NEW ATHLETIC FIELD TO BE BUILT.

Several Changes to be Made in the Campus—Other Buildings Contemplated in the Near Future—N. Underwood, of Durham, Contractor.

The editor of the Chronicle called on President Kilgo and asked him for some description of the buildings and other plans of improvement which are to be made at Trinity. I am sure the readers of the Chronicle will be glad to learn authoritatively something of the details of these improvements.

He said, "As you well know the College has been greatly in need of more room for its constantly growing demands. Not only has there been a lack of space, but our space has not been of the best arrangement. Our class-rooms are too few in number, too small, and otherwise inadequate. We have lacked halls for the use of the literary societies, and offices for the administration. These needs have become pressing, and through the loyal benevolence of Mr. B. N. Duke the Trustees are able to provide the required improvements."

"It is also easy to see that the location of the buildings on the Park does not make the symmetrical appearance that is desirable. The Washington Duke building, which is the prominent and commanding building in the present scheme, is to one side of a central line making a rather awkward picture of the whole arrangement of buildings. Mr. C. C. Hook, of the firm of the architects Hook and Rogers, Charlotte, has always been deeply interested in all that concerns the welfare of Trinity, he having planned the majority of the buildings recently constructed; and he conceived the idea of so changing the location of the front buildings that they might be located with reference to a central line, thus giving symmetry to the whole group of buildings. Following this idea Hook and Rogers have designed than plan which is being carried out."

"The central line will be drawn directly from the center of the Craven Memorial Hall, reaching Main street much further West than the present location of the main entrance to the Park. The Duke buildings will be taken down and in its place will be put up two building connected by a loggia and a tower which will rise to the height of 116 feet. The entire front will be 546 feet, and will be on a line drawn something like 30 feet to front line of the Duke building. These buildings will be classics in design,

BASE BALL PROSPECTS.

Practice Work Well Under Way—Candidate at Training Table.

Under the coaching of Dr. M. T. Adkins, who is beginning his third season as Trinity's base ball coach, and the captaincy of W. B. West the candidates for the team for the season of 1910 have been in active practice for the last ten days. A training table has been instituted where a base ball diet is served and the candidates are required to eat here and also to eschew all smoking although chewing is allowed. No effort is being spared to turn out a winning team.

A number of the vacant places on the team are going to be hard to fill but there is an abundance of candidates and with the switching of some of the old men to new positions these difficulties can be overcome. Kilgo at first, Sriter at second, Fitts at right, and Worley of the pitching staff will not be seen on the diamond this season. "Big Bob" Gantt is back on the campus but there is some doubt about whether he will play. West, W., West, C., Bandy, Flowers, Harris and Cooper have all played on the team before and will form the nucleus of it this year. There is some talk of W. West being shifted from his old position at third and given the initial sack, his place being filled by some of the many new candidates. C. West will be back at short and this is sufficient to say that everything in this part of the diamond will be well cared for. Bandy seems a likely man for second. It will be well remembered that he was a strong man on the famous team of '08. He is a heavy hitter and a fast clever fielder. Flowers has three strong opponents for his position in Spruce Simmey and Tuttle, all of whom are very competent catchers. Harris in left field with a batting average of .996 bid fair to hold down their same position this year. There is no telling who will occupy right field. Foushee and Henderson are both doing excellent work for it. Probably the most promising candidate for third, provided West is shifted to first, is Houston, the cracked third baseman for the Park School team last year. The record of W. West, who will captain the team is well known as he was the Allsouthern third baseman two years ago and he has had much experience not only as a baseball player but as a captain. The pitching staff is something of an unknown quantity and nothing definite can be said of it as yet. There are a number of promising candidates for the position. Godfrey, of Park School fame, Sam Gantt, the brother of "Big Bob", White, N. L., the s. utpaw of the Greensboro High School, Waggoner, and Wynn all show up well and there is no doubt that a good

CANDIDATES UNDERGO MYSTIC STUNTS

The Patriotic and Scholarship Society Initiates—Some Alumni Members Present—Usual Refreshments Served—Last Initiation of the Season.

