A Challenge Has Been Received From Manager of Wake Forest Team.

MUCH GOOD MATERIAL NOW IN COLLEGE.

An Exceedingly Interesting Game—Rare Treat for Many—Context Probably in March—Preparations Made in Gymnasium.

It is well-nigh a certainty that Trinity is to have another game added to her list of athletic sports in the near future. The game in question is basketball, one of the most fascinating and most intensely interesting indoor games known today. Next to football probably it holds the constant attention of the spectator more than any other game. Anyone having witnessed it will never forget it. The play is light, but very fast and nervous, yet open enough for an onlooker to follow every movement of the ball and the players. While the game is very popular throughout the entire United States, it has been largely confined to the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. in large cities, and in the South none but the Y. M. C. A. teams have played match games.

Many preparations have been made within the past few days in the gymnasium with the view of ascertaining practice as soon as examinations are over. It is reported that at least two teams have been fastened around the electric globes and detachment goals have been constructed. Unlike the basketball game, the play is most often at night. If there are small states, there has always been a team, but of course, of a more rapid and more skilled than the other men. Yet not everything is a successful basketball player, for everyone does not possess that rare gift of timing. It is well known that the basketball game is especially adapted to the college game. This, however, is not true of every country, and it is well known that the basketball game is especially adapted to the college game.

The game is played by ten men, five to a team, with an umpire, five points in a team, and is divided into twenty-minute halves, with a ten-minute intermission, the goals being changed in each half. The position played by the different members of the team are: Two guards, two forwards, and a center. The annual alumni banquet of Trinity Park School will be held this year on the evening of Thursday, April 12, in the Asbury Building. Departing somewhat from the usual custom, it will be more in the nature of an informal gathering than a banquet.

The members of Trinity Park School will be held in the lecture room of the department of physics, on the first floor of the Crown Hall School, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. L. L. Hendren will give a talk on the Panama Canal, discussing its economic and engineering features in a popular way, and he will exhibit stereopticon views showing the methods employed and the present status of the work. A great deal of discussion has appeared in the public press in regard to this engineering undertaking of the United States, the greatest enterprise of the kind ever undertaken by any country, and it is well worth the while of every American citizen to familiarize himself with the forces concerned in.

At the conclusion of this discussion Prof. J. A. Bivins, Headmaster of Trinity Park School, will give a demonstration of cooperation with Prof. C. W. Edwards, a recorder and reproducing apparatus. Both the Edwards photograph and the Victor graphophone will be exhibited and their workings thoroughly explained. A phonograph record will also be made. Besides the other methods of recording and reproducing sound will be discussed and demonstrated.

The Science Club at Trinity College was organized in 1885 under the supervision of Professor Paterson, Phipps, Steadman and Noyes. In October, 1890, it was reorganized and put on a basis more in keeping with the progress of the college. From that time to the present it has kept up its work almost continually, offering to those who have (continued on third page)

PURE ATHLETICS.
The expression, “pure athletics,” is one which has been most frequently used, and perhaps you will say, has become hackneyed. No, it has not. If there is any one expression that can describe this country need to hold to and keep constantly in mind, it is this one. If we are to take the watchword of colleges in their early history, the colleges of today would be ashamed of a number of puzzling problems which at present confront them. No institution would have been the general dissatisfaction and call for reform in athletics which is prevalent throughout the country.

This call has not been wholly without foundation. There is now a wave of athletic reform sweeping through the college world and the future looks like an end in view. Its object is directly or indirectly to purify the collegiate athletic life.

In the North this problem has been solved to a large extent, by which we know any institution colleges and universities, in agreeing to certain rules by which they will all be governed. In the South we have not been so fortunate. A number of the colleges and universities here seem to think that they are on the edge of something new, that they are for once we will be so optimistic and prompt a spirit of unhealthy and unfair rivalry.

The expression, “pure athletics,” is one which of late has been used by some educational institutions of North Carolina which engage in intercollegiate athletics, that so many of them do not belong to the S. J. A. Many of them do not seem to care whether or not they are in this phase of college life is brought to perform its most sacred duty, that the college student can enter, without losing his position in the student body, and take part in intercollegiate games, but just so win a certain percentage of their contests. Thus, in that section, a national interest.

