Prevails

The active campaign for the Southgate Memorial to be erected in the form of a woman's college was opened Tuesday morning at ten o'clock at the campaign headquarters in the Durham Y. M. C. A. building. The gathering of the central and working committees constituted one of the most striking meetings of this kind ever held in Durham. Representatives of Durham's leading financial, professional, and business men were present. The meeting was characterized by great enthusiasm and determination to make this memorial campaign successful. Speeches were made by Judge R. H. Sykes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of Durham; Mr. J. O. Cobb, president of the First National Trust Company of the city; Mr. John Sprunt Hill, president of Durham Loan and Trust Company; president W. P. Few, of Trinity College, and by Mr. W. A. Erwin, secretary and treasurer of the Erwin Cotton Mill Corporation. These speeches were declared to be among the best ever delivered at a great campaign meeting of this kind in the city. They covered from all sides the meaning and significance to the city of Durham of the Southgate Memorial Campaign. They also interpreted the significance of Trinity College as a great institution of learning in the midst of the busy, working city of Durham. Some of the finest tributes ever paid to Trinity College were contained in the speeches of these citizens of Durham. The speeches were also very hopeful and optimistic with reference to the outcome of the campaign. These men, who had all known and loved Mr. Southgate, expressed a determined hope that the people of Durham would in this campaign honor his memory and thus discharge their great debt of gratitude to a man who had meant so much to the city. Trinity College students should feel flattered that the college should be made the abiding place of the underlying spirit of Durham's most beloved citizen.

In his speech Dr. Few pointed out that because of the long standing commitment of the education of young women, Trinity College had for many years struggled with sacrifices to

TRINITY WON FIRST GAME OF SEASON IN SLOW MATCH DEFEATING LENOIR 7 TO 2

TRINITY MEN SHOWING UP IN FINE FORM. MANY MEN
GIVEN TRY-OUTS

Trinity defeated Lenoir College on the Hanes Field Tuesday afternoon by a score of 7 to 2 in the first game of the intercollegiate series. The game was well attended, although enthusiasm did not run as high as is usual on such occasions, the fact that Lenoir was defeated 21 to 0 last year serving to keep the Trinity adherents from feeling at all uneasy over the outcome of the game. The game seemed rather slow. Lenoir played a much better game than was expected and held the score within reasonable bounds. The Lenoir team was held scoreless until the last of the eighth inning, when four walks tendered to them by Caviness, together with one man being hit by a pitched ball, and a couple of hits netted them two runs. Trinity played well considering the fact that no regular line-up was used, and all prospects for positions on the team were given a chance to make good.

The first inning for Lenoir was ended by a fly to Cole and two infield put-outs. Trinity did little better, Hathaway dying on second on a strike out by Salmon. In the second frame Trinity scored once while Lenoir failed to make any headway. Trinity added two more in the third by Cole's

DR. EDWIN MIMS SPEAKS IN DURHAM IN BEHALF OF MEMORIAL FOR SOUTHGATE

FORMER MEMBER OF TRINITY FACULTY LECTURES TO

"Whatever makes for the better provision for women in this school, makes for the better interests of you all, and the college," began Dr. Edwin Y. Mims, head of the department of English at Vanderbilt University and formerly head of the English department at Trinity in his address before the students Monday morning.

Dr. Mims, who remained over until Monday especially to address the students, said, "It is my duty to call you to your duty in having this college community do its utmost in this campaign. I challenge you this morning in the light of this great cause, and in the name of this institution to go to the limit of sacrifice in this memorial for the man who did so much for your college. This is our part and we must rally to the name of this man and this cause. The college about which we speak so fondly, we see it, despite its limitations, shining resplendent in all our visions. From a world bleeding, halt, blind, and selfish, comes the challenge to the brave; comes the call to the men who can look through the torn condition of things and see the accomplishment of his highest ideals. . . . The saddest thing in all the world is the arrested development of youth,

GLEE CLUB MADE ITS INITIAL APPEARANCE

GLEE CLUB GIVES ANNUAL CON-CERT IN CRAVEN MEMORIAL HALL MONDAY

BEST CLUB TRINITY EVER HAD

Recital Pronounced Best of its Kind Ever Given Here. Many Special Features. Girls Give Club
a Reception.

