DOCTOR KILGO'S SERMON.

Delivered to Students and Members of the College Community Sunday.

SUBJECT, "CHRIST AND SCHOLARSHIP"

A Discussion of the Old Conflict Between Science and Religion—An Answer to Modern Scholastic Skepticism.

For several years past it has been the custom of President Kilgo to preach to the student and college community from time to time during the college year. According to this custom, it was announced that he would preach last Sunday morning in the Craven Memorial hall. The audience was composed almost wholly of students of the College and Park School and members of the faculty, but a good percentage of these was present to hear Dr. Kilgo's logical discussion of science and religion.

He read as his text the 22nd verse of the 27th chapter of Matthew, "Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified," and spoke in substance as follows:

"Jesus is no less the world's supreme problem today than when He stood before Pilate. To Pilate this question meant no more than the getting rid of an unpleasant task. He did not realize the depth of the question he asked nor the judgement passed. Here we have a most illustrious example of a man taking part in a crisis about which hinged the destiny of the ages and not appreciating the full significance of it. To dispose of Jesus was to him simply to perform an unpleasant duty, to end with that.

"They crucified Him but they did not get rid of Him, and the Son of God today is the one supreme problem of the world. He is the one vexing question before human thought. Jesus is not only a subject for our thought, and for historical research, but He is a personal question for our lives. He is the supreme issue of universal destiny. Upon Him all things depend. What shall be done with Him is the one commanding question of this age. Upon what throne shall He be set? Where is His just place in the classifications among men? This question must be settled by men and for men."

The speaker then, beginning with the prophecies of Christ's coming and taking up the events of His birth and life, the beginning of His ministry and the miracles that He performed, showed the uniqueness of His character and how His personality stands alone in the annals of society. He said, "His whole history is a history which isolates Him among men. He reversed all the processes of nature. The waves of the sea hushed their

FORTNIGHTLY MEETINGS.

Dr. Vaughn Reads Interesting Play—Dr. Brown Tells of Research Work in England.

On the eighteenth of December, the Fortnightly Club met in the Hesperian Society hall for its last regular meeting before the holidays. The meeting was in charge of Dr. Vaughn of the department of Modern Languages and proved to be one of the most interesting meetings held in a long time. Dr. Vaughn, while pursuing his studies in Italy, was a member of an all American club, which, after the American fashion of doing things in a strange way sometimes required that its members do something that they had never done before. At one meeting they were required to read an original play. Dr. Vaughn read, for the edification of the Fortnightly Club, the result of his effort at that time.

The play, as was explained, was written at odd times, while waiting for a meal at a restaurant, or while waiting for a train at the stations, etc., but despite this it showed a great deal of merit and was more than interesting both in plot and in style. The scene of the play was laid at Sienna, Italy and was full of the street life as Dr. Vaughn saw it there. Two especially striking passages were the description of the cathedral at Sienna and the scene where he pictures a fortune teller fleeing the crowd. A picture quite often.

After the reading refreshments consisting of fruits and nuts were served and for a few minutes the club enjoyed a general discussion of topics of general interest. Mr. Cerobino, the Italian friend of Dr. Vaughn, who has been spending the fall in Durham doing some work on Neapolitan dialects in conjunction with Dr. Vaughn, was present as a visitor and was introduced to the members of the club.

The club met again January 7th, for the first regular meeting after the holidays and after transacting general business, Dr. Brown of the department of English talked very interestingly of the ups and downs of research work in England. He gave a description of the British Museum and told of some of its rare articles. His description of an encounter with the Clerk of the City of London, is an effort to obtain permission to see the archives of London, was quite amusing and interesting.

This will be the last meeting until after examinations. Mr. Siler, of the graduate school, will then take charge of the meeting and read a paper which he is now preparing.

Dr. H. H. Vaughn attended the meeting of the Modern Language Association which met at Cornell University during the holidays. The paper prepared by Dr. Vaughn, "A Study of the Neapolitan Dialects," will appear in the Romantic Review.

NEW MOVEMENT ON FOOT.

Students Employment Bureau Organized by Y. M. C. A.

MR. VICK TO HAVE CHARGE OF WORK.

Mr. Knott and Mr. Hanes to Assist Him—They Propose to Find Employment for Men Wishing to Earn Expenses at College.

