CIVIC CELEBRATION HELD

Dr. J. E. White Delivers a Magnificent Address in Memorial Hall.

BANQUET COMPLIMENTARY TO SPEAKER

Toasts Responded to—"Marse Jack" Read by Dr. Bassett—Messages from Absent Members—The Guests and Members Present.

The Civic Celebration on the evening of the 22d eclipsed all similar occasions of this kind heretofore held here, and the one hundred and seventy-fourth anniversary of the natal day of George Washington will long be remembered by all who were present at the public exercises of the day. The chief speaker for the occasion was Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Atlanta, Ga. Dr. White is a native of North Carolina and a graduate of Wake Forest College. He was for a number of years secretary of the Baptist State Mission Board. He is well known throughout the South as a forceful and eloquent speaker, and his message on Thursday evening was without any doubt one of the profoundest, most practical, and timely utterances that have been heard from the platform at Trinity College. Dr. White has a very prepossessing appearance on the floor, and with the fine flow of language which he commands and the easy and graceful manner in which he presents his theme, he ever holds the close and constant attention of his hearers. A full report of his speech cannot be given in these columns, but we are glad to announce that the entire address will be published in the April number of The South Atlantic Quarterly.

These exercises were given under the auspices of the "9019." Prof. D. S. Murph, of the order, presiding over the meeting. Dr. Kilgo opened the exercises with an invocation, and following him Rev. T. A. Smoot, a member of the "9019," read the oration on Washington which was delivered by Henry Lee. Dr. White was then introduced and delivered his address. Again and again it called forth applause, and as he sat down there was a continuous prolongation of it, given by the several hundred people who composed the audience.

Immediately after the exercises in the Memorial Hall the members of the "9019" and their invited guests assembled in the reception hall of the New Dornitory, where a banquet was given complimentary to the speaker of the evening. The following menu was served:

SOUP CONSUMME CREAM WAFERS
CHICKEN SALAD FRIED OYSTERS
BEATEN BISCUIT
PICKLES SALTED ALMONDS OLIVES
CREAM CAKE COFFEE
CIGARS CIGARETTES

called for a number of toasts. Prof. A. H. Merritt, who is renowned for his felicitous humor and fine wit on such an occasion, responded first, his subject being "The Hatchet in History." From what he said this weapon has figured in history more largely than nearly any other. Then a letter from George Washington was read by Prof. C. L. Hornaday, in which George told his brother John what things he saw in a dream. This fake letter was very humorous, as George saw some funny things in his vision.

Dr. J. S. Bassett was next called upon, and in responding read a poem that a member of the "9019" had written, but who was too modest to read his production or let himself be known as the author. The title of the poem is "Marse Jack," and it is written about the college bell, which the author calls by this name. It is an especially apt production and will appear in The Archive.

Impromptu speeches were then made by Hon. J. H. Southgate, Dr. J. C. Kilgo, and Dr. J. E. White, each one of which was particularly appropriate, and each of them was heartily applauded. This celebration marked the sixteenth anniversary of the founding of the "9019." Several of its absent members sent messages, which were read by Prof. Murph. Dr. G. B. Pegram, of New York, sent a telegram; and Rev. G. T. Rowe, of Asheville, and Rev. J. C. Wooten, of Concord, sent letters.

The invited guests at the banquet were: Dr. J. E. White, of Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. J. C. Kilgo, Dr. R. C. Beaman, pastor of Trinity church, Durham; Rev. J. H. McCracken, pastor of West Durham Methodist church; Hon. J. H. Southgate, chairman of the Board of Trustees; and Professors Mims, Few, Merritt, Flowers, Webb, Wolfe, Pegram, Glasson, Hendren, Card, and McIntosh, of the college faculty, and Professors Bivins, Browning, and Lockhart, of the Park School faculty. The members of the order present were: Dr. J. S. Bassett, Rev. T. A. Smoot, Prof. D. S. Murph, Prof. F. S. Aldridge, Prof. C. L. Hornaday, Mr. D. W. Newsom, Mr. W. W. Flowers, Mr. J. P. Breedlove, Mr. J. P. Frizzelle, Mr. J. A. Morgan, Mr. S. B. Underwood, Mr. C. B. Markham, Mr. Hoy Taylor, Mr. H. G. Foard, Mr. L. C. Bledsoe, Mr. W. A. Bryan, Mr. U. N. Hoffman, Mr. Holland Holton, Mr. J. M. Templeton, Jr., and Mr. L. P. Wilson.