The Glee Club gave its annual concert in the Craven Memorial hall on last Monday evening, rendering what was pronounced by persons who have been connected with the college for many years to be the best program from all standpoints that any Trinity Glee Club has ever given. A very large crowd was out to hear the concert, and the program was a series of continued encores. The program was very well balanced, having orchestral selections, quartets, solos, readings, and enough popular "jazz" to keep the audience in a pleasant mood.

The college quartet composed of R. A. Parham, L. M. Draper, W. C. Merritt, and R. K. Farrington, made a decided hit with the audience. Their humorous selections and their jazz numbers together with their fine interpretation of several popular numbers were encored time after time.

The mandolin club, composed of J. A. Bell, J. C. Spach, W. J. Holton, L. E. Cooper, M. J. Carver, and W. C. Merritt, was also a very popular feature of the program. These men showed a complete mastery of modern rag and their classical selections were also well rendered.

A quite notable feature of the program was the solo work of Prof. R. L. Roy. This genius of the violin, who is directing the orchestra, has the reputation of being one of the foremost violinists of the south. His fine interpretation of Kreisler's "Capriccio Viennois" well sustained this reputation, and his exquisite rendering of Drdla's "Souvenir" did not fail to extract very favorable comment from his audience.

The readings of manager Draper were heartily encored, and his parody on Kipling's "Ladies" made an instantaneous hit. All of the numbers of the Glee Club were very well balanced, and the orchestra made a splendid impression both with its overtures and with its encores of the latest song hits. The baritone solos of Director Howerton were also an added attraction to the program.

J. G. Leyburn, pianist for the club, played Paderewski's "Minuet in G" with such flawless skill that the number won for him immediate recognition from the audience. Leyburn has established a name for himself in the musical world, and his numbers are a great addition to any musical program.

ATTITUDE OF STUDENTS IS FAVORABLE TO ERECTION OF A CO-ORDINATE COLLEGE

FACULTY UNANIMOUSLY FAVORS

Letter Sent to Campaign Directors
Signifying Hearty Endorsement of Plan

COLLEGE COMMUNITY SUBSCRIBES

Faculty Members and Students Pledge Various Amounts to Fund. Young Women Have Already Raised
Their Full Quota

The movement to build a woman's building on the Trinity College campus as a memorial to one of her noblest friends, the late Mr. James H. Southgate, has quite naturally attracted a great deal of attention among the student body for the last few days. When this building is erected, it will mean that a large number of women students will come to this college and the student body has been expressing its attitude towards this movement quite freely for the last few days.

The faculty in a called meeting on Monday afternoon voted in favor of the plan unanimously. Professor Flowers, Dr. Few, Dr. Wannamaker and many of the older members of the faculty who are fully acquainted with the history of the position of Trinity College as to women students expressed very fully their attitude towards this expansion into the co-educational field. At the close of the meeting, this body placed itself on record as being in favor of the higher education of women, and it authorized dean Wannamaker to draw up a letter to Mr. W. D. Carmichael, chairman of the Southgate Memorial Campaign, which should convey to this great friend of Trinity the news that the faculty as one man is standing solidly behind him in this movement. Moreover, the faculty has raised about three thousand dollars from its own members by private subscription, which it will contribute as its part of the one hundred thousand dollars which is to be raised in Durham during the coming drive.

The young women of the student body are standing squarely back of the campaign. They have been waiting patiently for many years the coming of just such a spirit of much buoyancy that they are lending their hearty support to the movement. The girls have already raised about one thousand dollars which is their full quota of the sum which it is planned to raise from among the members of the student body.