At the last meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association before college closed for the holidays, a movement was set on foot whereby there will be some means to help secure work for those young men who desire to come to college and who cannot come unless they can work to earn the whole or a part of their expenses. The Y. M. C. A. thought the movement a good one and decided to establish a "Bureau of Employment."

There are many worthy young men in North Carolina and other states who would come to college if they could find the means to defray their expenses. Often such men would be the most influential and helpful men of their community if they could obtain a college education. Last fall there were upwards of fifty men who applied at the college office to know if they could obtain work to pay a part or all of their college expenses. And they did not ask for light jobs. They were willing to do anything from milking cows to sweeping floors. These are the men that the world needs today. Men who will lead instead of follow. Such men need to have the proper tools in order to do their best work and one of these tools is a college education.

In order to help them get this tool, the Young Men's Christian Association has established this bureau. The Durham County Alumni Association has already been doing a work similar to this and hereafter the two will work in conjunction. Mr. Vick, the Vice-President of the Association, and the man who proposed the movement was placed at the head of the work and Messrs. Knott and Hanes were chosen as his assistants. They will make a canvass of the town and find all positions that will be open to students of the college. A list of these will be placed on file at the office of the bureau where ready reference to them can be had when an application for work is received.

The young men who have charge of this department of the work of the Y. M. C. A. are quite efficient and willing in their endeavors to help worthy young men and it looks as if this work is going to prove a great thing for the interests of the college and best of all, for the help of struggling young men. Of course the Bureau cannot hope to get in very good working order this spring, but by summer time they should have things pretty well worked out and the important feature of

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Columbian Literary Society Selects Leaders for Third Quarter—Dr. Glasson Talks on Interest in Inter-Collegiate Debating.

Last Saturday evening, in regular session, the Columbian Literary Society elected officers to serve during the third quarter. The election was most interesting and many of the men got their position by barely one vote. The following was the result:

T. H. Wilkinson, of Augusta, Ga., President.

W. T. Brothers, of Elizabeth City, Vice-President.

A. D. Byrd, of Mount Olive, Recording Secretary.

W. H. Muse, Durham, Corresponding Secretary.

R. D. Korner, Kernersville, Censor.

R. G. Cherry, Gastonia, Chief Tribune.

L. M. Epps and A. W. Byrd, Associate Tribunes.

W. L. Johnson, Clerk of Tribunal.

R. L. Ferguson, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

N. M. Wright, P. B. Rand, London and Perry members of Ex. Committee.

Excellence Rozelle, Gastonia, Marshal.

Dr. Glasson, faculty member of the Debate Council, appeared before the society in interest of the Sewanee-Trinity debate. He spoke of Trinity's reputation in debating and of the humiliation of the defeat last year especially urging upon the men the importance of showing their interest in the debate by coming out in the preliminary. Last year very few men appeared on the preliminary and as a result the debating team had but very little preliminary practice and thus was lacking when the time came. He said that it would be much better to have too many trying for it than to have too few. The question this year is a hard one but it is a live issue and one that is being very much discussed and, as Dr. Glasson pointed out, it makes no difference whether a man hopes to win or in the preliminary or not it will do him a vast amount of good to enter and try.

Dr. W. K. Boyd attended the meeting of the American Historical Society which met in New York during the holidays.

The Bureau is that its work will continue through the summer months. One of the men on the committee will remain on the campus all the summer and answer all mail and look after the work of the Bureau. They can keep in touch with the work in the college office and can rely upon the Durham County Alumni Association for valuable aid. This is one of the best moves ever made by the Young Men's Christian Association and deserves to be a success.

FRESHMAN SOCIAL DEBATE.

In Meeting of Societies Freshman Discuss Negro Political Question.

DECISION IN FAVOR OF AFFIRMATIVE.

Attendance Good and Much Interest Shown—Perry and Haymen Enter Into Warm General Debate While Judges Make up Decision.

On December 18, the last Saturday evening before college closed, the Columbian and Hesperian Literary Societies met in joint session in the Y. M. C. A. hall for the purpose of a social debate. The contest was open to members of the Freshman class and four men from each society had been chosen, by means of preliminaries, to represent them in the debate.

