REAR-ADMIRAL ROBERT E. PEARY FOR COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM FOR 1913 IS FINALLY COM-PLETED

INCLUDE DISTINGUISHED NAMES

Commencement Sermon by Rev. G. P. Eckman, Editor of the New York Christian Advocate.—Alumni Address by Rev. Woods, Editor of the St. Louis Advocate.

The program of the commencement exercises for the college this year has been finally prepared and offers a list of most distinguished speakers. The feature of the program will be the Commencement Address which will be delivered by Rear-Admiral Peary.

The commencement exercises this year will begin Sunday, June 1, when the Baccalaureate Address will be delivered by President William Preston Few. The Board of Trustees will hold their annual meeting on June 2. On Tuesday morning, the Commencement Sermon will be delivered by the Reverend George P. Eckman, D. D., Editor of the New York Christian Advocate. The Alumni Address will be delivered by the Reverend C. C. Woods, Associate Editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. Wednesday Morning, June 3, the Commencement Address will be delivered by Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary, of Washington City.

The College is to be congratulated on securing these speakers for next commencement. In recent years many distinguished speakers have been heard at the Trinity commencements. Probably never before has the college secured more distinguished speakers than for the next commencement occasion.

Dr. Eckman was for many years one of the most forceful pastors in New York City. At the last general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church he was elected Editor of the New York Christian Advocate to succeed Dr. J. M. Buckley. He is an A. B. and A. M. graduate of Wesleyan University. He received the degree of B. D. from Drew Theological Seminary, and the degree of Ph. D. from New York University. He also received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Syracuse and Wesleyan Universities. He is author of "Controversial Elements in Lutherans," "The Young Man with a Program," "Studies in the Gospel of St. John," "Passion Week Sermons." He has for a number of years been one of the most popular lecturers and preachers in the country.

Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., is known the world over as the discoverer of the North Pole. He is a member of almost all of the principal geographical societies in this and foreign countries, and has secured medals from many learned societies. Not only is he a famous explorer but a forceful and interesting public speaker. There are few men whose services have been more in demand. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and has received from this institution the honorary degrees of Sc. D. and LL. D. He also secured the degree of LL. D., from the University of Edinburgh.

He made his first arctic explorations in 1886. After discovering the North Pole he was promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral in the United States Navy and given the thanks of Congress in 1911. He is the author of "Northward over the Great Ice," "Nearest the Pole," "The North Pole." There is probably no speaker in the country who would be heard with greater interest.

The Alumni of the College are especially fortunate in securing the Reverend C. C. Woods, of St. Louis to deliver the Alumni Address. He is one of Trinity's most honored sons. He has filled many important positions, as pastor, college president, and editor. For a number of years he has been Associate editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. He is the author of "The Passing Years" (poems). He is a most forceful and interesting public speaker.

It has been the policy of the college to invite for Commencement speakers men who have rendered distinguished service, and in this respect it is particularly fortunate this year.

SCIENCE CLUB MEETS

Prof. Pegram on Modern High Explosives.—Short Paper by Prof. Edwards.

Modern High Explosives was the subject of a paper read before the Science Club at its regular monthly meeting Monday night by Prof. Pegram. Prof. Edwards also read a short digest of a paper on ventilation.

Prof. Pegram first dealt with the subject of gunpowder historically, beginning with its discovery and its first recorded use in the battle of Cressy in 1346. He traced the steps in its development, the invention of nitro-glycerin, of gun-cotton, and of dynamite.

He next treated the chemistry of explosives, force, temperature, strength, etc., and gave a discussion of smokeless powder and compound powder and their use in various forms of fire-arms.

The use of explosives in war was interestingly described, with special reference to the Balkan war. Prof. Pegram endeavored to show that one of the important causes of the success of the Allies was their use of improved French firearms which the Turks did not have.

Prof. Edwards paper was a short digest of a long published paper which embodies the result of an extended investigation on the subject of ventilation.

The burden of the paper was to prove that fresh air is not so much a matter of chemistry as of physics. The beneficial effects of fresh air come not so much from chemical or biological action as from the stimulation of the sense organs of the skin and the resulting invigoration.

FIRST BASE BALL GAME TOMORROW WITH PREPS.

NO ONE KNOWS WHO THE NINE WILL BE EXCEPT THE COACH

ADKINS PREDICTS GOOD TEAM

Practically None of the Places on Team
Are Cinched, Every Old Man Having to Fight for His Life.—Second Team Will Be Very Strong.