The majority of the male students are in favor of erecting this building. When the idea first originated, many of the men of the college, not knowing all the facts of the situation, were in-

EDITORIAL

EMORY'S PLEA

The current issue of the Emory Wheel, which has just reached the editor's desk, contains a plea for intercollegiate athletics. The CHRONICLE can see no reason why the request should not be granted. Intercollegiate athletics have certainly proved successful in other colleges in the south, and decidedly so in Trinity. Students need various activities to crystallize their interest, stimulate their spirit, and perpetuate their love for their alma mater. From what we know of the history of Emory University we believe that it has developed to the point where the time is ripe for further branching out and expansion. Since the students are making a plea for intercollegiate athletics, they are then ready to support them, and it is our belief that the request should be granted.

GLEE CLUB TRIP

Practically everyone who heard the recital by the Trinity Glee Club Monday night pronounced it one of the best programs of the kind ever given by a Trinity College club, and far surpassing the clubs of any other college this season. The CHRONICLE endorses this decision. We have a club of which we may be justly proud. It has not come without hard work. The manager and director have met with many obstacles, and have only been able to overcome them by the splendid and united support of the members of the club.

But we need not dwell here on the praise that is due our club. The CHRONICLE is desirous of seeing the Glee Club make a good trip, and that desire is prompted by two reasons. In the first place, the members of the club are certainly due a reward, which should be given them in the form of an extended pleasant, and enjoyable trip. They have worked as hard and as faithfully for their organization as the men on the athletic teams work for their organizations. It is only proper that the faculty should allow them to be out of college for a week or ten days for a trip.

In the second place, a club of the standard of which ours has shown itself to be, would serve as one of the best advertisements for the college that could be put out. Displaying some real talent along several lines, rendering a program of high-quality numbers, our Glee Club would be a creditable recommendation for Trinity College in communities where Trinity is or is not well represented. It is to the interest of the administration of the college to foster activities just as much as it is a duty of the college community to support them. The authorities will be making a serious mistake if they do not readily assent and even encourage the Glee Club to make a trip.

THE MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN

The campaign to raise $100,000 in Durham for the erection of a building on the Trinity campus as a memorial to the late Mr. James H. Southgate to serve as a nucleus for a co-ordinate women's college is now under way. Trinity students are vitally interested. The erection of a building providing more ample facilities for women will mean an increase in the number of students, both men and women, in another year. The plan is to build a co-ordinate college for women at Trinity is receiving hearty support from the students. They naturally are eager to see the college grow. Providing dormitory space for the women will relieve Alspaugh Hall for the use of men, a provision especially needed.

The CHRONICLE feels that the presence of the women in a co-ordinate college will be a good thing. The young women students of Trinity College have been loyal supporters of the institution. They attend athletic contests in as large numbers, proportionally, as do the men. Their spirit is one of encouragement and co-operation. When the fund was being raised one year ago for a memorial gymnasium, the women students of the college subscribed to the fund liberally; in proportion to the number in the college, they subscribed more than the men, knowing at the time that there was small probability that they would be allowed the use of the gymnasium when completed. Whenever any proposition has come before the student body, the women have been there with their support, both morally and financially.

The plan to erect a magnificent building to the memory of our beloved friend, the late Mr. James H. Southgate, is a delightful thought. Nothing could be more appropriate than to dedicate expansion of the college to one who was such a loyal friend to the institution. Mr. Southgate never failed to serve Trinity College whenever occasion arose, and the college will be exceedingly fortunate if the people of Durham see fit to place a beautiful and lasting memorial to their honored citizen on the Trinity campus.

In behalf of the students the CHRONICLE wishes to take this opportunity to thank Mr. W. D. Carmichael, Mr. W. A. Erwin, and other Durham men for the interest they are showing in Trinity College, and for the part they are taking in the campaign. Durham people have always shown their love for Trinity by the hospitality they extend to the students, and in this instance of effort being made to aid the college in such a great way the students feel especially grateful to those citizens who are taking the lead.

take care of both young men and young women students and had been doing the best it could under conditions, but that the time, as he saw it, was at hand when the college would be forced to take either a forward or a backward stride. He was glad to be able to believe that the Southgate Memorial plan offered the possibility for the forward move and make possible the beginning of a college for women on the site which has been long waiting for the co-ordinate college.