Last Thursday evening witnessed the last of the initiations of the secret societies of the season. The occasion was the introducing of six candidates into the mysteries and traditions of the "9019," a society of the Junior and Senior class, for the promotion of scholarship and inculcation of patriotism. The candidates given a ride on "Gulielmus Capricornus" were M. E. Pearson, Hastings, Neb.; W. R. Bell, Concord; J. E. Brinn, Hertford; G. O. Fisher, Cary; W. G. Gaston, Lowell; and C. M. Hutchins, Durham.

The degree work was done in the "9019" hall on the fourth floor of the Epworth Inn building, and took up a good part of the evening. What transpired there will never be known but judging from the commotion the ceremony was accompanied with sufficient dignity to render the occasion a lasting memory in the minds of those participating. Much of the work was difficult and it is reported that owing to the heavyweight candidates the goat is dead this morning.

After the ceremonies were completed the crowd was treated to an informal spread in their hall. Refreshments consisted of fruits, cakes, nuts and sandwiches. While these were being enjoyed several members were called upon to respond to toasts. All was thoroughly enjoyed and adjournment was taken only when the light gave the signal that it was time for all good people to be in bed.

Those present were Prof. W. F. Gill, Dr. W. I. Cranford, Prof. J. C. Wooten, Prof. H. C. Doss, Prof. E. W. Knight, Prof. Holland Holton, Gilmer Siler, C. B. West, W. B. West, C. W. Fulford, P. J. Johnson, A. M. Proctor, M. E. Pearson, W. R. Bell, W. G. Gaston, C. M. Hutchins, J. E. Brinn and C. O. Fisher.

Establishment of an American Economic Review.

At the recent meeting of the American Economic Association in New York City, the Association voted to establish during the coming year a journal to be called the AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW. This is to be a quarterly journal intended to hold in the United States a place of similar character and influence to that of the BRITISH ECONOMIC JOURNAL in England. The new review is to be under the direction of a salaried managing editor whose term of office is to be three years. The

REFUSES TO PLAY.

Dispute Over Rules—Guilford Also Cancels.

To the great sorrow of the student body the great game of basket ball scheduled with Wake Forest for last Monday night was called off. Mr. West manager of the local team received a telegram from the Wake Forest manager last Friday stating that they would come and play us if the home team would agree to play according to their rules. The locals have been practicing under the collegiate rules all the fall and when they were at Wake Forest to play last week there was a slight disagreement about what rules they would use, but Manager West agreed to play under their rules and even with that disadvantage it seemed that the team would win until the last few minutes of the game. The local team is fully confident of winning the game on the home floor even playing under the rules which Wake Forest uses and Manager West stated to a reporter that he would not object to playing them according to their rules if it was not for the way in which the proposition was made. If the two teams have practiced under two sets of rules and they are to play under one rule in one game it seems but reasonable to play under the other rule in the second game but no, the telegram stated that Wake Forest would play by their rules or not at all.

The chief difference in the rules seems to be the statement in regard to throwing goals after a dribble and Trinity is proficient in doing this, thus the reason for wanting to play under the other rule. The contest would have been the best of the season if it could have been arranged but the inevitable has happened as it has happened for the last several years. It was just some such thing as this that prevented the last game arranged to be played here last year from ever being pulled off. The next game was to be with Guilford on next Thursday night. It is remembered that Guilford defeated the home team while they were on their trip and in a badly crippled condition and the boys intended to redeem themselves in the game Thursday night, but only yesterday Guilford cancelled the game.

plan for the inauguration of this new economic journal has been prepared during the past year by a committee of nine of which Professor William H. Glasson of the Department of Economics has been serving as a member. The Economic Association at its recent meeting voted to continue the same committee for another year and to empower it to select the managing editor of the new journal. The committee of nine is authorized to take general charge of all arrangement for inaugurating the AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW, and it is expected that such arrangements will be perfected not later than December, 1910.

