LITERARY SOCIETIES INITIATE NEW MEMBERS

COLUMBIA GETS TWENTY-TWO HESPERIA TWENTY-SIX MEN

Speeches by Former Members and Open House Debate Make Up Programs of Last Saturday Night—New Members Received

The Columbia and Hesperia Literary Societies, at their regular meetings last Saturday night, let down the bars to new members for the first time this year. As a result of this first reception into membership, twenty-two new names were added to the roll of Columbia, and the membership of Hesperia was materially increased by twenty-six new additions. The initiation of these men followed the regular programs in the two societies and was immediately preceded by the usual "lining" and "rushing" in the narrow passageway that connects the two halls. A detailed account of the happenings in each society is as follows:

COLUMBIAN

President Spivey called the Society to order, and Reverend C. J. Harrell, Pastor of Trinity Church and an old Columbian, performed the chaplain's duty. Mr. Harrell then made a short talk, in which he gave some very good advice. He said that a man in a society is thrown on his own resources; and must, therefore, train himself to think with a purpose in view.

Mr. Spivey again extended the visiting men a hearty welcome. He expressed the thought that society work is the most valuable course in college. He reiterated some of the statements which he made at the first meeting of the year, and said that Columbia wanted only those men who intended to work.

Dr. F. C. Brown, of the Department of English, was a welcomed visitor, and made a very interesting talk. He urged the new men to join a society, and to try to develop the art of public speaking. Dr. Brown said that nine-tenths of composition is thought, and the other tenth is the ability to express one's self.

Messrs. R. N. Gantt and J. H. Coman, old members of Columbia, were present and made helpful talks.

The society received into membership twenty-two men.

HESPERIA

After the chaplain duties had been performed, President R. L. Fisher announced that the meeting would be conducted on the same plan as the open house debates of the United States Senate. The subject to be discussed was, "Resolved, That all nations should disarm and form an International Police Force." R. H. Durham, C. C. Alexander, C. L. Nichols, and Martin Chambers supported the affirmative side of the question, while Swain Elias, R. C. Wiggins, R. W. Bradshaw, and G. E. Powell successfully opposed them. After the debate an intermission was called, according to an agreement with the Columbia Literary Society.

When the society was again called

TOMBS TAKES FOURTEEN NEW MEN INTO RANKS

PARTIAL TRIAL AT WOMEN'S BUILDING FEATURE OF INITIATION

With the usual amount of good-natured fun, the Tombs initiated into its ranks yesterday fourteen new members from the Junior and Senior Classes. Those from the Senior Class were: L. L. Gobel, Spencer, N. C.; R. L. Fisher, Gatesville, N. C.; P. L. Sample, Elizabeth City, N. C.; R. C. Wiggins, Denmark, S. C.; W. S. Elias, Asheville, N. C.; S. A. Delap, Lexington, N. C.; R. K. Courtney, Lenoir, N. C.; from the Junior Class: E. P. C. Craft, Wilmington, N. C.; W. R. Minshew, Eureka, N. C.; C. C. Edens, Fayetteville, N. C.; F. M. Wannamaker, St. Matthews, S. C.; T. M. Wannamaker, Orangeburg, S. C.; A. L. Carver, Rengomont, N. C.; and T. N. Lee, Monroe, N. C.

The initiation began Monday night on the old athletic field. The initiates were blindfolded and marched out of the athletic field in snake trail formation, their doleful voices chanting the tune of "Peanut Butter, Hit Me Harder!" This doleful tune and the whack and thud of paddles drowned all other sounds on the campus for the next two hours.

The first stop was made at the Woman's Building. The initiates danced, sang odd songs, and many

MOVEMENT TO ORGANIZE RIFLE CLUB AT TRINITY

DURHAM CLUB OFFERS FREE ACCESS TO RIFLE RANGE

A movement to introduce an entirely new and somewhat novel form of athletic sport in college has been in progress for the past few days. Trinity has been offered free access to the rifle range of the Durham Rifle Club if the students will connect themselves with the National Rifle Association.

