OPENING OF THE 54TH SESSION OF TRINITY

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED OPENING SERVICES LAST WEDNESDAY MORNING

THE LARGEST ENROLLMENT YET

Exercises in Craven Memorial Hall.—Bishop Kilgo Spoke.—Talks by Pastors of City and County.—New Men Welcomed by President Few.

Trinity College has opened its 54th session with the largest total enrollment in its history. Figures have been hard to obtain, but according to the most careful official calculation the total number enrolled at present in all departments, including Park School, Law School and School of Education, is slightly in advance of 700. Last year the total reached 660, which was the largest up till that time. It is thought that the number will increase still more, for new students are coming in on every train and several old students who had dropped out have written that they will return.

The opening exercises of the year were held Wednesday morning, September 11. The year was formally inaugurated by the traditional flag-raising event, in which the incoming senior class hoists a new United States flag which flies during the year, and at the close is locked up in the archives of the college. After the class president, W. A. Cade, had raised the flag, the class gave their yell lustily, and then the crowd adjourned to the Craven Memorial Hall for the more serious exercises.

The students of the Park School met with those of the college and a goodly number of the people of the city were present to hear the opening, which is always impressive. The services were opened with Scripture reading and a fervent prayer offered up by Bishop Kilgo for the welfare of the college and of the students. After the reading of many announcements, President Few called on the different ministers present to talk to the young men.

Bishop Kilgo spoke first. He began by saying that Trinity College would never have been in existence if it had not been for Jesus Christ and the religion of his followers. He declared that there is a nation wide need of colleges with a firm faith and trust in Christ, a faith of which they are not ashamed. He strongly advised the students to go to church and to do so until it should become an acquired habit, not necessarily, however, to the largest, most elegantly fitted church, but to the one where the best quality of religion is to be found. The Bishop concluded his remarks with an admonition against the cheap form of scepticism which is often the result of immature dabbling in science and in learning of all kinds.

Presiding Elder Beaman was called upon next. He began with a bit of reprieve at the expense of Bishop Kilgo, who the latter was not slow to answer. Rev. Beaman said that he, in his capacity of presiding elder, had charge of all the ministers of Durham and of Dr. Kilgo as well, and that any cases of false doctrine being taught by them should be reported to him. The Bishop produced a laugh by reply-

MONTHLY CLASS MEETING

Dr. W. I. Cranford Spoke in Y. M. C. A. Hall.—Urged Attention to Religion.

The monthly class meetings, which have come to be a feature of the religious life of the college community, were inaugurated for the present year with the meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. hall Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. These meetings are held regularly on the first Sunday of each month with the exception of the first meeting, which is held on the first Sunday of the college year. Dean Cranford was the speaker at the first meeting, talking on the subject, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Dr. Cranford admonished his hearers to attend primarily to the moral and religious side of their lives, saying that other considerations would care for themselves. Several students gave short testimonies of their religious experiences, and the meeting ended with a few words from Prof. W. H. Pegram and President W. P. Few.

DR. FEW TO SPEAK

Will Deliver Opening Address to Students Sunday Evening.

Following a custom at Trinity College the opening address to the students of Trinity College will be delivered by President W. P. Few in Craven Memorial Hall Sunday evening, September 22, at 8 o'clock.

Special music has been arranged for the occasion and several of the churches in the city have called in the evening services in order that members of their congregations might attend.

ing that a presiding elder wouldn't know false doctrine if he should see it.

Rev. Mr. Craven spoke next, and gave a hearty welcome to all the students to become attendants of Trinity church. He congratulated them on their advantages in entering such an institution of learning as Trinity College.

Rev. Mr. Parker, of the West Durham Methodist church, invited the young men to his church.

Rev. Constable, of the Durham circuit, said that he had nine churches which could be accessible to the students, and especially invited members of the ministerial band to avail themselves of the opportunity for work in these country churches.

Rev. Mr. Smith, of the Memorial church, said that he was glad that he college and the church stood for the same things, and expressed the hope that the students would become regular attendants of the Sunday school and church.

Prof. Peele, headmaster of the Park School, announced that the opening there was a record breaker.

President Few concluded the services with an intimate talk to the young men. He warned them against breaking up into clannish groups; putting small affairs before affairs of wider and more universal interest. He strongly urged them to practice economy in money matters, and welcomed the students to a year full of hard work and much happiness.

COLUMBIANS AND HESPERIANS IN NEW HALLS

FIRST REGULAR MEETING OF THE LITERARY SOCIETIES SATURDAY

MANY NEW MEN IN ATTENDANCE

Description of New Halls, Located As in Old Washington Duke Building.—Speeches Made Saturday Night by Various Members.

