"Full Of Sound And Fury, Signifying-information and misrepresentation of true conditions, three "records" which any newspaper would be ill advised to claim. We will go along with the editorial statement that the crowd "was the largest ever to attend a football game gate North Carolina, and will be among the irrst co concen on the improvements can be made in parking conditions on University campus. We disagree vehemently with the stat miversity campus. We disagree vehemently with the statements that "there were more drunks at the game, with liquor flowing more freely over the Methodist flats, than has ever been seen at a sports event in North Carolina", and that "Duke got the cars on the felds, and then left them to get out the best they could." These statements are utterly without truth, and throw the burden of blame in the wrong

According to statements made in lengthy conferenc with Dean of Men H . J. Herring and Superintendent of Buit with Dean of Men H. J. Herring and Superintencent of Build ings and Grounds W. E. Whitford on Monday, "the crowd was generally well betaved at the game Saturday, and it was generally well beliaved at the game Saturday, and overt drinking was in evidence in the stadium, it was noticeable in the Duke students' rooting section or in $t$ Duke alumni section." Both officials stressed repeatedly University's desire to support the law of the state of North Carolina, which says in effect, "There shall be no drinkin nor public display of alcoholic beverages at any athletic contests within the state of North Carolina." Both officials said that the University has cooperated with law-enforcefrom athletic tinue to do so in tho future." The editorial comment in the Herald to the effect that Saturday's game in Duke stadium saw more drunks than have ever been assembled at any previous game in the state is an exaggeration to a ridiculous degree. It cannot be proved; it is based on at be plete evidence; its accusations are insupportable, As far as the parking problem is concerned, Duke's limited parkking facilities are stretched to the breakking point when 35,000 attend home games, even assuming that optiwhen 35,000 attend home games, even assuming that optimum weather conditions are present. To call Saturdyy's weather inclement is an understatement. The Universitys lots handle ten thousand cars, and the remaining 8,000 of Saturday's 18.000 vehicles had to be parked eleewhere Sargely at the disceretion of the individual owners, whe evaded the rules set down by the State's 90 troopers, the city's 50 policemen, and the county's 40 deputy sheriffs. Late arrivals handicapped the large force-over 600 men-employed to handte vehicular traffic. Other individuals left their cars parked on the highwass leading to the stadium, disregarding sigs posted especially for the day, and ignoring the requests of the officers assigned to keep the roadways clear. Once on the lots, car-owners were assigned parking space by a force of 175 men. Following the game, the stadium gang of 40 men, assisted by the nine campus officers ánd the 40 gatemen, pushed stranded cars out of foot-deep mud, some of them remaining on duty until 8 p.m. Saturday night, even though all cars with occupants were moved onto the highways by $7: 00$ p.m. The University paid this force of men, plus $175 \mathrm{suhhers}$, a total of $\$ 4,000$ in wages for the day's work. In addition, the state bore the cost of the afternoon's services of the 90 troopers. Some of the men emplioyed by the University were on duty for eighteen hours. A squad of three trucks and a tractor was available for use on the parking fields following the game. The parking lots ean be emptiod no more rapidly than can the cars be handled on the highways. Crrs were moved out of the lots as fast as the troopers could handle them, at the of the lots as ast as the troopers could handile them, at rate of twenty per-minute through the total of five exits. The editors of the Caronrcus are quick to attack those situations in which they feel the University is at fault; equally quickly, however, they will come to the defense of the University when it is unfairly attacked on the shallow the University when it is unfariy attacked on the shallow bases of prejudice, error and misimformation. We hold that the statements made in Monday's Herald are manifestly unfair, and that the editorial attack which placed the University and its administrative, faculty and student bod unfavorable light was unwarranted and vicious.

