BASKET BALL FOR TRINITY

A Challenge Has Been Received From Manager of Wake Forest Team.

MUCH GOOD MATERIAL NOW IN COLLEGE

An Exceedingly Interesting Game—Rare Treat for Many—Contest Probably in March—Preparations Made in Gymnasium.

It is well-nigh a certainty that Trinity is to have another game added to her list of athletic sports in the near future. The game in question is basket ball, one of the most fascinating and most intensely interesting indoor games known today. Next to football probably it holds the constant attention of the spectators more than any other game. Anyone having witnessed it will never forget it. The play is extremely fast and vigorous, yet open enough for an onlooker to follow every movement of the ball and of the players. While the game is very popular throughout the entire United States, it has been largely confined to the gymnasiums of the Y. M. C. A. in large cities, and in the South none but the Y. M. C. A. teams have played match games.

Many preparations have been made within the last few days in the gymnasium with the view of starting practice as soon as examinations are over. Iron guards have been fastened around the electric globes and detachable goals have been constructed. Unlike base ball, the game is played most often at night.

In it a man of small stature has about an equal chance with a larger man; yet, of course, an extraordinarily quick, large man has somewhat the advantage over an opponent of smaller size. This, however, is not true of basket ball alone; it holds good in all sports.

Basket ball should appeal to a larger number of students than does base ball, for although it requires a great deal of skill it is more readily adapted to unskilled players than is that game. Yet not everyone is a successful basket ball player, for everyone does not possess great activity, nerve and endurance, the three prime essentials of a good player.

The game is played by ten men, five to a team, with an umpire, a referee, a timekeeper, and a scorer, and is divided into twenty-minute halves, with a ten-minute intermission, the goals being changed in each half. The position played by the different members of a team are: Two guards, two forwards, and a center.

As soon as the game has progressed far enough, a captain and a manager of the team will be elected, and Director Card and Dr. Hendren will coach it. Trinity has already received a challenge from Wake Forest, wishing to arrange dates for games to be played at Durham in February, but it is doubtful if the team can get practice enough to be in readiness for a match contest before

TRINITY PARK SCHOOL NEWS

Examinations Closed Saturday and Regular School Work Resumed.

LOWER MIDDLE CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS

Annual Alumni Banquet to Be Held in April—Capt. Smith Will Not Coach Park School Team, Coach Stockdale Filling This Position.

BY E. S. MCINTOSH.

Dr. Kilgo gave the students a talk in chapel last Wednesday evening.

Examinations closed Saturday and the regular work of the school has been resumed.

The parents of Mr. Kirby, who is in school here, have moved to Durham to live.

Since the names of the new students who have entered since Christmas were published, last week, Mr. E. C. Pate has also entered.

Miss Mary Freeman has been quite sick and was unable to stand some of her examinations last week. She has about recovered now.

Mr. Forest Smith has gone home, being compelled to give up his work for the remainder of the year on account of trouble with his eyes.

The Lower Middle Class, following the example of the Upper Middle, met on last Wednesday and organized. The following officers were elected: President, Joseph Burgess; Vice-President,

SCIENCE CLUB WILL MEET

Dr. Hendren to Give Talk on Panama Canal Construction.

PUBLIC CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND

Prof. Bivins and Prof. Edwards Will Explain Graphophone—Records Will Be Made—Purposes of the Club—Mr. J. Blanchard, Secretary.

The January meeting of the Science Club will be held in the lecture room of the department of physics, on the first floor of the Crowell Science Hall, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. L. L. Hendren will give a talk on the Panama Canal, discussing its economic and engineering features in a popular way, and he will exhibit stereopticon views showing the methods employed and the present status of the work. A great deal of discussion has appeared in the public print in regard to this engineering undertaking of the United States, the greatest enterprise of the kind ever undertaken by any country, and it is well worth the while of every American citizen to familiarize himself with the facts concerning it.

At the conclusion of this discussion Prof. J. A. Bivins, Headmaster of Trinity Park School, will give a demonstration, in co-operation with Prof. C. W. Edwards, of various types of sound recording and reproducing apparatus. Both the Edison phonograph and the Victor graphophone will be ex-

SOUTH ATLANTIC QUARTERLY

Fifth Volume Shows Improvement in Literary Excellence.

CONTAINS MANY SCHOLARLY ARTICLES

"The Denominational College in Southern Education"—"The Railroad and the People"—Athletics—John Paul Jones Discussed.