With the first game of the 1913 base ball season scheduled to be played tomorrow against the Trinity Park School, Coach Adkins closed the post season practice this afternoon by putting his men thru another such hard practice as has characterized the activities on Hanes Athletic Field for the past three weeks. Our very efficient coach by consistent hard work has succeeded in rounding up the squad in fine form, and the prospects for a successful season look good to the fans here. On account of the unusual quantity of excellent baseball material in college this year and the number of men of very nearly the same ability, it is well nigh impossible for any dopest to pick even a tentative line-up, and no one but the coach can conjecture as to who will go up against the "preps" tomorrow.

In any case we can be assured of the fact that an excellent bunch of ball players will represent Trinity on the diamond this season and that they will make a record in keeping with the athletic and oratorical honors won by Trinity so far this year. "Doc" Adkins states that Trinity is going to turn out the best ball team in several years this season, and that the material is such that it augurs well for an excellent team not only for the present season but for two or three years to come; and that the one thing now vital to the success of the team is the enthusiastic support of the student body.

From the present outlook, it appears that Godfrey, Kanipe, Knight and Fitzgerald are going to compose the pitching staff. All four of these men, who have excellent reputations as slabmen of previous seasons, seem to have more "stuf" now than ever before. They have the "smoke," their curves are breaking fine, and their control is well-nigh perfect.

Probably the hardest fight for positions is the one between the two leading candidates for catcher—Maddox and McLean. Both of these men are working hard, and either one of them is capable of holding down the receiving end of the battery in fine form. Dopesters also—

ATTENTION HOLDERS OF BLANKET TICKETS

All persons who are still due $2.50 on their blanket tickets may pay the remainder and secure a ticket of admission to the baseball games either by seeing me or by paying at the gate Thursday. All persons who have already paid the full amount may secure their tickets at the gate also. No one will be admitted to the baseball games who does not secure this duplicate ticket.

G. A. WARLICK, JR.

lutely refuse to dope concerning the outcome of this struggle. Sufficient it is to say that a good man will hold down the position.

At first base, Patterson will probably make the place. His fielding is faultless and he is hitting like a fiend. However, his position is by no means secure as he has three worthy opponents in Siler, Gill, and North. Thompson, the veteran second sacker who has a knack of slugging the pill to all corners of the lot with a naive non-chalance to the tune of about 350 per annum, is playing his usual good game, and is expected to again be seen hovering about the keystone bag and lacerating the boards of the fence with his terrific drives. In this case also there is opposition in the person of Shore, who is showing up in fine form and is very likely to land some place on the team.

At short Captain Anderson is raking them in with the same ease and grace as the palmy days of last season when Coach Anderson, Georgia, was looking them over. He is always in the game and has a good knowledge of inside baseball. Even the captain of the team can not claim to have his place cinched, for his most formidable opponent, Rowe is going good and hitting like a leaguer.

It is even rare between White, Baird and Carver as to who will play 3rd bag. White, who held down the position the latter part of the last season, while a little late in beginning practice on account of his playing on the basketball team, is playing good ball and so far his batting average is above .500. Baird, of the new men, has shown himself to be one of the best fielders on the diamond, has a wonderful whip, and he is likewise there with the stick. Carver, of last year's scrub team, also shows the goods, and is putting up a stiff fight for the position. It is toss-up between the three, with the odds just slightly in favor of Baird.

Litfield seems to be the man for the position of left field. His reputation as a player with the Park School team for the past few seasons is well known, and he has lived up to his renown in practice. He is batting well, and his fielding is phenomenal. In the center garden Spence will most probably do the romping. He is the fastest man on the squad, a splendid hitter, and one of the best fielders that has ever played on the local diamond. Adams, the hard-hitting freshman, is pushing him hard for the place, and only conjecture can be made as to who will land the place. In right field, the fight is on between Thorne, Few, Edgerton, Gaston, and Lambeth. All of these are good men, but the odds are probably in favor of Thorne.

Clee Club Concert

Manager Kirkman announces that the Glee Club will give its concert next Tuesday night at eight o'clock in the Conservatory of Music auditorium. A large number of students is expected to turn out to hear the concert, as this will be the only chance of the college community to hear it this year. Several numbers have been added in addition to those given on the trip, and it is certain that the evening will be well spent and the worth of the admission price, fifty cents, fully realized.

DELAYED CO-ED ARCHIVE PUTS IN APPEARANCE

RADICAL DEPARTURE FROM ALL
PRECEDENT IN COLLEGE
PUBLICATIONS

ALL WORK BY FEMININE HANDS

Women of Student Body Prove Their Right to Suffrage and Executive Ability,
Incidentally Giving Light on Working of Co-Ed Heart.