CIVIC CELEBRATION DAY.

College Enjoys Holiday Followed by Great Address in the Evening.

NINETY NINETEEN GIVES RECEPTION.

Dr. Lynch Makes the Address of the Occasion—Exercises Under Auspices of "9019" a Patriotic Society—Good Crowd to Hear Speaker.

Yesterday the twenty second of February was observed as a holiday by the college, and as a civic celebration of the occasion, public exercises were held in Craven Memorial Hall in the evening and Dr. J. W. Lynch, pastor of the First Baptist church, made the address. This celebration is an annual affair given under the auspices of the "9019" a patriotic and scholarship society of the college. There was a good crowd present to hear the address and there has not been heard at Trinity College for a long time a more inspiring or forceful utterance. Dr. Lynch has a powerful force in his oratory and holds his audience tensely intent on every word that he utters and he makes every word count. It is hoped that he will be heard on the campus more often.

The exercises began at eight o'clock by singing "America" which was followed by prayer offered by Dr. Beaman, Presiding Elder of Durham District. Prof. Wooten introduced the speaker and in his remarks said, "In the present condition of our country, it is well for us to take our bearings, to see from whence we have come and where we are today. He who is blind to the conditions today had just as well be dead in so far as he can contribute anything to the upbuilding of his country. Many changes have come about in the last few years. We have gone wild on money making and often forgotten about man-making. The twentieth century man has to meet problems that the men of no other century have ever had to meet. The man today must fight and go down and rise from his fall to fight again and go down again and to rise again and again. The type of man we need now is one who is willing to make sacrifices, to quietly go about his work making his contribution to civilization."

Dr. Lynch then spoke in part as follows: I have come this evening to speak a good word for this state, in which most of us live, under the subject, "Patriotism and Higher Selfishness." I was not born in North Carolina. It was my destiny to first see light of day in the state whose noble sons makes the atmosphere of this national day. The man who adopts North Carolina as his home state may be as good a North Carolinian as the man who is native to its soil. In the one case citizenship is determined by election in the other it is determined by ordination.

THE MAN OF WORK.

In this day and time, when the cost of living has flown to the skies, and the struggle of many people for the necessity of life becomes greater and greater, we hear much said of the strenuous life and the man of work. So far as the college man is concerned, we fear that he hears more of it than he experiences, for the average student in American colleges of today lives, on the whole, a life of comfort and leisure. There are very few students of our colleges and universities who really do any strenuous labor.
For the most of them, the four year spent in college are the greatest year of leisure of their life. They never after that have such a good time and never afterwards are they so free in their thoughts, in their actions, or in their souls.

It is true that we have heard of one man who added an eleventh commandment as follows:
"Thou shalt work each day to the limit of thy power, consist-antly with the yet harder work which shall be thy duty on the morrow." But this man is an exception to the rule. Counting up the work that the average man does in college we will find that it is small compared to what he will be expected to do when he gets out in the world to earn a living for himself and perhaps a family. The average students has sixteen hours recitation work a week and we will grant that he spends 1 and 1/2 hours for the preparation of each lesson, although it would be nearer the average to say that he spends one hour in preparation of each. This makes 40 hours in all and not over 24 of it can be counted as hard work for as a rule the students on a recitation do not exercise themselves very much mentally, for if the lesson is prepared beforehand there is no need of the mental exercise and if the fellow was too lazy to prepare the lesson before class he certainly will not try to exercise his mind after going on class.