End Rowdyism At Sings!
At Sunday's Sing, a talented girl singer coming from another North Carolina institution at the invitation of the sponsors of the Sing, entertained the audience with her brilliant voice and poised stage manner. However, her fine performance was marred by the continued rowdyisms of a group of outsiders (not Duke students) seated in the baleony. Beeause of this rude conduct, the University and the students attending were placed in a bad light as hosts ond as a polite audience. Precedent has been set for handling such affairs, when, a few years ago, outaiders (high school students, ete.) have been barred from attending the Sings. Some frm action should be taken immediately to prevent a repetition of Sunday's occurrence.-C.S.F.

Student Requests Support For SGA

Lately we have been hearing a lot about our SGA. The majority of the students laugh it off as the "Students' Grasswateher's Assoctation." That's one reason it doesn't worlc too well, because all the students tend to laugh it off. Most of the studont body thinkes that SGA is a pown in the hands of the Administration and that SGA is afraid of that august body. From the information I have been able to glean, though, the Administration would glve SGA groatcr power it it can hhow itself worthy of so great a trust-or if the student bady can I realize worthy.  editor complaining of the Ineffecencies of SGA, but fow, if fier a suggestion.  The students are not behind SGA because it foes nothing, ond SCA can accomplisi nothing because the students are nd SGA can accomplish nothing because the students are not behind it Why not set up a co-operating board of all campus orgmizational heads to work with SGA? In that way ovents could be planned to supplement rather than conifict with each other. II SGA plenned something, the orgizizations with each other. If SGA piknned something, the organizations would offer one hundred per cent support to put it aeroass SGA wowld have a definite strength it could depand on, and SGA wruld have a definite strenth it could depend on, and in this way could accomplish programs it does riot dare to undertake by itself. The oreanizations could also help each ther and bring to the student body activities and program which are impossible now because of each organization's relaLive weakness. SGA now hats a conslitution that can go places, but the spirit needs a shot to the arm. That shot can be fur- nished by close co-operation between campus bocies and SGA and among the organizations themselves, For a better SGA and a better Dulce,

TIME OUT

By Jack Fostir

Fifty-six thousand fans saw a power-laden University of North Carolina squad defeat a hard-fighting, but outclassed Blue Devil aggregation last Saturday in Duke Pe Perhaps this would be a good time to think about the difference between Duke and many other ball clubs in the nation. At Duke we have college boys playing football; at many other schools, we have football players going to college. True, it was like watching a professional axtist or poet at work Pupa run rampart over the Big Blue. But however critical one may be of the play in last week's contest, no one may ever say that the Duke boys fell down on the job.
We have never seen, in many years of watching foot ball games, an overpowered team fight as hard as the Iron Dukes did Saturday. The Devils literally did not know when they were beaten. They dug into the mud and wet of the Duke Stadium and fought an over-powering UNC squad till there was just no more power left in them. Sure, the Tar Heels beat us, but we have nothing in this world to be ashamed of. Wallace Wade sent an injured squad on the field last Saturday to meet sent an injured squad on the field last Saturday to meet a Carolina team which was riding on the crest of a wave of victories.

Many an other team would have lain down and quit when the Heels scored their second touchdown on the field-Fletcher Wall and Paul Stephanz played though no one thought they could-each man on the out-classed Duke eleven played his heart out to stop the driving Tar Heels.
Some say the Heels played dirty ball-they did roll 150 yards in penalties -but they also tallied 16 first downs to three for the Devils.

But let's forget it. The game's over, and the season's over. The Wademen began the 1947 football season with an under-rated squad. No one thought stars-no outstanding men, but they had one thing that the sports writers didn't stop to consider. They had the fight, the guts, the spirit to get out on the field, no matter how overwhelming the odds, and play their best.
The Duke team hasn't a very inpressive record this season, but, compared to previous Duke teams, in have the team which would make an impressive record They were only a team of college boys, the same as 5,000 other people who now attend Duke, but they played a brand of football that ranked with the best in The men who have studied with us, partied with us laughed with us, and-yes been sad with us. Here's to the Duke football team, as long as they play as hard as they did this year, we'll have no complaint!