The first meeting of the year of the Columbian and Hesperian Literary Societies was held last Saturday night, and both halls were crowded with new and old men in large numbers. The feature of the first meeting of the societies held Saturday night as distinguished from the first meetings in former years, was the fact that both held their meetings in the new halls provided especially for them in the new East Duke Building. The Hesperians met in the hall in the east of the building, and the Columbians in the west end. The new halls are in the building which is located on almost the exact spot where stood the old Washington Duke Building which was burned nearly two years ago.

There was a considerable number of men present at the meetings last Saturday night who were in the societies when the meetings were held in the old Duke building and they well remember the many fine meetings and the numerous hot discussions that were had in those old halls. While all were greatly delighted with the new homes of the societies, and every one was elated over the prospects for a great year for each, there is at the same time not the slightest similarity between the old and the new. The new halls are almost an exact replica of the halls of the national Senate and House of Representatives at Washington. The desks and seats are arranged in semi-circular form peculiar to the congressional halls, and this ideal arrangement lends a dignified appearance to the new homes of the literary organizations.

No work of any importance was attempted Saturday night when the first meetings of the year were held, as all the efforts of the members were concentrated upon the new men in trying to persuade them to join their respective societies. Speeches were made by many of the leading members of the two organizations, and a powerful effort will be made to gather in the new men, for the greatest of rivalry exists between the two.

Professor Holland Holton, of the new department of debating, visited both societies, and spoke in the interest of the work which he is to have in charge during the coming year. He presented strong arguments in favor of all men taking the course who could possibly arrange for it. He showed how the course would help not only the individuals who take the work, but that it would be of inestimable value to the literary societies. He made the interesting statement that the number of men from each society who had signed up for the work were about equally divided, and said that he hoped that this would continue to be so.

The two new professors, Dr. Charles W. Pepper, of the De-

FALL BASE BALL PRACTICE

Captain Anderson Working His Men.—Game With Durham Hosiery Mills.

For the past few days, Captain Anderson has had the baseball squad out for the regular fall practice. So far only one game has been definitely arranged for the fall, but it is probable that others will be played. The game already arranged will be with the Durham Hosiery Mills on Wednesday, September 18. The Hosiery Mill always has a good team, and the game promises to be an interesting one.

Trinity's line-up for this game has not yet been finally settled, but very probably Fitzgerald, the star pitcher for the Park School last year, will be seen for the first time in the Trinity uniform. McClain who was the Varsity catcher last year, or Maddox, who was on the team a couple of years ago, will be behind the bat. Many of last year's men, among them White, Foushee, Anderson, Spence, Godfrey, Rose, and others, will be seen in their old form.

Among the new recruits this year there is much promising material. The pitching staff will be greatly strengthened by the addition of Fitzgerald and Knight, both from the Park School, who, with Boshammer and old "Dinah" Kanipe, will form a staff of which Trinity will have a right to be proud. Patterson and Litchfield, also Park School men, are showing up in fine form, and will be very likely to find a position on the Varsity this year. There are also several men who came to Trinity from Tennessee who will probably make some-one work for a place on the Varsity. Among these are Adams, Austin, and Abernathy. Other new men, too numerous even to mention, are going out for the practice, and the prospects are that Trinity will put out a team this year that will be equal to any in the state.

PLANS FOR RECEPTION

Committee at Work on Details of the Entertainment to Freshmen.

Preparations for the annual Y. M. C. A. reception in honor of the Freshman class are progressing rapidly. The committee that is arranging for the affair and preparing the admission cards was in session all of yesterday afternoon, and reports that great progress was made. Some four hundred guests are expected and the Association will do its utmost to give them all a royal time. The reception will be held in the Angier Duke gymnasium on Friday the nineteenth, at eight o'clock, and, following the usual custom, will be attended by all the students of the college, the members of the faculty, with their wives, the faculty of the Trinity Park School, and other especially invited guests. This reception has come to mark the formal opening of the college life, and the Y. M. C. A. very fittingly leads off in the welcome to the class of 1916.

partment of Greek, and Professor L. A. Forsythe, of the French Department, upon the invitation of the Hesperian society, accepted honorary membership in that organization.

THE WHERE AND WHAT OF LAST YEAR'S GRADS.