The first number of the fifth volume of the South Atlantic Quarterly, which came from the press last week, shows that it is constantly improving in literary excellence. This number is full of good, strong articles, which are both interesting and instructive.

The opening one is on "The Independent Voter in the South," by Dr. Edwin Mims. In it he notes the scarcity of this class of men in the South, the need there is for them, the state of affairs they have to face, and the many hopeful signs that they are increasing, and concludes that "the role of the independent is especially adapted to the college man."

President Henry N. Snyder, of Wofford College, writes of "The Denominational College in Southern Education," pointing out the uplifting forces of it in the past and showing that it is still an important element in active, persistent educational propaganda.

NEW BOOKS NOW IN LIBRARY

Fac-Simile of Shakspeare's Works Given by Miss Anne Roney.

NUMBER OF VOLUMES FOR LAW SCHOOL

Departments of Economics and History Receive Substantial Additions—Poe's Complete Works—Increased Biology Library.

Since the first of January there have been added to the number of books in the library more than three hundred new ones. These are divided among the different departments, the largest number having been received by the department of economics. Their cost was several hundred dollars, nearly the entire number having been purchased out of the library fund.

With these additions the library now has nearly thirty-one thousand catalogued books, with hundreds that have never been catalogued. All these books have been carefully selected, and as a result only the best and most useful ones are to be found in the number. The recent additions have been mostly in the departments of economics and law, the latter alone having received nearly two hundred volumes since the first of December. All these books are being catalogued by the librarian, and in a short time will be ready to be taken out by the students. A partial list is given herewith:

R. C. Bumpass; Treasurer, Miss Florence Baxter; Secretary, P. H. Arrowsmith.

The annual alumni banquet of Trinity Park School will be held this year on the evening of Thursday, April 12, in the Asbury Building. Departing somewhat from the usual custom, it will be more in the nature of an informal gathering than a banquet.

The Science Club of Trinity College was organized in 1889 under the supervision of Professors Pegram, Hines, Steadman and Bandy. In October, 1898, it was reorganized and put on a basis more in keeping with the progressiveness of the college. From that time to the present it has kept up its work almost continually, offering to those who have

In a very scholarly paper Mr. O. W. Villard, of the New York Evening Post, deals with the part which the lately deceased William Henry Baldwin, Jr., who was himself a Northerner, took in Southern life; how he gave of his

PURE ATHLETICS.

The expression, "pure athletics," is one which of late has been much used and, perhaps you will say, has become hackneyed. No, it has not. If there is any one expression which the colleges of this country need to hold to and keep constantly in mind, it is this one terse phrase. If it had been the watchword of colleges in their early history, the colleges of today would not now be faced to face with a number of puzzling problems which at present confront them. Neither would there have been the general dissatisfaction and call for reform in athletics which is prevalent throughout the country.

This call has not been wholly without answer, however, for there is now a wave of athletic reform sweeping through the colleges of the United States, with an end in view. Its object is directly or indirectly to purify the college athletics of today.

In the North this problem has been solved to a large extent, by the co-operation of the Northern colleges and universities, in agreeing to certain rules by which they will all be governed. In the South we have not been so fortunate. A number of the colleges and universities here seem to think that they will lose something by joining an association of this kind, and as a result only a small percentage of them have joined such an association. Of course this makes confusion; but what condition of affairs could be more confusing than that every college or university should have its own rules and regulations governing its athletics? When two such schools wanted to arrange an intercollegiate contest it is more than probable that no two of their respective regulations would harmonize, and straightway would ensue a squabble as to what men were eligible, on each side, to the contest; squabbles which often cause much hard feeling and prompt a spirit of unhealthy and unfair rivalry.

There are only three reasons of which we know why any institution should not join an association which has as its prime object the betterment of conditions for all. They are: First, an institution is just simply, out and out, afraid to meet another institution in an athletic contest fairly and squarely, with no technical advantages of regulations on either side. Second, an institution is not brave enough to cut loose from those clauses in its rules which allow it to import a star athlete, be he professional or not, from somewhere, at almost any time, when there is a weak spot in one of its teams. Third, an institution has as a student body a crowd of weaklings, among whom there are no athletes to be found, and it must not be restrained, by previous agreement with other institutions, from offering inducements to professional athletes. In other words, it is not honest enough to admit that its students are, in this particular line, of inferior quality.