After the speeches were over, cards were distributed to various members of the committees. These cards were sent out to the homes of Durham, and an actual canvass of the city begins today. Indications are that the movement will be one of abounding success.

STUDENTS WANT TO HELP (Continued from page one)

clined to be skeptical of the movement, but during the last few days the matter has been made so clear to all that the students are now standing solidly behind the movement. The men are planning to raise an average of ten dollars apiece as their proportionate share of the sum which is to be subscribed by the students. With the entire student body backing this movement, it now seems as if a noble building will soon adorn the western portion of our campus which will honor the memory of the man whose name it will bear, Mr. James Haywood Southgate.

SIGMA CHI HOLDS ANNUAL INITIATION AND BANQUET

Seven New Men Initiated. Many Alumni of College Present. Banquet for Forty-five Men

A large number of visitors and alumni were present for the occasion and places for 45 were filled at the banquet which followed the rites of initiation. Besides the members of the active chapter present, there were: W. D. Harris, D. M. Field, G. W. King, B. D. Whiting, R. P. McClamrock, G. A. Barden, Hunter Reams, Lawrence Ingram, Dan Hodges, and W. M. Transon, of Alpha Tau chapter, Chapel Hill; S. W. Marr, H. P. Rateliff, O. B. Darden, E. N. Ricks, E. M. Thompson, C. C. Blades, R. M. Cannon, James Cannon, III., O. L. Skinner, L. C. ## CO-ED NEWS

Miss Elizabeth Hazlett, of the National Student Volunteer Movement, spent last Thursday and Friday in Alspaugh Hall. She discussed local problems of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. cabinets, and with the Student Volunteer Band. In the evening she gave an interesting talk on the work and needs of the foreign fields.

The following have been appointed members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet for next year: chairman of religious meetings committee, Blanche Barringer; chairman of word fellowship committee, Hemenia Haynes; chairman social standards committee, Margie White; chairman social service committee, Lelia Humble; chairman mission study committee, Sara Hudgins; chairman publicity committee, Thelma Howell.

Committee For Anti-Saloon League Work Is Canvassing

President Few has appointed the following committee to make a canvas of the college community for the purpose of securing funds to be contributed to the national drive of the anti-saloon league of America: Mr. D. W. Newsom, Prof. James Cannon, W. C. Merritt, R. L. Davis, Misses Sara Hudgins, Elizabeth Floyd, and Lota Leigh Draughon.

The student committee is actively engaged in raising subscriptions to the fund and has met with considerable success.

Popular Subscription for Marne Statue for French

Trinity has been asked to have a part in the nation-wide campaign to raise a fund to place on the river Marne the MacMonnies Statue to commemorate the Battle of the Marne, which twice turned the Germans back and prepared the way for the final allied triumph. This movement is an attempt to give the French nation an enduring token of the lasting friendship between the two nations just as the Statue of Liberty has stood since 1885 in New York harbor, a symbol of the love of the French nation for the United States.

Information concerning the movement will be made available for the students during the next few days, and Friday the students will be given a chance to contribute. The subscription should be popular rather than large, and it is not expected that many contributions will be over twenty-five cents. In fact, it is preferred to have a maximum number of names with ten cent contributions.

Dr. R. H. Bennett to Speak Here Next Sunday Night

Dr. R. H. Bennett, chairman of the ministerial supply and training of the Methodist church, will be on the Trinity campus Sunday, March 28, and will lecture to the students Sunday night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall at 7:30. He will be here part of the day Monday, and will speak at chapel at the Park School and also at the college.

PARK SCHOOL NOTES

Professor Aldridge, who has been in the hospital for some time suffering from a nervous breakdown, has recently returned to his home. It is sincerely hoped that he can soon take his place in the school, where he has been missed very much for the last six weeks.

About fifty of the park School students were allowed to attend the Glee Club performance at the college Monday night, and were well pleased with the recital.