Mr. J. T. Jerome, ex-'07, arrived on the campus Sunday morning for a few days' visit to his brother, Mr. W. G. Jerome. Mr. Jerome has been teaching school at McFarlan, N. C., but has resigned his position there to accept a similar one at Maysville, N. C.

Blanks on which excuses for absences from lectures are to be handed in, have been provided at the office and students wishing to present excuses to the Executive Committee of the faculty are requested to secure them at once. All such excuses are to be handed in before six o'clock on Wednesday afternoon of each week.

TRINITY PARK SCHOOL NEWS

Intersociety Debate to Be Held Friday Evening on the Labor Question.

CALHOUN VERSUS THE GRADY SOCIETY

First Public Debate Between the Two Societies—Two Men to Be Selected to Go Against D. H. S.—Other Items of Interest.

BY E. S. MCINTOSH.

On Friday evening, in the chapel, there will be a public debate between representatives from the Calhoun and Grady Literary Societies. This will be the first time for these societies to meet in such a contest, and the indications are that there will be some warm debating. The following query will be discussed: "Resolved, That labor unions have been and are beneficial to the laboring class of people." The affirmative will be debated by Mr. G. M. Daniel and Mr. J. E. Williams, of the Calhoun Society, while the negative will be upheld by Messrs. C. N. Crawford and P. J. Kiker, of the Grady Society. The exercises will begin at 7 o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

The judges who will decide which society is the victor will also decide which two debaters are most capable of representing the Park School in a debate against Durham High School. This will be the third debate between these two schools, the honors at present standing evenly divided. The two debaters from the Durham High School have already been chosen, these being Messrs. Lee Wiggins and Sterling Carrington. The contest will be held the latter part of March or the first of April.

Mr. S. O. Jordan, a member of the Park School community, died Friday morning after only a few days' illness with pneumonia. The deceased left a wife and three children and also three brothers and one sister.

"Commodore," who is a well-known and popular character at the Park School, was absent Saturday. He was out in the country attending Saturday services at Northeast Chapel, his old home church. In this age of stress and strain it is only the devout believer who is willing to take time to go to church on a week day.

The Y. M. C. A. delegation left yesterday for Nashville, Tenn., to attend the International Convention. They went over the Seaboard by the way of Atlanta. They are expected back about March 5.

Messrs. William Ritter and William Sutton, of the University of North Carolina, visited Mr. W. B. Foreman on the 23d.

Mr. James Purnell, who has been sick at his home in Raleigh, has returned and resumed his work.

Messrs. John Ricks and Hyatt Grissom spent Washington's Birthday in Greensboro at their respective homes.

Messrs. Arndell, T. B. Stansel, and Stewart were slightly sick last week and had to be absent from classes for a day or two.

Mr. Percy Dawson spent the latter part of the past week at his home at Littleton.

Mr. Arndell, who was called to his home in Raleigh some time ago on account of the sickness of his mother, has returned and reports that his mother is better.

Y. M. C. A. RALLY.

Dr. Kilgo Conducts the Meeting—Several New Members Are Enrolled—Vice-President Cole Presides.

Dr. Kilgo spoke at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on last Wednesday evening. Dr. Cranford was to have spoken also, but on account of being called away Wednesday afternoon he could not be present. Immediately after Dr. Kilgo's talk membership cards were distributed among those present, and those who were not members were given a chance to join the association. Several new members were enrolled. The special music which was promised from a quartet was not given, the song service being the same as usual. The meeting was presided over by the Vice-President, E. O. Cole.

ATHLETIC RALLY.

J. L. Williams Elected Chief Cheerer—Number of Speeches Made and Much Enthusiasm Is Shown.

On Friday evening at 7 o'clock, in the Young Men's Christian Association hall, was held a mass meeting in the interest of athletics. Enthusiasm characterized the meeting throughout and college spirit was very manifest. The principal business of the meeting was the election of a chief cheerer for the coming ball season.

Mr. J. L. Williams was unanimously chosen to fill the position, and through his efforts the student body can feel assured of something good in this line. After his election Mr. Williams made a short talk about what would be expected from the students, and following him Captain Smith, of the base ball team, likewise made a few remarks about the prospects of the coming team. Mr. T. G. Stem, president of the Athletic Association, spoke briefly concerning basket ball. Prof. R. L. Flowers spoke then of athletics in general and made several valuable suggestions as to the conduct of the team on the field and the students on the side lines. Messrs. E. B. Cooper, C. B. Nixon, W. J. Justus, and R. M. Gantt were also called upon and made appropriate remarks.