Now there is not a college man who has entered into the affairs of the world who does not work more than 40 hours a week.
A man of business has the hours of time into the late hours of night and to worry and plan and scheme over his business problems for long hours during the day.
This is the life that our colleges are preparing men for, yet in the preparing they are inculcating into men the habit of having their work so arranged that they do not have much to do and that they can do this whenever they get ready. We in our colleges are making the sad mistake of inculcating into our students false notions of the duties of life.
We frequently hear men say that their college days are the best days of their life no meaning that they received the best things of their life but that at college they were able to have the best time of their life in the sense of a good time that runs into rioting and carousals. We know that a man can have a good time at college and we also know that he can have an opportunity to do a tremendous amount of work and can there get a taste of what life will be in after years. It is well and good for a man to have fun and a good time but there is always a danger of a man carrying a thing to the extreme and that is frequently what occurs to the man who goes to college.

We do not believe that a man in college should be forced by compulsion to study but there should be some means to inculcate in him the idea that college life is simply a preparation for a greater life and that upon the quality of his preparation at college depends the degree of his success in after life. Of course at college there are other things to be learned besides books and a man would be a simpleton to spend all his time on his books, but he cannot learn these other things if he wastes his time standing on the street corners waiting for some one of the gender sex to pass, or loafing in the drug store waiting for some one to set up to drinks. There should be some way to compel the men in college to systematically account for their time.

THEATRE GOING.

It is characteristic of the human race to seek amusement and pleasure, always has been and always will be, and it is good that man is a pleasure loving animal.
If there were no things in life to divert a man's mind from his cares and toils and to rest his weary brain from daily problems and calculations this would indeed be a dreary abode but it is not so; and God has so ordained it that there shall be amusement and diversions, and that it shall be characteristic of man to seek after these amusements.

In his search for pleasure and for the poetical and beautiful in life man has invented the drama and the stage for their productions. In the beginning the play was but a man's soul seeking for a beautiful and poetic expression of the joy of living and being surrounded by the glories of God's universe. But when things of beauty and holiness and purity are placed in the hands of man there seems always to be some who seek to divert them into the sensuous and licentious. Thus the theatre which was first a thing of beauty and song has been perverted so far from its original purpose that it has sunk to the lowest depths of degradation and shame and its infamy is being flung broadcast over the land and men are spending their hard earned money that should go to provide the better things of life for them in order that they may have their blood fired with all the burning passion that has consumed many a man in its flames. The disreputable managers of some infamous traveling troupes have brought the stage to such a degrading position that decent people dare not attend any performances. Good shows dare not leave the large cities or they will go bankrupt and as a result we in the small cities but rarely have the opportunity of witnessing a really uplifting performance.

We are quite well aware that there will be an abundance of people who attempt to defend the theatre and the class of shows that come to a small city, Durham for instance. But let us take Durham, it is only necessary to glance at the pictures on the billboards flaunted in the face of self-respecting people to judge the character of the shows that come to Durham. And the same thing is true of all other small towns. What can be the purpose of the show that advertises that it will give a performance under the supervision of censors? Those who advertise the show know its purpose and those who attend know their motive and alas such a performance serves its purpose only too well.

Some men when asked why they should so lower themselves as to attend such a show answer by saying that they must learn the ways of the world. Well! if that is the way of the world we do not care to know anything about the ways of the world. We know too much about the ways of the world in that sense already. When a man makes an answer in that way he knows that he is not stating the truth about the matter and it is but that same old cry "a young man must sow his wild oats." There is such a thing as a man knowing too much of the ways of the world and many a man has been brought to his own destruction by an idle curiosity.

It is gratifying to us and to all loyal Trinity men and to all people who are interested in developing high morals and social purity that the student body of this college has put itself on record as one that will not patronize such infamy. When men can come to the point when they will say that they will not go anywhere nor keep company with any people when they could not have with them their mother or sister then we will have reached the point when our country is truly the land of the free and the home of the brave.