Mr. I. G. Hersey, Secretary of the Durham Club, in a letter to Professor W. H. Hall, of Trinity, has given to the college all the information needed to form a club among the students, and has promised the co-operation of the members of the Durham Club.

In order to become a member of the National Rifle Association, a club of not less than ten men must be formed. These men are expected to be good marksmen, and must be recommended by the college authorities. They will be eligible for all national rifle contests, and if capable of qualifying, will receive marksmanship medals for their work. The dues of the club will be very reasonable, and the amount of time taken up by target practice will not interfere with college work.

Professor W. H. Hall will be in charge of the organization until permanent officers are elected. The exact date of the first meeting will be announced in the Chronicle next week. Every man in college who can shoot a gun, or wishes to learn to shoot, should by all means join this club.

Y. M. C. A. TENDERS A RECEPTION TO NEW MEN

REV. H. E. SPENCE ACTS AS TOASTMASTER FOR OCCASION

Member of Faculty and Representative Men of Student Body Welcome New Men to College Community

Last Wednesday evening in the East Duke building the Y. M. C. A. gave its annual reception to the Freshman class to which all members of the college community were invited. At this affair, the members of the class of 1921 were given an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the old students and the faculty of the college. A large crowd, including many "co-eds," attended, and the occasion was a most pleasant one for all.

After the guests went through the receiving line, they were ushered to the Association's large auditorium on the second floor. There, Rev. H. E. Spence, formerly a professor in the department of English and now Sunday School Field Secretary, presided as toast master and unfolded his unceasing line of wit and humor. He called upon several students and members of the faculty who represented the various activities and phases of college life.

L. L. Gobel, President of the Y. M. C. A., was the first speaker. He extended to everyone a hearty welcome, and explained the purpose of the organization, touching briefly upon its good work in the past and its prospects for the coming year. He invited each of the new men to join this great Christian organization, and take part in its work.

President Few spoke for the college, and expressed his gratitude upon seeing so many new students. He welcomed them into the college and told them how fortunate they were in being here at a time like the present. The speaker described briefly the adverse circumstances under which this college year must be spent, and gave the students good advice as to how to spend it.

R. L. Fisher, Editor of the Archive, represented the three publications, and after explaining the purpose of each, he urged the new men to subscribe to them. The speaker urged also that more students make contributions to the Archive, and that every man get into harness to help make the publication a success.

Representing the newest organization on the park, Miss Margaret Kornegay spoke for the Y. W. C. A., and expressed the long felt need among the "co-eds" for an organization of this kind: one that would unite all the girls and institute among them that spirit of good fellowship that now exists in the Y. M. C. A. She asked the town girls to join the Y. W. C. A. and help make the organization a success.

Manager J. A. Bolich, of the base-ball team spoke for the three forms of athletics: basket-ball, base ball, and track. Although he admitted that athletic conditions were yet unsettled, he thought it

DEFINITE PLANS FOR DRILL WORK ANNOUNCED

STRICT DEMERIT SYSTEM TO BE USED IN CONNECTION WITH TRAINING

Again Trinity is to assume a military atmosphere when the regular military drill begins Monday, October the first. The drill will be under the direction of Professor W. H. Hall, of the Department of Engineering, and Professor Coman, of the Department of Physics. Unlike last year the drill will be compulsory for all students except those whose parents have very serious objections. This action was taken at a recent meeting of the faculty upon resolutions introduced by a committee of which Dr. Laprade was chairman.

The amount of drill work will consist of three hours a week on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons. Those students who have never had any previous military training, however, will be required to drill five afternoons a week during the month of October. This is done in order to give the new students a chance to become acquainted with military tactics.

Setting up exercises for all cadets will be given under the supervision of Gymnasium Director Card five times a week from 7:15 to 7:35 A. M. These exercises will be given only during the months of October, November, March, April, and May as it was

HON. JAMES H. POU TO SPEAK BENEFACTORS' DAY

WELL KNOWN RALEIGH LAWYER TO DELIVER ADDRESS TUESDAY NIGHT

Hon. James H. Pou, lawyer and speaker of statewide reputation, of Raleigh, will be the speaker at the Benefactors' Day Celebration. Mr. Pou, will deliver his address, on some phase of the present war situation, Tuesday night, October 2, in Craven Memorial Hall. As has been the custom for quite a while, the following day, Wednesday, October 3, will be given as a holiday.