Although no fixed program had been arranged for the evening the meeting was productive of much good and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

GLEE CLUB AND ORCHESTRA

Will Leave March 5 for Eastern North Carolina.

ORGANIZATIONS TWENTY-SEVEN STRONG

Fourth Annual Tour of Club—Newbern, Morehead City, Greenville, Washington, and Probably Littleton, to Be Visited.

On next Monday morning, it is now certain, the Glee Club and Orchestra will start on its first trip during the spring term. The two organizations will go over the Southern to Goldsboro, where a stop-over for dinner will be made. From there the remainder of the trip will be made over the A. & N. C. road to Newbern, at which place a concert will be given that evening. On the following day the organization will proceed to Morehead City, and Tuesday will be spent in sightseeing and visiting points of interest around Beaufort and Morehead. The second concert of the trip will be given at the latter named place in the evening. On Wednesday the Club will give an entertainment in Greenville. From that place, on a launch chartered especially for this purpose, the trip will be continued down the Tar River to Washington, where probably the last concert of the tour will be given. Manager Pugh, however, is now endeavoring to extend the trip so as to include Littleton on the return. The Club will get back to Durham not later than Saturday.

This year a larger number of members than has been customary hitherto will be carried, the total number being twenty-seven. The fourth annual tour promises to be the most successful yet conducted, in the history of the organization, and an enjoyable time is anticipated.

STEM IS CAPTAIN.

Elected to This Position on Basket Ball Team—List of Most Promising Candidates for the Team.

The material for the basket ball team is now beginning to get into shape, and it will not be very much longer till the five men who will constitute the team, with two substitutes, will be chosen. Every day practice is being given and the candidates are working hard. Last week Mr. T. G. Stem was elected captain, and he is giving his undivided attention to the development of the team. There are quite a number of candidates from which to pick. Some of the most promising are: Garland Greeyer, T. A. Holton, T. M. Grant, C. R. Claywell, C. E. Phillips, C. R. Pugh, H. E. Spence, B. S. Womble, E. O. Cole, L. G. White, E. O. Young, J. A. Boone, F. S. Love, L. C. Bledsoe, and Casper Smith.

THE TRACK TEAM.

Just at this season of the year it is customary for us to hear something about a track team, but this term there has been no movement by the Athletic Association to get students interested in this important branch of college athletics.

If the South this form of sport is increasing in popularity and Southern colleges and universities are taking an active interest in it and are arranging outdoor and indoor intercollegiate meets all over the Southern States.

As a valuable and an upbuilding factor in college athletics the merits of track work are already too well known to everyone to require a detailed discussion of them here, but one of its principal points of worth may be noted. At the athletic rally held last Friday night, the statement was made by one of the speakers that any college athletics are productive of good in proportion to the number of students that can take part in them.

From this statement we can easily see that track athletics must be rated high in the scale of efficiency of sports, for we know of no other form of athletics in which as many can participate and which has as wide and as diverse a scope of activity as has this. In this work, men unfitted for one particular thing may find something peculiarly suitable to themselves in another phase of the same sport, for a track team can hardly be said to consist of a fixed number of members.

Year before last Trinity met the Agricultural and Mechanical College in a track meet between the two institutions at Raleigh, and while Trinity did not score the greater number of points, her showing was not at all to be ashamed of. Last year no meets of this nature were entered into by Trinity, but the coming few months promise ample opportunity for her to engage in them and perhaps win distinction for herself in this form of athletics as well as in other forms of sport.

The University of Virginia is doing much good work endeavoring to arrange a large and representative meet to be held at that place on April 21st, and her many friends would like to see Trinity included among the institutions entered for various events on this occasion.

If she is to be represented at this meet, it is necessary that systematic work be begun at once and that a team be given proper training, for no team can hope to make good records and be of credit to itself and its institution without fit training and proper organization. When it is known, too, that invitations have been issued to between forty and fifty educational institutions, to be represented at the meet, it can easily be seen that those winning events in the different contests will, at the same time, win a distinction which is quite worth while.