BEING A RECORD OF THE CLASS OF 1912.—WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND WILL DO

A LARGE NUMBER ARE TEACHING

Twenty-Seven of Class of 64 Are Teachers, Four Lawyers, Four in Technical Work, Three in Ministry, Two Farmers, One Journalist.

It is always a matter of great interest to students in college to see what become of those who have gone before them, those old comrades who have passed out of academic halls and have entered the battle of life. So it has been thought well to give here a list of all graduates of last year with an account of the work into which each has gone. The list given below will go to show that a college education, at least a Trinity education, does not raise up a class of idlers and economic parasites. The high percentage of the last year class having good positions is remarkable.

The records show that the great part of the class have gone into the teaching profession. Twenty-seven of the sixty-four members have entered this line of work. Law and technical professions tie for second place, having claimed four each. Three of the class have either entered the ministry or are in the theological department of some university. Three have positions with corporations. Two are farming, one is studying medicine and one has entered the field of journalism. The rest are either not located as yet, or have gone into mercantile trades and businesses of various natures. The roll of the class with the whereabouts of each in so far as this could be accurately discovered, is as follows:

J. N. Aiken has a position on the Times-Dispatch of Richmond. Eugene Allison has entered the Trinity Law School. W. H. Allison is at home at Brevard and is undecided as to what he will do. He is thinking of studying medicine. David Barringer is farming at Craven. Claude Bennett is at Hattiesburg, Mississippi, with the position of principal of the city high school. F. S. Bennett has the chair of English and Philosophy in Greensboro Female College. P. W. Best is studying medicine in the University of Pennsylvania. Miss Rosa Branch is teaching in the public schools at Dunn. C. B. Brinn is back in college taking his Master's degree. A. S. Brower is in Raleigh acting as statistician to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. A. D. Byrd is at home without a position as yet. E. E. Bundy will accept a position with the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. in their plant at Sanford, Fla. P. N. Constable is not located as yet and is at home in Durham. J. M. Currin is in the School of Architecture of the University of Pennsylvania. O. B. Darden is teaching in the city schools of Wilmington. Miss Blanche Duke is teaching in the county schools. J. G. L. Edwards is pastor of the Graham and Haw River Circuit. W. E. Eller accepted a position with the A. T. Co., but gave it up and is now teaching in Sturgills. L.

We bow our heads in sorrow at the unspeakably sad tragedy enacted last week at the State University. A great deal that has been sensational, much that has been un-wise, and a considerable amount that has been untrue has been published concerning it in the papers of the state. But railing against persons or things seems of no avail in such a case. It was one of those inexplicable things in life; a case in which Fate seized with a rough hand upon rather commonplace human affairs and wrought out her invariably tragic result. The affair was an utter accident. It was, of course, the fault of those connected with it; theirs, however, was not moral guilt but tragic guilt, the guilt of being so related to circumstances as to be instrumental in producing a tragic result. Attaching blame upon the University is foolish and it seems that the unhappy students involved are infinitely punished by the mere consciousness of the fact.

If there is to be any blame let it rest upon the institution, if it may be dignified with such a title, of hazing. It is rather hard for any very strong sentiment against hazing to grow up amongst students. It is often felt that hazing has good results. We have all seen new men in college who seemed to need some such treatment, and there is a tendency to feel that the evils of the practice are evils of degree and are not inherent.

Once or more in a decade, however a man contracts rheumatism from a mid-winter ducking and is maimed for life, or a man loses his life as in the case last week, and then there is a great outburst against the barbarous practice of hazing.

For many years past there has been no hazing in this college, and the same is true of many other institutions of the state, and of the South, and the practice has been on its last legs in the University, where the authorities have used every means to suppress it. Certainly, it has received its death blow now. No one can, in the face of the lamentable death of Mr. Rand, fail to condemn hazing as a practice exceedingly puerile, if not criminal, and beneath the contempt of students in the higher institutions of learning who are supposed to be men.

In the meantime we offer our most sincere respects to the family of the bereaved, and to the administration and student body of the State University.

WE TALK SHOP

In our maiden appearance last week we promised, or rather threatened, that we would do it, so, painful as it may be, we see nothing else to do but to speak briefly of ourselves. We, the editors, have undertaken the work of producing volume VIII of the college weekly in a most humble spirit. Seldom was anything ever undertaken with less experience. But if you have complaints to make of our work, please come to us with them and we will earnestly strive to remedy any faults which you may point out. Outside knocking, however, does no good either to the paper, the community, or the knocker himself. The paper holds itself in readiness at any time to receive articles from the pen of any member of the student body or faculty, and not only will accept such contributions, but earnestly solicits them if they deal with problems of vital interest to the community.