The much talked of, long-expected, and equally long delayed Co-ed number of the Archive put in its appearance Monday. The title means that the number was prepared by the Co-eds, not dedicated to them, as some have supposed, and it is really true that all the literary contributions are the product of feminine minds.

The character of the contributions absolutely contradicts all preconceived notions of feminine nature, for an appealing amount of the heaviest kind of college magazine literature occupies the chief space in the number. Three weighty essays compose the bulk of a magazine interspersed with three very short stories and five pieces of verse. From the tone of the editorial page the Co-ed, portion of the college community is suffragette to the core.

Of the contributions the best in point of interest is that entitled "Leaves From a Freshman's Diary". Nothing so illuminating to the purely masculine mind has ever been printed at this college, and the peculiar significance lies in the absolute frankness of the piece and the certainty that it is an authoritative account of the doings on the other side of the fence, over which so many young collegians have vainly sought to peep. This piece is an effective contradiction of the Wayside Wares article "O You Men", which also bears the stamp of femininity. "The Leaves" refutes the latter piece the result being merely the age-old masculine contention that the female air of superior wisdom is only a mask to hide the densest ignorance. The Co-eds, unconsciously, perhaps, have done the men of the college a lasting service, and the CHRONICLE recommends the issue for the careful, thoughtful, ruminative, and reformatory thought of at least that portion of the male student body addicted to indulgence in the social side of our college life.

The essays, "Woman's Influence as Outlined in Goethe's Iphigenie", by Ethel Abernethy; "Anti-Slavery Literature", by Susie Markham; and "Two Great Love Poets", by Laura Tillett, show work and acquaintance with the matter sought to be presented. The last is very good indeed. They add a suitable note of dignity.

The verse is as follows: "New Year's Greetings," by Carrie Craig; "A Co-ed's Soliloquy," and "Twilight Pictures" by Mary Wescott. The two latter are most deserving of mention.

"Shameless Confessions", by Amy Muse, is an amusing sketch, and the same is true of Irma L. Tapp's, "That Alters the Case". "The Leaves" is anonymous, perhaps so in this instance to defend Checks and money orders should be made payable to the business manager, and all Business Communications should be addressed to him.

All subscriptions and bills for advertisements are payable before the first of February.

Harbingers of Spring: spike-tracks in the dormitory halls; scattered and brief cases of chills and fever; these new light Norfolk jackets; late sunsets; Sunday night runs on the Frau Shack; oratorical wing-stretchings among aspiring seniors; track team trials and troubles; popularity of "Cap's" Gym among fourth-year delinquents; erotic flights among the poets; the irresistible appeal of Areadia on the moonlight nights; beginnings of a tendency to loaf after supper; and the presence of Chocolate de Cone-Carta returned from the wars to his peaceful pursuit of dyspepsia-spreading! They are all here and augur a quick flight of time until commencement.

And soon we will have the great distraction of base ball season and with the plentiful schedule of games which the manager has booked we will have little time for anything else after they start. If you, especially you of the senior class have any particular piece of work which you want to do before the end, you had better go to it now, or else forever after hold your peace.

We desire to call attention to the announcement of Manager Warlick on the front page of this issue of the CHRONICLE regarding the payment of the balances due on installment plan blanket tickets. It will be well to attend to this at once. The management needs the money and no one can get into the games without the duplicate ticket which will be given to purchasers of blanket tickets.

The first base ball game comes Thursday. Have you realized that? But nothing has as yet been done with regard to forming an organization of the rooters. The beneficial effect to a team of enthusiastic and well drilled rooting is a platitude. We must have a meeting, elect some rah-rah chiefs, and revise and revitalize our rather slender body of yells.

ON STUDENT ACTIVITIES

We chanced this afternoon to see the list of acknowledgments which the editor of the Chanticleer was making up to send in with the last batch of "copy" for his book, in which he listed and thanked all those who have made any contribution to it other than the work of departmental editors in their departments. Reading the list called forth, if not a train of thought, at least an engine and caboose.

Here is the engine: There were about four contributors to the art department and three to the literary departments whose names do not belong in the roll of editors.

Most of these have made very slight contributions. This Means that practically all the work was done by the few men whose direct business it was without any help from the community at large. They have done well and have ramassed some good material. But plainly the scope and viewpoint of the book would have been wider and more representative if the college as a whole had taken an interest in it more keen than has been manifested. A board of directors might do all within the power of man and yet could not do so well as if it had a whole student body sympathetically behind it, zealous with suggestion. Two heads, says the tragically true old saw, are always better than one, if one of them is a poor one. (The poor one in this case being of course the student body's, not the editorial board's.)