The association which we have in mind above, and in fact the only one of any consequence in the South, is the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which we believe will eventually succeed in its efforts to establish pure athletics in Southern colleges and universities.

It does not speak at all well for the educational institutions of North Carolina which engage in intercollegiate athletics, that so many of them do not belong to the S. I. A. A. Many of them do not seem to care whether or not this phase of college life is brought to perform its most sacred duty, where the college student can enjoy and participate in strictly pure college athletics, just so they win a certain percentage of their contests. Theirs is a local, not a sectional, not a national interest.

To the best of our knowledge, Trinity is at present the only college in North Carolina which belongs to the association in question. Coupled with the foregoing, we do not make this statement in a spirit of empty boastfulness. We base it on solid fact, on the fact that she is a member of the S. I. A. A., which stands guarantee in itself that she will meet, squarely and honestly, under regulations as fair as have yet been proposed in the South, in athletic contests, any college or university complying in like manner with these regulations. She is not afraid—yes, that is the word—of meeting another college fairly, and, if it is not her good fortune to win, honestly being defeated. She has the spirit to get up and try it again.

It has been a long time coming, and may be yet a long time, but for once we will be so optimistic as to believe that finally every college or university in North Carolina will mutually join in this movement and resolutely advance the cause of pure athletics in the South.

CIVIC CELEBRATION.

Washington's Birthday To Be Observed—Dr. White, of Atlanta, to Deliver the Address for the Occasion.

Washington's Birthday, February 22, will be observed by the college as a holiday. It has been the custom for some time to have a civic celebration on the evening of this day, when some invited speaker delivers an address. It is intended that this occasion shall tend to cultivate a better citizenship and more patriotic ideas of government.

The speaker for this year will be Rev. J. E. White, D. D., of Atlanta, who is pastor of one of the leading churches of that city. Dr. White is a native of North Carolina and has the reputation of being a great pulpit orator. His address will be one of great worth, without doubt.

Examinations are nearly over and THE CHRONICLE has not yet missed an issue.

Dr. Edwin Mims, of Trinity College, has been invited by the Gerhardt and Ludwig Literary Societies of Mt. Pleasant College Institute to deliver their annual literary address. Dr. Mims is widely known as a writer and speaker, and these societies of the Institute are to be congratulated upon having a man of his importance to address them upon this occasion.—Concord Times.

The most interesting and valuable of all these books, perhaps, is a fac-simile reproduction of some of Shakespeare's works. This is a quarto volume made by photographic process of copies of the earliest preserved forms of Shakespeare's Venus and Adonis, Lucrece, The Passionate Pilgrim, Pericles, and his sonnets. It is issued as a supplement to the First Folio, issued in similar form in 1902, a copy of which the library has. With the reproduction of these poems Shakespeare's writings are presented in complete form in the most authentic shape. This valuable addition is the gift of Miss Anne Roney, of Durham.

PARK SCHOOL NEWS.

A few weeks ago it was stated in THE CHRONICLE that Mr. W. M. Smith, captain of the college base ball team for the season of 1905, would coach the Park School team during the coming months. Finding, however, that other duties made imperative demands upon his time, he will be unable to do this work. Arrangements have been made whereby Mr. Otis H. Stocksdale, the well-known coach of the college team, will act in this capacity for the Park School.

Mr. Phifer Fulenwider, who made such a fine record as a pitcher for the Park School last year, is manager of the Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute base ball team this year, and will occupy his accustomed position in the box.

To the Student Body.

We have opened a supply room in the College Inn, room 77, desiring the trade of the student body. We carry a full line of cigars, chewing and smoking tobacco; a varied assortment of confectioneries, such as oranges, apples, fine candies, raisins, canned goods, crackers, and other edibles. It is our aim to supply the wants of all, and we shall sell our goods to suit the buyer. It is not our intention to make a fortune, but we desire a reasonable recompense for our service and at the same time to give full weight and measure in every instance and to satisfy our customers as a whole. We opened this business believing that the student body would support us, and we desire our share of their trade.

Thanking you for your patronage in the past, and earnestly soliciting the same in the future, we are, yours to serve,

COLLEGE SUPPLY ROOM,

February 1 is the date for matriculation for the spring term and all students are expected to matriculate on that day.

HOW MUCH DOES HE OWN?