To the best of our knowledge, Trinity is at present the only college in North Carolina which belongs to the association in question. Grumbled with the forgetting, we do not make this statement in a spirit of envy or hostility. We hope it is right, and for the fact that she is a member of the S. J. A., which stands for esteem in its own right, will make, surely and honestly, without regulation as fair as have yet been seen in the association, any college shall participate in intercollegiate games, that she is not afraid—yes, that is the word—of meeting another college. Trinity is at present the only college which has as its prime object the doing away with conditions of all forms of associations, whether athletic or otherwise. They are: First, an institution is just simply out, and out, afraid to have another institution in an athletic contest fairly and squarely, with no technical advantages of any kind. Second, an institution is not brave enough to cut loose from those rules which allow it to import a student body a crowd of invalids, among whom are students to be furnished, and it can not be maintained, by previous agreement with other institutions, from offering inducements to purely athletic teams. In other words, it is not honest enough to admit that its students are, in this particular line, of inferior quality.

The association which we have and may be a long time in fact the only one of any consequence in the South, is the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which we believe will eventually succeed in its efforts to establish pure athletics in Southern colleges and universities.

It does not speak at all well for the educational institutions of North Carolina, which engage in intercollegiate athletics, that so many of them do not belong to the S. J. A. Many of them do not seem to care whether or not they are in this phase of college life is brought to perform its most sacred duty, that the college student can enter, without losing his position in the student body, and take part in intercollegiate games, but just so win a certain percentage of their contests. Handsome Building — Class Monument.

Among the many valuable gifts received by the college during the year of 1905, the following are especially notable:

Mr. J. B. Duke and Mr. R. N. Duke, as has before been noted in the Chronicle, gave to Trinity Park the handsome new dormitory building which has only recently been completed, and which in equipment is as complete and as modern as any dormitory of its kind in North Carolina. It is a substantial addition to this live and energetic school, the cost of erection being approximately $75,000.

The Class of 1905 gave, in particular, a useful light in front of the Craven Memorial Hall, as its memorial.

To be noted in the library is the life-size bust of McKinley, given by Dr. D. T. Jason, and the marble statue of Cicerone, donated by Mr. W. W. Fuller, of New York, City, attorney for the American Tobacco Co.

A detailed list of all of the many miscellaneous gifts of the present year could not be obtained, and hence it is not published here.

ALUMNI NOTES.

Mr. R. T. Harris, ex-'05, who left college a short time ago, has accepted a position with the Chicago Chair Company of Thomasville.

Messrs. J. J. Tyer and H. R. Allred, 1901 and 1901 respectives, both of whom have been with the American Tobacco Co. since graduation, have recently been sent to Liverpool by that company. They will probably later on be sent to the East.

Miss Helen Jackson, ex-'07, of Vernon, N. Y. is now a student at Wesley College in Marshall, N. C. Miss Florence May Eger, class of '03, is now teaching in the graded school at her home in Louisburg, N. C.

Mr. E. W. Spencer, '02, is in the insurance business at Richmond, Va.

Miss Jane H. Nichols, ex-'03, is at present residing in Tuskegee, Indiana Territory.

Miss Blanche H. Gunn, '03, has charge of the department of English at Greensboro Female College.

Miss Lucy Bassett, ex-'05, is teaching at Albermarle.

Miss Lillian Bridges is teaching English in Lillington Female College.

Mr. J. P. Lucas, who took special work in college last year, is now assistant city editor of the Charlotte Observer.

Benjamin Franklin.

As was supposed, the two hundredth anniversary of Franklin’s birth has been marked by several books dealing with his wonderful life and presenting again his writings, for which many years have gained him the position of a “true classic.” Two volumes which have attracted especial attention are “The Writings of Benjamin Franklin,” edited by Albert Henry Smyth, and another, containing very much the same material, edited by Prof. Waldo Cyber.

In order to list such a great variety of people it is often neglected by those who might be interested. We know a few things about:
