 6-4 and their best guard was out for most of the season, the 1958-59 Blue Imps came through with a good record by hustling all the way.

Coach Whit Cobb said that his most satisfying win was the first of the season over Wake Forest in the Indoor Stadium. After being trounced down at Wilmington Junior College in the opener, the Imps came back strong to down Wake with its giant, Len Chappell. "That was the most pleasing win we've had since I've been here," was the way Cobb classified the victory.

Several surprises marked the road to the final won-lost mark of 9-7. John Cantwell, the 5-10 guard from Shawano, Wis., who started the season as Jack Mullen's partner, had to take over for Mullen when the All-Navy star was hurt. The hustling backcourt man did a fine job in taking over the leadership of the team on the court. He averaged 9.7 points per game.

C. B. Johnson, another non-scholarship Imp, also did a good job for Cobb. "Anytime you have a couple of non-scholarship boys who do a good job you are fortunate," he commented. "If we hadn't had them we would have been in bad shape."

The Imps' two high scorers were forwards Fred Schmidt and Buzz Mewhort, the team's big man at 6-4. Schmidt averaged 17 points a game, while Buzz hit for a mean of 13.4 points per contest while battling it out for rebounds with taller men. Buzz's most memorable games were with Wake Forest and Len Chappell.

The fifth starter for the Imps was Charlie Raksnis who averaged 6.9 points this season. His trademark was a twisting layup through the tangle of arms of the bigger men he played against.

Cobb expressed the thought that six of his Imps were up for advancement and will be fighting for places with the Blue Devils next fall. Mewhort, Schmidt, Mullen, Johnson, Cantwell and Raksnis were described by the Imp coach as being able to play varsity ball.

Devils Put in Same Bracket With UNC

By ART SANTO DOMINGO
Chronicle Sports Editor

Duke's Blue Devils have the honor to inaugurate the ACC free-for-all tomorrow afternoon at 2 when they meet Wake Forest in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh in the first round of the tournament.

By winning the draw with Maryland for third place the Dukes were placed in the bracket they were hoping for and may have the opportunity to clash once again with UNC—if they survive the first round. The Tarheels will play Clemson in the second game of the afternoon. Although the Blue Devils would like nothing better than to tangle with Carolina in the semi-finals, they will have to turn back the troublesome Deacons of Coach Bones McKinney.

Two close games were contested between the teams during the season, Duke winning both times. Duke owns seven straight victories over the Deacs, but all records are thrown away when it comes to the tourney.

The Baptists use their fine outside shooters, Olin Broadway and George Ritchie, to good advantage by setting up multiple blocks for them. A McKinney's crew also has the size under the boards in the persons of Dickie Odom and bruising Dave Budd.

Coach Hal Bradley believes that his team can go all the way providing they hustle and play well on defense.

The Devil chief knows that the Big Blue youngsters have the shooting ability and the physical manpower to beat any team in the ACC. But he has warned his charges that from now on out, they get only one chance—one loss and they have had it.

IM Cage Final Postponed Due to Football Conflict

An appeal on the part of the KAs caused the Intramural Basketball final game to be postponed until 7 tonight. Due to a conflict with football practice yesterday, the contest—scheduled for last night—was put off one more night.

Thus the two titans of the IM basketball scene will square off for the title tonight. The Betas will be looking to win their second title in succession at the expense of the KAs, runners up in Division I this year and losers in a close game for the championship last winter.

Volleyball, badminton, and ping-pong were also postponed until Thursday by the delay in completing the cage season. Volleyball games will be played in the Indoor Stadium, badminton in Card Gym, and ping-pong in the game room of the Union building.

Due to activities in the Indoor Stadium next week such as the L&M Show and the Dixie Football Clinic, IM manager Clarke Abbott announced that volleyball will not be played all week. Instead the IM department is making plans for a swimming meet probably on Wednesday or Thursday. Abbott also said he was making efforts to secure more ping-pong tables for the game room.

Wrestlers Travel To ACC Matches

Duke's inexperienced wrestlers journey to Charlottesville, Va., this weekend for the Atlantic Coast Conference meet Friday and Saturday.

In this final action of the campaign the grapplers will go with the same lineup which competed against Maryland last Friday. The Turps, holders of the ACC title for the four years since the conference was formed, will provide the toughest contestants of the meet.

Coach Carmen Falcone will go with Bob Drury, Ron Myer, Ken LaBone, Jim Girand, Bill Scott, Bob Jackson, and Karl Shetler. Only the man for the 157 pound class is yet to be named. Joe Warren, the regular, injured his leg prior to the Maryland match.