The Durham High School has refused to play Trinity Park School a return game in basketball. First they refused to play until after the state high school championship series were played off. Then they made a pending date for Monday night, March 22, and did not let the Park School manager know what they were going to do until Monday morning of the same day, which was too late for the Park School boys to arrange advertisement, and for Crute, the Park School captain, who was at home, to be notified. The high school refused to play any other date, not even the next night. The manner in which they have acted leaves T. P. S. practically sure of the color of flower the high school team has selected.

Answering the call of coach Bolich, about 35 candidates for positions on the baseball squad came out last week. With the exception of two or three weak positions he thinks he can put out as strong team as has been here in the years past. Enthusiasm for the game is at its best.

INSTRUCTIVE PAPERS READ TO PEGRAM CHEMIST CLUB

Harrison Twins and G. H. Satterfield Deliver Beneficial Talks to Club Friday Night

At a meeting of the William Howell Pegram Chemists Club last Friday night E. T. Harrison, J. H. Harrison, and G. H. Satterfield read very well prepared papers to the club.

E. T. Harrison read a paper on the life of Carl Wilhelm Scheele. This paper not only set forth in chronological order the events of Scheele's life, but also demonstrated the trying circumstances under which he labored so patiently and uncomplainingly in order to discover many chemical phenomena which have been of untold importance to the world of science.

J. H. Harrison's paper enumerated the many discoveries made by Mr. Scheele and treated his discovery of oxygen especially. It contained in detail account several of his experiments. Harrison also brought to the attention of the club several of Mr. Scheele's literary productions.

G. H. Satterfield's paper told of the history of the development of chemistry during the period of the phlogistic theory. It explained the hypothetical inflammable substance, phlogiston. It also told of the chief contributions of the men at that time to chemistry; the treatment of chemistry at this period; and how chemistry of this period was hampered by the false hypothesis of the phlogiston theory.

TRINITY WINS NINTH SWARTHMORE CONTEST

DECISION OF JUDGES WAS UNANIMOUS IN FAVOR OF TRINITY TEAM

THIRD SERIES WON BY TRINITY

Last Debate in Third Series. Trinity Won all Three Series. Saturday's Debate One of Best Ever Held Here

Trinity triumphed over Swarthmore College by a three to nothing vote of the judges last Saturday night in the ninth intercollegiate debate held between the two schools. This debate marked the close of the third series of debates between the two colleges, all three of which series have been won by Trinity. In the series just concluded, Trinity had won one and Swarthmore one, so that the winning of the contest Saturday gave Trinity the series.

The Trinity team, composed of Samuel M. Holton, Jr., Herbert J. Herring, and Allen H. Gwyn, has been thoroughly coached and the men showed their training to good advantage in the contest. The Trinity team upheld the negative side of the question, Resolved, That the principle of the closed shop be adopted in American industries, a subject that holds an important place in the discussion of American industrial problems at the present time. The affirmative side of the question was defended by Alan C. Valentine, William H. Hewett, and Detley W. Bronk, of the Pennsylvania institution.

The merits of both sides of the proposition were clearly outlined by the speakers for each side. The fact that the proposed plan is now only in the theoretical and experimental stage gave the speakers for the affirmative few real instances of successful operation of the plan with which to prove their arguments. On the other hand, the fact that the plan as outlined is theoretical gave the negative side of the question little opportunity to discredit the idea advanced by the affirmative. The main contention of the negative was that the closed shop does not tend to give maximum production at minimum cost. This point was admitted by the affirmative, but the fact that the closed shop idea would be more satisfactory in promoting the happiness and well-being of the laboring man was used as argument against the contention of the negative.