There was something said at the athletic rally Friday night that we would like to further call to the attention of the student body, and this is that a large number of students should be out each afternoon on the bleachers and in the grandstand, to watch the practice of the ball team. There is scarcely anything that can encourage the players more than this. They feel that the efforts they are putting forth toward the making of a team that will be worthy to represent the Trinity students is being appreciated. And in so doing no one is at a hardship, for it is very interesting to see the boys practicing, and besides it is a good kind of recreation. This applies, of course, not alone to the boys, for the presence of the young lady students is desired as much, if not more, than that of the young men. So come out and give the team your encouragement and let them see that you have an interest in them.

At the last meeting of the staff of THE CHRONICLE several questions of importance to the paper were discussed and some changes were made in the different departments. Mr. B. S. Womble, editor of the law and alumni department, finding that his time was engrossed by other things, resigned his editorship, and Mr. H. E. Spence, editor of the Squibs department, was chosen to fill this vacancy. The last named department was abolished, and the department of which Mr. Spence is now editor will be known as the Alumni department. The amendment to the constitution of the paper effecting these changes is published elsewhere in this issue of THE CHRONICLE.

The address delivered by Dr. J. E. White last Thursday night was one of the best that has ever been our good fortune to hear and, it may justly be said, even surpassed the expectations of the audience. Those who made the occasion possible are to be thanked most heartily for their efforts and congratulated on the success which attended them.

Amendment.

The following amendment has been passed by the Board of Control of THE CHRONICLE:

That article V. be amended so that the law and alumni department and the squibs department be merged into one, called the alumni department, in charge of one editor.

Dr. Bassett's "The Federalist System."

The nest of scholars over at Trinity College has given to the world another book, while yet Dr. Mims' Life of Lanier is under national discussion. This is volume XI. in a series entitled "The American Nation, a History," and is by Dr. John Spencer Bassett. The series is edited generally by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard, who contributes a brief introduction to this volume. The book is bound in cloth, is well made and well printed, contains 311 pages of reading matter arranged in 20 chapters, 9 maps, and a complete index.

"On its political side," says the author, in his preface, "this volume treats of three principal facts: The successful establishment of the government under the Constitution; the organization of the Republican party on the basis of popular government, and the steady adherence of the government to a policy of neutrality at a time when we were threatened with serious foreign complications. The first achievement was chiefly due to Hamilton, the second to Jefferson, and the third to Washington, first, and after his presidency, to John Adams."

The details of this scheme, worked out with scholarly care, are extremely interesting and afford information of the early struggles of our government which no conscientious citizen should be ignorant of. The confusion on account of the lack of precedents at the organization of Congress and Washington's first inauguration, the daring financing of Hamilton when a man of his genius and nerve was indispensable, the beginnings and growth of the Republican party, the troubles with England about the Northwest and trade regulations and with Spain about the Southwest, the meteoric if not volcanic career of Genet as Minister of France, the whiskey insurrection, Indian wars and treaties, the sad failure of Washington's experiment with a bi-partisan cabinet, the evolution of anti-slavery sentiment, the narrow rub with France, and the downfall of Federalism—all this ground is covered in admirable style, and not a page of it but will interest and instruct the reader. Says the author, in conclusion, after paying due credit to the Federalist for having given strength to the Union in its early, experimental days, that its adherents fell into factions and mad dreams and "So much did they bring into contempt the idea of government by the superior classes, that no capable politician since 1800 has dared to place his cause on any other ground than the will of the people." The 20th chapter, a "Critical Essay on Authorities," is a very valuable congestion for future students of the period.

It has been well known that Dr. Bassett had this work in hand and has been at his researches for months. It justifies his scholarly labor and is a dignified contribution from this State to the literature of history.—Charlotte Observer.

The University of Indiana has adopted twelve of the fourteen rules drawn up by the Chicago conference of the nine largest Western institutions of learning. The two rules unaccepted provided that all entrance work to the institution must have been passed by football players and that no person should be hired to coach a football team except as a member of the faculty.

THE TWO TRINITIES.

Dr. Bassett's Trip to Hartford —He Speaks of Trinity College of That City.