NEW BUILDING TO BEGIN.

and will be constructed of stone and pressed brick, and covered with green tiling. The two buildings in outward form will be identical in every detail. A large porch, supported by four stone Doric columns will form the entrance to them. Wide corridors will pass the entire length of each floor. The contract for the building, which the Executive Committee let last week to Mr. N. Underwood will, including the basement, have three stories. It will contain on the two upper floors 14 class-rooms, one of which will have a seating capacity of more than two hundred, and will be arranged in amphitheater style. The other classrooms are large and in every way admirably adapted to their uses. The basement rooms of this building will be used for various purposes. The contract calls for the completion of it by October 1, and when it is finished arrangements will be made to construct the East building which will contain the administrative offices, parlors, society hall, a chapel, class-rooms, and society halls. The scheme for the administrative offices is a most complete one. The halls for the literary societies will be on the second floor of the East building and at either end of it. They will be 40 x 50 feet, have united to them two committee rooms while a balcony will run around three sides, giving an opportunity for visitors to attend public debates, if they are desired. The ceiling of these halls will be in a dome shape and have a pitch of nearly 30 feet. When completed Trinity College will possess the superb society halls of which I have any knowledge.

"The loggia which will connect the two buildings will be 200 feet in length, the tower being in the center. One of the most difficult things in architecture is the planning of a tower. I do not know why it is so, but one rarely sees an impressive and significant tower. To this feature Messrs. Hook and Rogers have given very much and very patient study, having drawn a number of schemes, none of which seemed to quite meet their wishes. However, they have succeeded, and the tower they have planned is easily the most excellent piece of work in this field of designing of which I have knowledge. It is massive, impressive, instructive, inspiring, and harmonious. It will easily become of the notable pieces of southern architecture and about it no doubt it will gather the richest memories and sentiments of college associations."

"This scheme of building requires that there shall be a change in the entrance to the park and the grounds in front of the building. It is contemplated to build a fence on the front line along Main street, and while plans have been submitted for the grounds, they have not been fully adopted, and likely will be greatly changed from their present form. It will require very much grading to get the grounds to the proper line of level. The scheme made it necessary to change Main street both to the south and west of the park, as the west building came to the present street line. This change is being made, and Main street hereafter will parallel the railroad to West Durham. The street car line will be placed in the street. The Duke monument will be moved from its present location, but to what point has not been decided. The changes will necessarily move the Annie Roney Gardens, but they will be preserved at another point, and will likely include all the space between the new buildings and Main street.

"The improvements also include a new athletic field, and contractor its building has been given to a firm. This field will be located on a plot of ground lying to the west of the campus and on the street which leads from Main street to the Trinity Park School. It will require 25,000 cubic yards of dirt to grade this plot of ground to the proposed level. There will be ample room within the enclosure for two baseball fields and two games of baseball to go on at the same time. It will include, besides baseball diamonds, a running track twenty-five feet in breadth and more than a half mile in length. The present plot used as an athletic field will be thrown open as a lawn, and for buildings in the future. It is the hope of the Executive Committee to have the new athletic field ready by the beginning of the next college year. "The growth of your college has been nothing less than phenomenal, and I am frank to confess that the chief strain upon me during my connection with Trinity College has been an ever growing demand for enlargement, but such strains are inseparable from progress."

President Kilgo has in his office an excellent picture showing the entire scheme for the new building, and any student wishing to see it, it is certain the President will take pleasure in, not only showing it to him, but in explaining its various features.

staff can be selected from this number. No one has yet made the team and the final line up will not be selected until the first game is played. There are many other candidates and nothing definite can be said about them this early in the practice. These are only surmises of the reporter.

Taking everything in consideration it is clearly evident that Trinity is to be represented by another strong nine on the diamond this year. There is no doubt but that two strong slabs can be secured from the large number of candidates and with the already assured infield and outfield no one need have any worry as to the outcome of the present season.

Manager Crawford will have his schedule ready within a few days, and everyone is awaiting it with much interest. Beyond a doubt it is to be one of the best if not the best schedule that Trinity team has ever had.