The unanimous decision of the judges, President C. E. Brewer, of Meredith, Mr. E. S. Parker, of Graham, and Prof. John H. Cook, of the North Carolina College for Women, was in no way a surprise to the large audience. The Trinity team clearly outpointed the Swarthmore men both in argument and delivery. The Swarthmore men showed the effect of good training and familiarity with their subject. They showed ease in speaking, but seemed to develop a slight nervousness when closely questioned by the negative team. Valentine had perhaps the best delivery of any man on the Swarthmore team, but Bronk developed more real argument than any of the others. Gwyn made the best appearance for Trinity, due probably to his experiences of the past. His earnestness and his clear illustrations of points, especially in his rejoinder, did more than any other one thing to defeat Swarthmore. Holton and Herring both made good appear-

R. O. T. C. RECEPTION A SPLENDID SUCCESS

OCCASION HELD IN GYMNASIUM WAS CARRIED OFF WELL AND ENJOYED BY ALL

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM GIVEN

Awkward Squad, Faculty Impersonation, Boxing and Wrestling, Songs and Other Musical Numbers Featured

The Trinity unit of the R. O. T. C. held a reception at the Angier Duke Gymnasium Friday evening, March 19. A large crowd was present, and enjoyed a very interesting and successful entertainment.

The gymnasium was decorated with pennants and streamers representing Trinity activities and carrying out the red, white and blue color scheme of the R. O. T. C. A large American flag occupied a most conspicuous place overhead.

Major Crawford made a short talk by way of opening, giving in a few words what the R. O. T. C. stands for and is trying to do at Trinity. He spoke also of the purpose of the reception. The college Mandolin Club next gave several selections, which were heartily enjoyed. The male quartette, the next feature on the program, received enthusiastic applause as usual.

The athletic features of the evening were two boxing matches and a wrestling match. The wrestling match between M. B. Loftin and R. B. Owen was so close that no decision as to the victor was given. The boxing bouts, light-weight, between Sergeant-Major Turner and R. B. Dunstan, and the heavy-weight, between H. F. Bolich and T. F. Moore, were not scored for a decision.

The drilling of an awkward squad by Captain Gilbreath was the cause of much laughter. The features of the squad were Henry Belk, E. W. Finch, and Wilkerson. Miss! T. D. Midgett acted as battalion sponsor and won all hearts by her captivating grace and beauty.

Sammy Carson mimicked the faculty so well that the dean rather abridged his remarks in chapel on the following morning, and McArthur imitated the birds and beasts so well that many students are rumored to have been homesick for "the old home place" the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. W. W. Card charmed her listeners with several songs, and R. A. Smith ended the program with some well-rendered songs, which were also enthusiastically received.

The next thing in the order of the evening was what most of the freshmen went for, refreshments. Two courses, consisting of coffee and sandwiches, and ice cream and cake, respectively, were served and greatly enjoyed.

ances, although both spoke rather too rapidly to cause their remarks to carry the weight that was intended. The debate was one of the best ever held here, however, and victory was joyfully received by the large audience of interested listeners.

After the debate, the speakers, together with the officers of the literary societies, were entertained by the Athens Literary Society at the Kilgo House.

The Beta of North Carolina chapter of Phi Beta Kappa is to be installed at Trinity on Monday, March 29. The exercises occur in the afternoon and evening. It is planned to have the exercises of the afternoon in the Hesperian Society Hall. At 2:30 o'clock there will be a short business meeting of the charter and foundation members. The constitution of the chapter will be adopted, the first officers will be elected, and the foundation members will be formerly initiated. At three o'clock will occur the private installation ceremonies at which alumni, honorary and undergraduate members will be received into the society. Prof. Paul Shorey, of the University of Chicago, one of the senators of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, will be present and will receive the new members. Delegates will be present from chapters at William and Mary College, Johns Hopkins University, University of North Carolina, Washington and Lee University, Randolph Macon Woman's College, Vanderbilt University and other institutions, to make addresses of greeting.

At 6:00 P.M. an elaborate banquet will be served in the East Duke Building to all the members of Beta of North Carolina and to the guests representing other chapters. Short after-dinner speeches will follow. At 8:30 P. M. the public installation exercises will be held in the Craven Memorial Hall with Pres. W. P. Few presiding. President Few will make an address welcoming Phi Beta Kappa to Trinity College. The charter of the new chapter will be presented by Prof. Paul Shorey. After the presentation of the charter, Professor Shorey will deliver the principal literary address of the occasion. Dr. Shorey has won a reputation as a speaker of great eloquence and distinction. He is a recognized leader among the classical scholars of America. A reception is being arranged to follow the public exercises.