There are only a few things to be said as to the purposes we have in view in conducting the CHRONICLE. In the first place, we must print all the news; everything that is of interest to the community. Manifestly, since we appear only once a week, some of our news will be a bit old, but we hope to make up in such cases for lack of freshness by gain in accuracy. The CHRONICLE is the organ of the literary societies, and hence of the student body at large, since these are the most democratic organizations on the campus. We cater to no class, will wittingly give undue prominence to no phase of college life, and intend constantly to strive after an impartial and judicial attitude toward all college questions.

But we are a little broader than the student body in that we have the welfare of the whole college at heart. If a student publication be not of positive value to the institution at large, then it has forfeited its right to existence. If questions shall arise we will naturally have ideas of our own and express them from the viewpoint of the student, but we will constantly endeavor to remain in sympathy with the faculty, administration, and students alike.

Professor W. H. Wannamaker and family have moved into the house formerly occupied by Professor A. H. Meritt.

MANLY TO VISIT TRINITY

Noted English Professor of Chicago Will Lecture on William Vaughn Moody

Professor John M. Manly, head of the Department of English at the University of Chicago and one of the greatest English scholars in America, will honor the College by spending a week on the campus.

Prof. Manly is author of "Specimens of the Pre-Shakespearean Drama," and numerous books now in use in many colleges all over the country; he has published many scholarly articles on Middle English subjects, the drama, etc. He was one year exchange professor of the University of Goettingen, and was especially invited to lecture before the University of London, the University of Oxford, the Philological Society of London, and the English Society. He is managing editor of Modern Philology, and officially connected with the publications of many learned societies. Perhaps no American scholar is known more widely for his many and far-reaching contributions to scholarship.

Professor Manly, who will be accompanied by his sister, Miss Manly, will reach Durham on Friday for a visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Brown on the campus; on Monday night at eight o'clock Professor Manly will lecture in the Craven Memorial Hall on the late William Vaughn Moody, poet and dramatist. All members of the college community and all friends of the college in the city are cordially invited to hear this lecture.

THE SONG OF THE SONS

By PLATO DURHAM

O'erscarred and worn but unafraid

Trinity, my Trinity
I rest me in thy quiet shade,

Trinity, my Trinity;
To count again love's golden store,

To glean the morning fields once more,
To dream the fair sweet dreams of yore,

Trinity, my Trinity.

Thy grave and golden sunset bell
Trinity, fair Trinity,

Has wrought again its olden spell,
Trinity, fair Trinity;

Mine eyes are veiled in mist of tears
As from the far beloved years

The splendid vision reappears,
Trinity, fair Trinity.

Again at thy great altar-stone
Trinity, oh Trinity,

I kneel in silence and alone,
Trinity, oh Trinity;

Behold my tears of bitter dole
For all the sins that blot the scroll,

Oh let thy soul become my soul,
Trinity, oh Trinity.

Along the ways my feet have gone
Trinity, my Trinity,

The glory of thy soul has shone,
Trinity, my Trinity;

Thy banner like an oriflamme
Has led against the lines of Shame,

My battle cry was thy fair name,
Trinity, my Trinity.

Speak thou again the master-word,
Trinity, brave Trinity,

Regird me with thy master-sword,
Trinity, brave Trinity;

Where Truth's brave battle-splendours shine
Look thou for all the sons of thine

Along her foremost battle-line,
Trinity, brave Trinity.

After his graduation Mr. West was for one year principal of the Mt. Pleasant High School. He was then elected a member of the faculty at Rutherford College. During the summer he was elected to his present position. The reports are that Weaverville College has opened with fine prospects for a successful year.

A New Frau Shack

Along with the other building which has been going on around the campus during the summer, the old faculty house, better known as the Bachelor's Hall has gone thru a vigorous rejuvenation. It has been remodeled, cleaned up, painted inside and out, and is now a most attractive building, snow-white and spotless, fit dwelling place for the fair Co-Eds, for which purpose it has been prepared. No longer will the ladies have to trudge thru legions of mud to come to class, no longer will they be isolated from all the college community. Old students are carried back in remembrance to the days of the old Woman's Building and indeed they see in the new Frau Shack almost the replica of the old.

Mrs. E. F. Gunn, who operated the boarding house in the North Dormitory last year, will be the matron of the Woman's Building for the coming year. Mrs. Gunn is exceptionally well experienced in this line. She was the first to hold this position when the woman's building was first established and filled it with great success. She is a woman with a great sympathy and love for girls and is certain to make a most successful matron.