I shall not understand the two in the walls of a Methodist institution."

"The focusing of our patriotic fire for a little while upon one part of our country need not and does not imply any lack of love for the whole of it. Such a thing would be out of harmony with the spirit of the day and with the broad and liberal spirit of this institution which is not confined by State lines nor trammelled by denominational tenets."

"Believing that patriotism must first be intensive before it can be extensive I proceed to lay down the doctrine of higher selfishness. That selfishness which is the endowing of the individual for the benefit of the social institution of which he is a part. It is the selfishness that fills and overflows and fertilizes like the river Nile. It is the getting for self that we may get for others. Self preservation is the first law of nature. The whole creation was carried forward in obedience to this law. God wants us to be somebody, to win a name, to acquire power. Unless we are something we can do nothing for others. God put no premium upon ignorance or voluntary weakness that might be strength. God works with tools and the greater his tools the better his work. If this were not true there would be no need of a Moses, a David, a Luther, a Washington."

"By developing and endowing our life we become at once an asset in the power of God. Jesus Christ himself first endowed his life and sacrificed it. He made a life full. He laid it upon the altar. The law of sacrifice is the law of love on fire, consuming itself for object of its, desired but sacrifices are sometimes premature; plucking an apple blossom to please a child; grinding the seed corn to appease the hunger of a few. But what of the future? A young man is called to preach and he sees the awful destruction of sin going on about him every day. He quits college and forfeits his chance to endow himself in order to enter the field and try to save a few. That is what I call grinding seed corn. 'To him that hath shall be given and he shall have in abundance but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.'"

The speaker here went on to show that the family and the home were the center of things; that all patriotism and obedience had its birth here. He said that Jesus was obedient to his earthly parents and served them. "Jesus Himself was intensely patriotic. He lived and taught in his own country and wept over its capital city. 'Wisdom is before the face of him that hath understanding; but a fool's eyes are in the ends of the earth.' The sermon from this text needs to be preached to those people who are popular abroad and despised at home; the hail-fellow-well-met on the street and boor at home; the women who are stars in society and poor keepers of the home; the man who can see the most in his brothers eye and not the mud still in his own eye; the Northerner who knows all about the race problem in the South and the Southerner who knows how to regulate the New York Exchange. Charity begins at home and so does everything else."

The speaker then showed the prominent part that men who had been born in North Carolina and emigrated had played in the affairs of the nation and in conclusion said, "If we are to strengthen our foreign influence, we must make deep and strong the home stakes of our own resources. By all means develop our own resources but in the midst of it let us not forget that a man's life consists not in what he bath. Learn from other states to reward and recognize home talent and keep more of it at home. I want to see in the South and in North Carolina an excess of imports over exports of talented men. The destruction of our forest and the deterioration of our land will not impoverish us so much as this eternal skimming of the cream of our talent."

After the address in Craven Memorial Hall the members of the '1919' gave a reception to the speaker in the Hesperian Society Hall. All the local members and many alumni were present besides the college faculty and a few invited guests. Refreshments were served consisting of salads, cream, cake, fruits, confections, cigars, etc. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by those present and the banquet adjourned at a late hour.

"JUST PUBLISHED"

Webster's NEW INTERNATIONAL Dictionary, (G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.) surpasses the old international as much as that book exceeded its predecessor. Editor in Chief, Dr. W. T. Harris, former U. S. Com. of Education. The definitions have been re-arranged and amplified. The number of terms defined has been more than doubled. The Dictionary, synonyms, pronunciation, have received unsurpassing scholarly labor. The language of English literature for over seven centuries, the terminology of the arts and sciences, and the every-day speech of street, shop, and household, are presented with fullness and clearness. In size of vocabulary, in richness of general information, and in convenience of consultation, the book sets a new mark in lexicography.

400,000 words and phrases.
6000 illustrations.
2700 pages.