The question for discussion was: Resolved; That the recent franchise amendment to the North Carolina constitution is the best method towards a solution of the negro political problem. The speakers were arranged with two Columbians and two Hesperians on each side of the question, as follows:

AFF.	Neg.
Slaughter (C)	Ward (C)
Cheek, T. E. (h)	Harbison, E. J. (h)
Byrd, A. W. (C)	Hayman (C)
Warlick (H)	Hornady (H)

The affirmative took the ground that the educational qualification was an incentive to the negro to improve his condition and that since the passage of the amendment many negroes were voting under this qualification who at first could not vote. They showed that the amendment was just in that it was applicable to both races and that it was the best solution to the negro problem because the solution lies in the education of the negro and the amendment lead up to that. The negative took the ground that the amendment was unjust in that it left the man's qualification to vote in the hands of the registrars and that the negro was thus unjustly discriminated against because of race prejudice. They claimed that it was not the best solution of the problem and offered as a substitute a property qualification measure.

The argument on both sides of the question was strong and about evenly divided. Perhaps the most forceful speaker was Mr. Cheek. His argument was splendidly connected and most logically arranged. He did much toward winning the decision for his side. On the negative side of the question one of the coolest Freshman debaters seen here in a long time was Mr. Ward. He was exceptionally good on his rejoinder. The judges Dr. Boyd, and Professors McIntosh and Meritt, after having been out for consultation a good while, rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative.

EXAMINATIONS.

Again we approach that exciting period of the scholastic year which we all look upon with a certain kind of awe and fear—examination time. As this will be the last issue of the Chronicle before that period it is well that we drop a few remarks concerning these abominations, to the souls of some students. The stress of examination period is felt by the whole community, not even the staff of the Chronicle, which is immune to the common ills of life, being exempt at this time. So much does the staff feel it that, with this issue the Chronicle will postpone publication until the second day of February, when the storm period shall have passed over.

There are many things to be said about examinations both for and against, but at this particular time the most of them will be said against. However, there are many things in favor of examinations and at this time when so much is being said against them it is well to remember some of their good points.

Among these good points about the first one to be mentioned from the point of view of the instructor, is that they are an easy way to get out of a whole lot of hard work trying to get students to study during the term. In Trinity College, as well as elsewhere, there is a class of men, who will work only when urged by a goad. For this class the examination furnishes the proper goad. If it were not for the fact that he looks forward to the examination at the end of the term, many a man would do just enough of his work to barely skim over the recitation hour and half the time he wouldn't do that.

There is the other class of men who will always get up their work for the sake of the knowledge acquired. Upon first sight it would seem that an examination is an injustice to these men but they derive a certain benefit from it that they would not get otherwise. In their review preparing for the examination they have a chance to strengthen their knowledge at weak places and to connect logically what was first acquired by lumps.

Another point which we rarely ever consider about an examination and which is the greatest good it can bring to a man. It is a revelation, to the man himself, of what he knows about the subject on which he is examined. The instructor does not need to hold an examination to tell him what the pupil knows. If he is a good teacher he can very easily find that out. But some pupils are so filled with conceit or have such a vague conception of knowledge that they think they know all about a question when they are able to answer about half of it. To such persons an examination is an awakening to their gross ignorance. They need just such a questioning to bring them face to face with the fact that they are woefully ignorant of the subject studied.

These are but a few things to be said in favor of examinations and there are equally as many to be said against them, but whatever we may say the one fact remains that we have to stand the examinations. As yet no satisfactory substitute for them has been found and it therefore behooves us as students to take them in good spirit, doing the best we can, and if we fail to pass the required margin, determine to put our hand to the plow and pass it next time or break a trace.

SOME REMARKS.

In every body of men there are always some who are devoid of those principles of gentlemanly conduct which every self-respecting man should strive to cultivate. In other words we are again reminded that there is a black sheep in every flock. Trinity College is by no means free from these—what shall we call them? Of late their conduct has become such as not only to be irksome to the better element of the college but it has descended to that of a criminal and we do not hesitate to say that such a man should not only be expelled from college, but should be dealt with according to the law. We refer to the thief in our midst. A man dares not put a book down in the windows of the windows of the Main Building leave it there for a short time and expect to find it when he returns. That such a state of affairs should exist in Trinity College is deplorable and the guilty party should be found and eradicated. To let him go undiscovered and continue his prepretations is a reflection not only on him but also on every man in the community.

College men are always lenient towards wrong doers in their midst and have ever been known to harbor criminals rather than be branded as tale bearer. It is deplorable that such a false standard of should exist among a body of supposedly intelligent men, for where a thief or criminal goes undiscovered in the midst of a certain group that whole group is bound to be held responsible for the misdeeds of the criminal.

Alumni Notes.