Trinity College students and professors have long known much about Trinity College in Hartford, but it was not till last week that one of our number made a visit in person to the Northern Trinity, which, like our own institution, was named for the famous college at Cambridge, in old England. This visitor is Professor Bassett, who has just returned from a visit to Hartford, where he spoke on the morning of the 19th to the students and faculty of our New England namesake on "Some Post-Bellum Changes in Southern Life." Of his lecture the Hartford Courant says:

"Professor Bassett began his lecture by saying that when the Civil War ended three great acts of liberation, besides the notable proclamation of President Lincoln, had been performed in the South. The spirit of democracy had been liberated from the domination of an aristocratic, but attractive, form of society; local trade had been liberated from the control of the plantation system; and manufactures had been set free from the rural despotism which had hitherto made their existence well-nigh impossible. The most striking result of the war was the destruction of the old planter class. This class, refined, intelligent and politically capable, found the economic basis of its system suddenly destroyed. But though the old planters in the new regime became as poor as the rest of the Southerners, their influence, which had always been supported by superior traits of character, did not vanish for a quarter of a century. Until death thinned their ranks to an inconsiderable number they retained great social influence and were leaders in shaping political policy in the South. That social and political upheaval which came about 1890, and which we are accustomed to associate with the rise of the people's party, was in an important sense but the protest of the new democracy against the control of the weakened hand of the old aristocracy.

"But the new democracy is not so efficient or happy a state of society as the old aristocracy. It is weak in leadership, lacking in self-control, sensitive of criticism, and is a little apt to see enemies where none exist. In a word, it is but a transition stage. The old planter was not of the people, and as a political leader was not afraid of popular clamor. The new leader is a man who has come up from the people and has not the certain influence of rank which the old leader had. Concerned in his own career his leadership is unsteady.

"In the development of trade the process since the war has been simply and easily observed. Formerly the plantation dominated industry, and the wage-earning class was so inconsiderable that it practically did not exist. With the new conditions, however, the latter class immediately became an important factor of the industrial community. In their development the towns have drawn on the resources of the surrounding country, so that at the present day there is a noticeable exodus from country to town. It seems probable, also, that the urban element will be stronger in the population as the years go by; that there will be trading towns everywhere and manufacturing towns in those regions in which labor is not drawn more freely into agriculture. It is probable that the towns will come to be the strongest influences in society, and that they will control capital and political life and set the standard for all kinds of ideals.

"In the regions in which it seems that manufacturing towns are destined to be the strongest, we shall see the most rapid development of change. It is not too much to say that here will be the first and strongest touch of cosmopolitanism, the first appearance of a two-sided political press, and the first replacing of that old notion that the South must have a peculiar kind of civilization, by a wholesome conviction that it is but one part of a great world which moves to a common law. From this citadel, when once it shall have been occupied, the forces of progress may move with the assurance of victory."

A CHRONICLE reporter interviewed Professor on his return and found him enthusiastic in regard to the Hartford Trinity.

"What do you think of our Northern friends?" he was asked.

"I think that they are true Trinitarians—whole-souled, courteous, and full of the spirit of work," he replied. "The faculty impressed me as exceedingly earnest men, committed, like our own faculty, to develop jointly the best spiritual and intellectual powers of the students. The buildings are adequate, one of them being quite a fine one. The campus is just the size of ours, and it is beautifully located on the banks of the Connecticut river. As I looked over it, with its covering of snow, I thought of our own boys, far away, practicing for base ball; and I wondered if they realized how much they are indebted to nature for the finest winter climate in America."

On the evening of the same day Professor Bassett addressed The Get-Together Club on the Race Problem of the South. He made a broad plea for less passion in the discussion of the question and urged that its settlement be left to the South. These sentiments were received with marked attention, and they were echoed in several impromptu addresses which followed that of the Professor.

THESES ABOLISHED.

Time Heretofore Devoted to This Work Given to Other Instruction.

At a recent meeting of the faculty an important step was taken by which Seniors will not be compelled henceforth to write theses as a requirement for graduation. This step, however, will not mean in any way a lessening of work for the members of this class, as the time heretofore given to this work will be utilized in other more practical instruction, beneficial to the student. Among other things special attention will be given those deficient in any way, in writing.

All Seniors who are contemplating entering the contest for the Wiley Gray medal, however, must observe all of the regulations governing this contest as laid down in the catalogue. From present indications the contest promises to be a lively one.

It is well-nigh certain that the abolition of theses will be a highly profitable measure to all those whom it directly affects.

The man who shall be adjudged the best debater at this final contest will be awarded a set of books by Hon. J. H. Southgate, of Durham. The winner of this prize last year was Mr. Holland Holton.

and they are to the point. As we have made it our specialty for so many years, it must be admitted that we are well posted on buying because we never receive complaints about anything purchased here. That's pretty good proof, we think, that people get their money's worth. Be wise and take a walk to our establishment.