Here is the caboose: This principle of delegation of work runs far too widely thruout all the organic life of the college. We appoint men to do a representative piece of work and then lie supine in the fond delusion that it will be done without our united effort. This spirit can be detected in all lines of endeavor. We appoint a track team captain and say "Go to, now we will have a track team developed for us", and there's an end out. We furnish lavish debating halls believing that now we will have debating galore then we don't debate. We elect an editor of an Archive and then anathematize him and not ourselves if some of his matter is not above mediocrity, not realizing that it is our magazine more than his and that, if it contains good stuff, we must write good stuff. And a magazine may be good in appearance, containing every month good articles from the pens of the same six or seven, and yet fail in its larger intention of stimulating widespread creative literary effort among the students. A magazine can be judged almost as well from the class of stuff it turns down as from that which it publishes. Ask Holton what he has turned down this year. We must pull together if we would pull hard. We must work as a community if we would accomplish large results.

Forgive the pessimistic strain. It was inevitable if not necessary.

SNAP-SHOTS OF INAUGURATION

Such an event as the journeying of thirty or more students to the national capital to witness a great transitional moment of history-in-the-making, the entr'acte, as it were, covering an important scene-shifting in the great American play of Government, while not essentially college news ought not perhaps to go altogether unchronicled in the annals of the doings of Trinity and her men. While the President-elect is not a Trinity man, he is a Southerner and we have the additional interest in him of having been the first body of men in the nation to nominate him and his running mate in convention assembled. These and a few other reasons excuse the appearance of a few impressions here.

The Trinity delegation was invited to march in the Inaugural Parade but decided that more was to be seen by looking on. Our impressions, hence, were various but a few universal ones project pointedly from the mass.

First of all comes the Women's Parade, that vast pageant prophetic of and pre-commemorative of the emancipation of woman. It was a tremendous success in failure. Such courage, determination, and ability as were shown in it constitute argument enough for woman's suffrage. If there had been a few more Southern gentlemen in the front rank of the crowd despite what Major Sylvester says about "the riff-raff of the South", the deplorable circumstances which marred the event would never have existed.

Never-to-be-forgotten was the sight of the scholar, statesman, and gentleman, Woodrow Wilson taking the oath of our highest office. The eyes of the world were literally turned upon him and his bearing was consonant with the dignity of the occasion. Never-to-be-forgotten also are the final words of his address: "I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me."

One of the strongest of the thrills came when the doughty Commencer, after years of bootless yearning toward Washington, appeared before the East Front of the Capitol in the role of recipient of the second highest office in the government under the man who had achieved the first place largely thru him. When he pulled off his big slouch hat and bared to the breezes his veteran and hoary turrel, climbing up into the inaugural stand, ten thousand lusty democratic yells swelled up in a wave to the high-vaulted dome and set the great flags there madly flying.

A feature of American government is its habit of embodying two schools of political thought, of keeping one chrystallized and in predominance until it has served its turn, while the other remains in solution ready to be called upon when the first has played out. March 4th marked such a transition. The old conservative school had for the time being made its fullest possible contribution; the country stood in need of the New Idea.

But pathos is always mingled with change, however happy that change. The genial retiring president made a most appealing figure as he officiated at his own political demise with every show of good will and cordiality toward his successor. He was never more beloved of his countrymen than on retiring, and he made a truly swan-like end, dying in music.

Those of us who had the patience to penetrate into the House galleries saw old Joe Cannon, too, moving about on the floor for his last time, sadly swinging on to the gnawed end of his perennial black cigar, while amused smiles at the transitoriness of the mundane, and the comedy of human achievement played peek-a-boo with the glooms around the corners of his beard; and all the time his stately successor in the speaker's chair was roaring remonstrances to the members, to the punctuating staccato of his vivacious gavel.

And that night, on the wide green facing the Maison Blanc, Wilson and Marshall were burnt in effigy, but it was a brilliant, glorious, pyrotechnic effigy-of-celebration, and one which will bear an impression of these two men upon the minds, thoughts and ideals of the nation for years to come.

Boys,

If you want to see something classy in monogram stationery, come down and look over our designs. As we make no two alike, there's no danger of the other fellow giving his girl one like yours! Engraved cards also. Established 1885.