Mr. W. E. Roberts, a graduate of Trinity Park School with the class of 1903 and a member of the class of 1907 in Trinity for one year, is now residing at Bright, in the eastern part of the State of Washington. Mr. Roberts went to the Northwest with the intention of returning to Trinity within a year, but he was so fascinated with the country that he entered a homestead and is now prospering as an extensive wheat grower.

Rev. E. O. Cole, class of 1907, whose home is at Charlotte, has charge of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Stevensville, Montana. Last summer when the United States government opened several Indian reservations to white settlers by means of a lottery scheme, Mr. Cole registered a claim and was lucky enough to be awarded a tract of land in Montana of considerable value. It is very probable, however, that Mr. Cole will not be able to prove up on it as it would be necessary for him to give up his pastoral duties for more than a year and live on the land.

Mr. U. N. Hoffman, another member of the class of 1907 who succumbed to the "lure of the West," is now living in Tacoma, Wash., in the famous Puget Sound country. Mr. Hoffman was one of the founders of The Chronicle and was editor-in-chief during its second year. Immediately upon graduation he went with The Charlotte Observer as State news editor, remaining with it till last March when he went West. He is assistant city editor of The Tacoma Ledger, one of the leading dailies of the Pacific Northwest. Mr. Hoffman also conducts the religious pages, which is a feature of The Sunday Ledger.

Mr. J. A. Morgan, A. B., Trinity, 1906; A. M., 1908; is now for the second year Fellow in Economics and Finance at Cornell University. He has during the past term been assigned to instruct a section in elementary economics. Mr. Morgan reports that the faculty of the Graduate Department of Cornell has recently voted to accept his year of graduate work at Trinity College for the A. M. degree as an equivalent for one of the three years of residence required of graduate students at Cornell who are working for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. This will enable Mr. Morgan to complete his resident work at Cornell this spring, if he so desires.

The American Academy of Political and Social Science has published as the January number of its "Annals" A volume on "The New South." This volume consists of papers dealing for the most part with the various phases of Southern industrial development. Among the specific subjects included are forest resources and conservation, reclamation and drainage, railroad construction, good road building, power resources, and the movement for improved agricultural methods. Professor William H. Glasson of the Department of Economic contributes a paper on "Economic Needs of the South." Other papers from North Carolina are by Clarence H. Poe, editor of the "Progressive Farmer," and by State Geologist Joseph Hyde Pratt.

Resolutions.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from among us our comrade and classmate, James Archie Ferguson, we the members of the Sophomore class do hereby resolve:

First: That in the loss of our esteemed classmate, we individually lose a worthy friend; a man whose brief sojourn among us has made us better and wiser in the worth of true manhood; and that our class and college has lost one who bade fair to be a leader in the world of men and to make the world better, happier and wiser because he lived in it.

Second: That we extend to the bereaved family and relatives our heartfelt sympathy; for in the loss of comrade and classmate, we can in part realize their loss of brother and kinsman.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the class records; that a copy be sent to the relatives of our departed friend; and that a copy be published in the Trinity Chronicle.

Committee: W. G. Sheppard,
W. G. Matton,
R. G. Cherry.

Whereas, in His all wise providence, God has seen fit to call from earthly toil and tribulations, to His heavenly home, our esteemed friend A. D. co-worker, James Archie Ferguson, and whereas, he was a very enthusiastic member of this Association, and strove for the betterment of morality among his fellow students, and for the advancement of the cause of Christ, we, the members of the Young Men's Christian Association, do hereby resolve:

First: That in the death of Mr. Ferguson this Association has sustained a great loss; that it has been bereft of one of its most promising members; that it has lost one who was ever ready to exert all efforts for its interests.

Second: That we are greatly grieved at the death of our deceased brother, and that we extend to his family and relatives our deepest sympathy; yet in our loss and bereavement, we are reminded that he has gained eternal life.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Young Men's Christian Association, a copy be sent to the relatives of our deceased member, and copy be published in the Trinity Chronicle.

Science Club Meeting

At the meeting of the Science Club, held last Monday evening in the Physics lecture room, a very interesting program was carried out by some members of the Club. The attendance was not so very large, yet those who were present were very fortunate in hearing some important current questions of physical science discussed. The following program was carried out: Electro-Metallurgy of Iron, by W. H. Pegram; Energy of Radium, Prof Julian Blanchard; Report of the Meeting of the American Physical Society at Boston; Prof. C.