Mr. Pou was invited to make this address for two reasons—in the first place as a recognition of the service he has rendered the State in his recent efforts to impress upon the people of the State their obligations and responsibilities at this trying time in the history of America and the world, and in the second place because he is sure to make a speech here that will do good.

As a speaker and man of public affairs, Mr. Pou is widely known. At one time he was chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee. His inclinations, however, have not been of a political turn, and he has tried to avoid politics in every possible way. His wonderful success as a lawyer has also been such as to attract considerable attention throughout this and even adjoining States.

As a man of public affairs, a man interested in the welfare of the State, is Mr. Pou best known. At the present time he has done

PRESIDENT FEW WELCOMES NEW STUDENTS

DELIVERS FORMAL ADDRESS OF WELCOME AT TRINITY CHURCH

Speaks On "Our Heritage in English Civilization and the Task of Preserving It"—Large Crowd Hears Address

President W. P. Few in his formal opening address to the students of the college, which was delivered by special invitation at Trinity Church on last Sunday evening, used as his subject "Our Heritage in English Civilization and the Task of Preserving It." This address, which was heard by a large part of the student body and many citizens of the city, has been referred to as one of the most interesting lectures that has ever been given on such occasion. Dr. Few spoke in part as follows:

"Let us look into the past to see what heritage has been ours. I wish to call your attention to five things that have contributed to our wonderful heritage from the past.

"First we shall notice our racial heritage of being a part of the great English race. This inheritance is not confined solely to the people born of English ancestry; but every one who is born into the culture and ideals of this strong race is a partaker of this great inheritance. We should not be proud of his birth; but we should be grateful for it. This, like every other inheritance, may be abused and become what the people of the Continent call 'English Insularity.' We should use it to transmit to our generation and the one just rising the great values of such racial heritage.

"Next we have a wonderful political inheritance which has developed through our race during many centuries. It is a great thing to live, think, and act according to our own consciences. Democracy is inevitably the goal of all humanity. I believe that this present time, which looks like the end of an era, will some day prove a making of the world safe for democracy. We need a government of the people and by the people for the freedom of the people.

"We have a rich religious inheritance. To be born into a country where there is religious freedom is wonderful; but to be born into a race that is shot through with the spirit of Christian evangelism is far greater. It is this that has saved us from materialism. We may use this inheritance radically, or we may use it to save the world for right.

"In the culture of the English race, its literature, arts, and high ideals, we have a great inheritance. I fear this generation will not pass this heritage on in as well preserved condition as it was handed to us. The heroes of our literature, even from the earliest, have had a seriousness of life. The hero of the first English literature was willing to give his life trying to attain that which was right. This has developed in the people who have studied this literature a love for that which is highest and best. "The last heritage at which I

Communications and items of educational interest are solicited from Alumni. The writer's full name should accompany all communications, which must be of length proportionate to the space of THE CHRONICLE.

Checks and money orders should be made payable to the business manager, and all business communications should be addressed to him. All subscriptions and bills for advertisements are payable before the first of February.

Hon. James H. Pou, who comes to Trinity next Tuesday evening, is a speaker who deserves a large audience. Do your part towards giving him his just deserts.

The "equal rights" campaign of the "oo-eds" appear to be meeting with brilliant success. For the first time in the history of the college women students have been assigned seats in Craven Memorial Hall and will be required to attend all chapel exercises. What's next on the program?

HELP THE SOLDIERS

The Library War Council, appointed by the War Department, with the American Library Association, is attempting to raise one million dollars during "Camp Library Week," September 24-29, to build, equip, and maintain libraries and buy books for every U. S. Training Camp and Cantonment at home and overseas.