QUILL CLUB MEETING

Newspaper Men of College Held Gathering Last Monday Night.

What was perhaps the most interesting meeting of the Quill club of Trinity college, was held last Monday night. This is an organization of the men in the college who write for the state papers, and who keep the college happenings before the public. New interest and added zest was given to the association because of the meeting last Monday night, and the club is doing a great work for the college.

At the meeting last Monday night a committee, of which Mr. W. B. Sharp was made chairman, was appointed to draw up by-laws and a constitution, and this will be presented and decided upon at the next meeting of the club. Plans for a smoker and an informal reception were made last night, and a committee appointed to look into the matter and prepare for it. No date has yet been decided upon for the smoker, but it is to be held within the next ten days. Mr. J. H. King, editor-in-chief of The Morning Herald, has been invited, and he has accepted the invitation to address the meeting. Representatives are to be present from both the city papers, and toasts will be responded to by officers and members of the organization.

Professor Flowers spoke before the meeting last Monday night, as did also Professor Glasson, each telling of various phases of the work in which the club is engaged and the benefit that is to be gotten from it by a man who takes part in it.

Announcement

The Classical Club will hold its regular meeting on Thursday evening, March 13, in the Latin Room of the Library, at 7:30 o'clock.

Professor Gill will read a paper on A New Hero of The Roman Republic. All members are requested to be present as the discussion is to be very interesting. Come, and be on hand promptly.

TRACK TEAM NEWS

Interclass Meet to Be Held on March 17. Varsity Probably in State Meet.

For some time past, Captain Lucas and the captains of the four class teams have been preparing for the annual inter-class track meet, which is to be held on March 17. At present the personnel of the four teams has not been definitely arranged. The preliminaries are being held this week to pick the men who will represent the various classes.

The Class Meet this year will differ in some respects from the meet held here last year. This year only two men are allowed to enter an event for any one class; and in the high and low hurdles, only one man from each class will be admitted. Practically the same events will compose this meet that composed the meet last year, including all the customary track and field events except the hammer-throw.

Trinity's varsity team is to be picked from the men who enter the various events in the class field day meet. The cup given by the "Toms" one of the secret organizations of the college, to the winning class, was offered with the provision that any class that won it for three successive years would win it as a permanent possession. The cup has already been won twice by the class of 1914, and if that class wins again this year, the trophy will be the permanent possession of the class. In view of this fact all the classes of the college are putting forth their strongest efforts to see that the juniors fall in their effort to capture the coveted prize.

The varsity manager and captain are bending every effort to get the men on the field to practice so that there may be a large number of men from which to pick the varsity aggregation.

Manager Ratcliffe announces that he has arranged a meet with Wake Forest to be held at Wake Forest before the state meet comes off in Raleigh. No definite date for this meet has as yet been chosen, but there is no doubt about the affair being held.

Manager Ratliff has made arrangements whereby Trinity can enter the State meet at Raleigh this year if the results of the coming field day warrant it. It is probable that one or two meets will be held with some of the colleges in the state, whether Trinity enters the final state meet or not.

Although somewhat impeded by the want of a good track and by lack of facilities, the track team is working hard, and will undoubtedly do much toward redeeming Trinity's loss of the meet at Raleigh last year. Captain Lucas is working hard in order to put out a winning team this year, and he is developing some excellent new material from the freshman class.

the author from the snubs of her betrayed sisters. In fact several of the contributors saw fit to hide in anonymity for reasons that many be conjectured.

In general the Co-eds did well with the number and deserve much credit for their unaccustomed efforts. Certainly they have succeeded in getting the magazine read.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL MEETS

Manager Rand Reports Successful Basketball Season.

The Athletic Council transacted a bunch of business last night in regular meeting. A report was made with reference to the past basketball season. The manager reported a successful season from a financial standpoint, the finances coming out practically level with the board.

Charlie Bagley was nominated by the committee appointed for that purpose as assistant business manager of the base ball team and was duly elected. R. M. Anderson was elected manager of the tennis team. Complimentary tickets were awarded to the members of the team, to B. N. Duke, to P. H. Hanes, and to the Morning Herald and the Durham Sun.

A committee was appointed to revise the rules with regard to the size of "T's" for the different teams and to look into the matter of a formal awarding at commencement.

Roper Receives Appointment

Mr. D. C. Roper, a graduate of Trinity and father of James Hunter Roper, Jr., who was in college during 1911-'12, has been appointed First Assistant Postmaster General to serve under the new regime. Mr. Roper has held the position of Chief Clerk of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives.