Hazing deserves the condemnation of everyone, and no list of adjectives, Sunday School or otherwise, is too strong to be applied to it. But we would like to hear the other extreme discussed, and also the "golden mean." Just how much of his room does a man own?

Some people cannot stand a privilege without being spoiled. Give them liberty, and they want license; give them free thought, and they border on insanity; give them liberty of conscience, and they get too big to believe in a God. Just so with this question of room ownership. Tell a certain kind of man that he is absolute owner of his room, and he immediately proceeds to impress that fact upon his neighbors. He collects a noisy crowd of his fellow-fools and holds high carnival at dead of night. Ask him to moderate his tones or diminish his crowd, and he becomes indignant and informs you that the room is his and he will do as he pleases. If he would confine his noise (which is his also) to his room no objection would be raised; but he cannot. So, pray tell us, how much noise is legitimate, and how much of the land this fellow really owns, so that, in case he owns it all, we may go to sea. If it simply disturbed that gang of (almost) hibernating animals who come blustering in late at chapel and classes, no one would especially care; but, as a rule, he is the gentleman who does the disturbing stunt, while the quiet, steady worker is the man who is disturbed. Mr. Carnegie's fad of being waked by the strains of a pipe-organ may be well enough, but no man can go to sleep by the screech of an untuned fiddle or the twang of a rickety guitar in the next room.

By the "golden mean" we mean the hails. Who owns them? The lights go out, one retires, and just as he sinks comfortably into the arms of Morpheus, Beelzebub and his tribe come galloping down the hall screeching worse than the wild wail of a wall-eyed tom-cat. Bottles are hurled, doors are banged, and pandemonium, or anything else you choose to call it, breaks loose. Or perhaps some fellows have been to a "show," or out of town, and come in at the dead hours of night. With no consideration for others they begin to "raise Cain." They cackle, they crow, they bark, they gobble, they low, they bleat, they squeal, they bray, until you would never know what species of animals were wandering loose except for their superior genuineness of their brain. Can not some practical solution be found for this state of affairs which will lessen the evils of it as it now exists?

Will this class of men never have consideration for their fellows? H. E. S.

SCIENCE CLUB WILL MEET.

regularly attended its meetings much valuable and interesting information. It is intended to meet an obvious need in a college community where men rarely have the opportunity or the time to study what might be called "popular science."

Those most interested in this line of work must devote their time and energy to the detail work of their specialties, and thus they become so absorbed in the technical work of science that they rarely have an opportunity of getting the surface or practical application of their own specialties. The club is intended to supply, in the main, information intelligible to any student and to give the latest developments in every department of science. With this object in view it has been organized on rather unique lines. It has a permanent secretary, Mr. Julian Blanchard, but has no president.

Instead, each member of the science faculty acts in turn at each meeting as director of that meeting, and is responsible for the program. In this way each science has an opportunity every year of getting a hearing. Prof. C. W. Edwards is the director of the January meeting.

The program of the first meeting of the club for this year is indeed interesting, and it is hoped that many students will avail themselves of this opportunity to learn something of practical science. The public is cordially invited to attend, and all those who are especially interested in scientific work will see the secretary, Mr. Julian Blanchard, and be enrolled as permanent members of the club.

SOUTH ATLANTIC QUARTERLY.

time and thought in the educational and industrial realms of the South.

Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, of the University of North Carolina, sketches in an attractive manner, the character and achievements of Hon. J. M. Morehead, governor of North Carolina in the early forties.

The article on "Excessive Devotion to Athletics," by Dr. W. P. Few, is one that ought to attract the attention of all college students and faculties who desire intercollegiate athletics for the good there is in them. He treats especially of the causes of and the remedy for the evils of athletics in the colleges of the South. Just at the present time what he has to say is of special note.

Mr. Junius Davis continues his contributions to the discussion of John Paul Jones; the editors discuss the passing of two notable men, Mr. Edward Atkinson, of Boston, and Chancellor W. B. Hill, of the University of Georgia, both of whom were greatly interested in the life and problems of the South; and Headmaster J. A. Bivins, of the Trinity Park School, in a very sympathetic and attractive manner reviews Isaac Erwin Avery's "Idle Comments."

The number closes with reviews of books and various literary notes.

SPOKE IN BALTIMORE.

Dr. Mims Delivers an Address Before the Woman's College—His Subject "Southern Types"—Given a Reception.