Asheville Trinity Alumni

On June 28th, at the new Hotel Langren in Asheville there was held a banquet of the Asheville Trinity Alumni. Twenty Trinity men were present at the really sumptuous spread in the beautiful Carolina room of this great Hotel. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed and made lively by interesting anecdotes of college life. Hon. Z. F. Curtis made a most efficient toastmaster. Speeches were made by Prof. Wannamaker as special representative of the College and by Mr. F. M. Weaver, a loyal member of the Board of Trustees of the College, Messrs. R. C. Goldstein, Don Elias, E. J. London, and others.

The Asheville Association is most active in the interest of the College and plans were discussed at the banquet for doing even more in the future for furthering the cause.

New Edition of Avery's Book

The Stone Publishing Company of Charlotte will issue this fall a second edition of the late Isaac Irvin Avery's book "Idle Comments," the proceeds from which will go to the Avery Memorial fund of the College.

Avery, who was a brilliant and talented alumnus of the college, died in 1904. Soon after his death a collection of his works was made by the late editor of the Charlotte Observer, Joseph P. Caldwell, who with the assistance of a committee of editors published it under the title of "Idle Comments." The book attracted as much attention as any book ever published in North Carolina and this new edition is sure to gain a warm and wide welcome.

Trinity Banquet

The banquet of the Albemarle Trinity Alumni held July 1st at the Southern Hotel in Elizabeth City was a success from every standpoint. There were present twenty-seven sons and daughters of Trinity from the Albemarle section who were in a Trinity spirit and thoroughly enjoyed talking of the bright future of our College.

The toasts were of a high order and all of them struck a note of optimism and hope. The following toasts were responded to: "Trinity's Contribution to the Common School," Prof. Dennis Simmons; "Trinity's Claim on the Church," Rev. T. M. Grant; "The Church's Claim on Trinity," Rev. F. M. Shamburger; "The Spirit of Greater Trinity," Prof. J. E. Brinn; "Greater Trinity," Dr. W. P. Few. It was a pleasure to the association to have our beloved President with us.

We would not be doing justice to the committee on arrangements if we did not mention our appreciation of their efforts to make the banquet attractive and pleasing to each of us. The efficient service of the Southern Hotel prepared an excellent menu and the guests were served in the most courteous manner.

It is gratifying to know that the meeting does not simply live in sweet memories, but it lives in a movement that allies the Elizabeth City District with the steady advance of Trinity. A movement was launched to raise one thousand dollars to help Trinity secure the one million dollar endowment. Five hundred and twenty-five dollars were subscribed that night, and at Mantoo at the District Conference seventy-five dollars more, making a total of six hundred dollars. The gift will take the form of a scholarship to be known as the Elizabeth City District Scholarship.

P. J. Kiker Superintendent

We are glad to print the following, which, together with an excellent cut of our former business manager, appeared in the current number of the North Carolina Education:

Mr. P. J. Kiker, Principal of the Mount Pleasant State High School was recently elected Superintendent of the Anson County Schools to succeed the late Superintendent J. C. Crawford. Mr. Kiker is a graduate of Trinity College and a teacher of two years experience. Few young men are better equipped to undertake such a work. As a student in the School of Education at Trinity College he exhibited unusual ability and he entered the teaching profession with a zeal and enthusiasm for the work that argued well for his future. He was a success as a teacher. He has energy, physical strength, professional training and practical experience. The schools of Anson County should prosper greatly under his leadership.

Meeting of Ministerial Band

The Ministerial Band held its first meeting of the year Friday evening at eight o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. The band is an organization of college men who expect to make the ministry their life-work, and there are always some forty or fifty members on the roll of the organization. The officers of the band are anxious to enroll all ministerial students in college and will shortly make a canvass of the new men.

The meeting Friday night was addressed by Dr. Franklin N. Parker on the subject "The Work and Purpose of the Ministerial Band." Several new men were present and joined the band at the close of the meeting. The Band holds meetings every Friday night.

A Barber Shop for the College

Among the most recent improvements added to the splendid equipment of Trinity College is the college barber shop. The shop will be under the management of Messrs. Shaffer and Bennet, two experienced barbers. It will be placed, for the present, in the room formerly occupied by the college bookroom. This arrangement, however, is merely temporary, as apartments will be secured in the Jarvis Hall upon its completion. The shop will be equipped with all modern fixtures and the service offered to the students will be the best obtainable.

The barber shop will be ready for business Thursday morning, and a large patronage from the students is expected.