The Trinity College Library, as a member of the American Library Association, has been requested to do its part in raising this sum. Librarian J. P. Breedlove has charge of the local campaign and will be glad to receive the most trivial contribution from any student or member of the college community. According to his plan the sum raised here will be used to purchase books and other reading matter for former Trinity men who have now rallied around the colors.

A campaign of this nature with such a purpose in view should meet with genuine approval and ready response on the part of the Trinity students and faculty. The Chronicle suggests that each class take the matter up at its first meeting and that every individual, through the class as a medium, make some contribution, however small it may be, toward "A Million Dollars, For a Million Books, For a Million Men" to Mr. Breedlove some time during the present week.

A RIFLE CLUB

The movement to organize a Rifle Club among Trinity students is, in the opinion of the Chronicle, a movement that should have the co-operation and support of every man on the campus.

Nor only does the formation of such a club offer an innovation in sport and amusement, but it is in direct keeping with the policy of military training adopted by the College. There is very little practical use in being taught military movements and the handling of arms unless one is likewise taught how to use these arms for their best purpose, how to shoot and how to shoot accurately. It is just this phase of the work that a Rifle Club strengthens and perfects. The primary object which it has in view is the encouragement and development of marksmanship. With such a primary object in view, therefore, the formation of a club here at Trinity would be but the extension or the perfecting of the plan of military training as prescribed by the College.

The offer of the Durham Rifle Club of free access to its range to Trinity students, provided these students will connect themselves with the National Rifle Association, should meet with a hearty appreciation and sincere welcome.

THE NEW STAFF

The contest to determine two associate editors and four staff members for the Chronicle closed with this issue. As a result of this contest E. P. C. Craft and Claude Cooper, both of Wilmington, are now associate editors, and M. A. Braswell, of Whitakers, N. C., C. W. Bundy, of Monroe, N. C., W. N. Evans, of West Plains, Mo., and J. E. Gilbreath, of Columbia, Tenn., compose the reportorial staff.

The contest lasted two weeks, and every contestant was given a chance to show exactly what he could do. All had a fair chance, and the winning ones were chosen solely on their merit. Every winner has had some experience in newspaper writing and is sure to make good on the Chronicle.

Cooper and Craft, the two new associate editors, were both on the reportorial staff last year, and the Chronicle work will, therefore, be nothing new to them. The new staff members, being members of the Sophomore Class, have had no experience on the college publications but have all proved their worth and ability in the contest which has just closed.

The Chronicle regrets that there were not enough places for every contestant, however as such was not the case, a choice was necessary. In making this choice the paper has tried its utmost to do the right thing and to give the places to the men who deserved them. It has attempted to put away all grudges and grievances, all personal likes and dislikes, to make the choice a choice of manuscripts and not of men. To every man who entered the contest, who furnished any copy for the paper, the Chronicle wishes to extend thanks and appreciation and a hearty invitation to call around again "just any old time."

The men who made permanent places on the paper are to be congratulated, for their victory was not a snap or a walk-over by any means. These men will remember to be on hand promptly at 7:30 next Thursday night at the Editorial Office, 201 North Dormitory, for the regular staff meeting.

Regular hand practice will be held in Craven Memorial Hall tomorrow night at 7:30. Mr. C. R. Crane has been secured for director and will be on hand at every practice.

LIBRARIES FOR SOLDIERS

"It ain't the guns nor armament, nor funds that they can pay, But the close co-operation that that makes 'em win the day. It ain't the individual nor the army as a whole, But the everlastin' teamwork of every blomin' soul."

—Kipling.

During this week the American Library Association will raise $1,000,000 for the erection, equipment and maintenance of libraries in the thirty-two cantonments and training camps, and for books for mobilization camps, garrisoned troops, troops in trenches and on the march; field, base and camp hospitals, and all points at home and overseas where U. S. soldiers and sailors are assembled.

The expense of this campaign has been met privately. Every cent of the million dollars will be used for the purposes of supplying the soldiers and sailors with reading matter.

This campaign has been so organized and arranged that it will not be a burden on any of us. One dollar apiece from the stay-at-homes will give to those who are fighting out battles some of the pleasure they crave and keep them in touch with the life they have vacated.