On last Tuesday afternoon Dr. Mims delivered an address before the Woman's College of Baltimore on the subject "Southern Types." He devoted his attention especially to present-day men who have for the most part been neglected by writers. Among those discussed were Washington Duke, as a captain of industry; Basil L. Gildersleeve, as an eminent scholar; Chancellor W. B. Hill, as an educator; Walter H. Page, as a writer; and Henry W. Grady, as an editor.

In its account of the lecture the Sun spoke partly as follows:

"Dr. Edwin Mims, editor of the South Atlantic Quarterly, and professor of English literature at Trinity College, North Carolina, lectured yesterday afternoon before the Woman's College on 'Southern Types.' Dr. Mims' scholarly presence and personal charm added greatly to his power as a lecturer, and the slight drawl in his voice was most attractive. He spoke with earnestness and occasional touches of humor, and his beautiful English sometimes had a poetic finish."

"After his lecture Dr. Mims was given a reception by the Southern Club of the Woman's College, which embraces in its membership young ladies from every part of the South. The rooms were decorated with Confederate and State flags and the College and fraternity colors, and Prof. Mims was charmed with the reception given him."

Trinity Loses a Friend.

In the death of Mr. W. T. O'Brien, of Durham, which occurred Saturday night, Trinity College lost one of her best friends. Mr. O'Brien was always very much interested in all the affairs of the college and the students. He was very fond of base ball and gave his hearty support to Trinity's team. He rejoiced in its success and took to heart all its failures. In token of the appreciation of his friendship, Prof. R. L. Flowers, as representative of the faculty and the athletic association, accompanied the remains to Lynchburg, where the interment took place yesterday.

FACULTY LECTURES.

List of Those To Be Delivered This Spring.

In addition to the faculty lectures that have already been delivered this year the following will be given during the spring term by members of the faculty:

Dr. W. P. Few, "The Scholar's Ideal,"
Prof. A. C. McIntosh, "Chief Justice Marshall,"
Prof. W. H. Wannamaker, "Two German Views of America,"

Dr. J. J. Wolfe, "Bacteria and Their Activities,"

Dr. J. S. Bassett, "James Anthony Froude."

The dates on which these will be given have not yet been appointed, but will be announced from time to time in THE CHRONICLE.

If you are interested in life insurance it would pay you to see S. B. Underwood, who represents a safe, conservative, and reliable institution and is prepared to offer the best policy contract obtainable.

The base ball team of 1905 was, in more than one way, one of the best Trinity has ever had. Some of its records on its Southern trip will probably never be beaten in collegiate athletics. The members of the team now in college are shown on the front page.

Mr. S. O. Thorne, '98, brother of Mr. Sam Thorne of the present Sophomore Class, is in Atlanta with the General Fire Extinguisher Co.

NOTEWORTHY GIFTS

Some Donations to College by Friends During Past Year—Handsome Building—Class Monument.

Among the many valuable gifts received by the college during the year of 1905 the following are especially notable:

Mr. J. B. Duke and Mr. B. N. Duke, as has before been noted in THE CHRONICLE, gave to Trinity Park School the handsome new dormitory building which has only recently been completed, and which in equipment is as complete and as modern as any other dormitory of its kind in North Carolina. It is a substantial addition to this live and energetic school, the cost of its erection being approximately $25,000.

The Class of 1905 gave, in parting, the handsome and very useful light in front of the Craven Memorial Hall, as its memorial.

To be noted in the library is the life-size bust of McKinley, given by Mr. D. T. Sasser, and the beautiful marble statue of Cicero, donated by Mr. W. W. Fuller, of New York City, attorney for the American Tobacco Co.

A detailed list of all of the many miscellaneous gifts of the past year could not be obtained, and hence it is not published here.

Benjamin Franklin.

As was supposed, the two hundredth anniversary of Franklin's birth has been marked by several books dealing with his wonderful life and presenting again his writings, which for many years have gained him the position of a "true classic." Two volumes which have attracted special attention are, "The Writings of Benjamin Franklin," edited by Albert Henry Smyth, and another, containing very much the same material, edited by Prof. Waldo Cutler.

Is often neglected by those who ought to heed it. We know a few things about and they are to the point. As we have made it our specialty for so many years, it must be admitted that we are well posted on buying because we never receive complaints about anything purchased here. That's pretty good proof, we think, that people get their money's worth. Be wise and take a walk to our establishment.