If you will subscribe to this fund, see Mr. J. P. Breedlove at the College Library.

very likely that we should put out our regular teams as we did last year. The base-ball enthusiast stated that we had very few old men for our teams this year, but that there was some excellent material in the Freshman class, and consequently he saw no reason why we should not have as good athletic as any other college. He urged both new and old students to try for the various teams and to give athletics a boost.

Speaking in behalf of the literary societies, E. M. Spivey, Presidents not only to visit both societies the value of literary society work; and urged the new students not only to visit both societies but to join one of them by all means. He told the new men that no two courses in the college curriculum would do them so much good as literary society work, and said further that no one need stand back because he has had no experience.

Speaking for the "co-eds," Miss Mary White Cranford said that it was their purpose to meet the demands which they felt sure would fall upon them in the future. She said that they considered themselves equal to the boys in everything with the possible exception of "nerve." The representative of the "co-eds" welcomed all the new girls and stated further that she did not wish to slight the male students.

The last speaker on the program, who was Dean Wannamaker relieved the troubled minds of the Freshmen by telling them not to believe half of what had been told. He told them that a large part of it had been made up for the occasion, and that they must appreciate the situation. "From now on welcome will not be in the form of roses and nosegays," said the Dean. "You've been welcomed; now pay us back by working and making good," he continued. He advised the new men against the bad habits that they were likely to take up, and urged them to spend a year of good, hard, fine work.

After the toastmaster had completed the program with some witty remarks, refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served. The Durham Orchestra furnished music for the occasion and the guests spent the remainder of the evening in getting acquainted and while away the time in the usual enjoyable way.

wish us to look is our industrial heritage. This inheritance seems to me to have been greatly developed by the American people. It is this that has turned a howling wilderness within a short time into one of the greatest civilizations in the world. This heritage also may be abused, and there is danger of it running the world money mad. I fear that this inheritance would have ruined us if the war had not come upon us.

"All this wonderful heritage may be abused and used to ruin the world, or we may transmit it on to others with all of its advantages and blessings. We may follow the physical and material downward; we may follow the spiritual upward. Let me exhort especially you young men who are just starting life to use this wonderful heritage to make this world a better and happier place in which you and others may live."

of them proposed to the girls. A mock trial was carried on, in which Craft was found accused of the heinous offence of assisting a young lady up the West Duke steps. Judge Wiggins presided at the trial, and lawyer Elias was the prosecuting attorney. Fisher, upheld the defendant. The argument of lawyer Elias, however, proved to be too strong against Craft; consequently, he was convicted.

After the defendant had been severely punished, the procession began marching again. The tune of "Peanut Butter, Hit Me Harder!" was resumed, and continued until the candidates were marched to the West Duke Building where the first degree of the ritualistic ceremonies was conferred. The Annie Rooney Fountain in front of the College was the scene of the grand finale of the evening. One by one the initiates were plunged beneath the surface of the water.

The initiation continued thru Tuesday. The initiates appeared at chapel ridiculously clothed and carrying large sofa pillows. They wore costumes during the entire day, and were always accompanied by their pillows. At two o'clock the afternoon horseplay was started. The men were compelled to put baby rattles around their ankles, and to march to the city with rubber pacifiers in their mouths. The entire afternoon was spent in amusing horseplay downtown. Some of the men were compelled to make speeches, others to sing, and still others to roll doll-baby carriages.

Tuesday evening after the conclusion of the initiation with the second degree the old and new members had a banquet at the Goody Shop. Mr. M. E. Newson acted as toastmaster and called on several for speeches. The horseplay of the day was laughed about, and in the early hours of the morning the men returned to college.

Y. W. C. A. ORGANIZED AMONG CO-EDS HERE

A Y. W. C. A. was organized by the students at the Woman's Building last Tuesday night. The purpose of the organization, according to one of the organizers, is to unite all the girls, to bring about more democratic representation on the campus, and to foster close contact between the inmates of the Woman's Building and the girls off the campus.