All members of the college community and citizens of Durham are cordially invited to attend the public exercises on Monday night in Craven Memorial Hall.

Interclass Field Meet to Be Held on Next Thursday

Coach J. H. Ruff announces that the inter-class field meet, which was postponed last Friday on account of rain, will be held Thursday afternoon, at 4:00 o'clock, on the Hanes Athletic Field. Coach Ruff and Captain Loftin are both enthusiastic over the fact that the men are in very fine condition. They report that the track practice is better for this season of the year than it has been for a number of years. The freshman class is showing some excellent material. The weight men are also making a good showing. It is urged that all students be out Thursday afternoon to support their respective team.

TRINITY STUDENTS ENJOY HOSPITALITY OF DAVIDSON

Eugene Chesson Honored by Student Volunteer Union in Meeting at Davidson

The annual convention of the North Carolina Student Volunteer Union was held at Davidson College from March 12 to 14. The Trinity delegates were as follows: from the Student's Volunteer Band, J. W. Fitzgerald, S. H. Maxwell, and Eugene Chesson; from the Y. M. C. A., J. D. Stott, J. L. Hester, and Paul Gibbs; and from the Y. W. C. A., Misses Estelle Warlick, Tina Fussell, and Pearl Adams.

The officers elected for the following year were: president, D. W. Roberts, of Davidson; vice-president, Miss Sue Ervin, of North Carolina College for Women; secretary, Miss Clara Henly, of Guilford; treasurer, Eugene Chesson, of Trinity, elected to succeed himself; editing secretary, S. E. Ayers, of Wake Forest. Delegates were also elected to represent the North Carolina Union at a National convention to be held in New York City in April. These delegates were Miss Alma Chilton, of Guilford, and Mr. A. D. Price, of Davidson.

Trinity has one of the largest and most active bands in the entire union. At the conference two more Trinity students, S. M. Maxwell and J. L. Hester offered their lives for foreign missionary service.

The conference is composed of student volunteers for foreign missionary service and representative students from all the institutions of higher learning in the state.

Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement, returned missionaries, and prominent pastors furnish the inspiration and information for the conference. Missionary study, missionary educational campaigns in colleges, and local volunteer Bands were some of the subjects dealt with in the conference.

Each local delegation at the conference was required to give a report at the conference. Trinity's report was made by Eugene Chesson. The most important facts given in the report were: Trinity has been given a broader view of the needs in the foreign fields. She has been brought to realize the need for a more extensive missionary program in the college and the relation that exists between Trinity and the other colleges in this work. Finally, she has formed a new determination to do greater things in this work.

Two Interesting Papers Read to Biological Club

At the regular meeting of the Biological Club, Monday evening, two members read very interesting papers. J. M. Meeum read a paper on the subject "Is Fat Indispensable for Well Being?" His paper was well prepared, and was very instructive and entertaining.

The second paper was read by P. R. Yarbrough. The subject of this theme was "The Relation of Aeration to the Growth and Activity of Roots and Its Influence on the Basis of Plants in Swamps." This paper was very interesting to students interested in soils and plants.

DR. DEVINE DELIVERS ABLE LECTURE TO MANY STUDENTS

Social Service Worker, Writer and Lecturer Delivers Address on "Social Problems"

Dr. Devine, one of the leading social workers of the United States, delivered a very able lecture to a large audience gathered in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Tuesday evening. Dr. Devine has a great deal of experience in social work. He helped, in the reconstruction of San Francisco after the city had been destroyed by the dreadful earthquake of 1906. He served on a volunteer commission in Russia for six months prior to Russia to the revolution there. Then he was in charge of the American Bureau for Refugees, in Paris, for two years. Dr. Devine has taken an active part in many other social improvement activities.

In beginning his speech, Dr. Devine stated that this is a time when the most of the world is thinking the same things. He spoke on "Social Problems," laying most stress on social problems as they confront us locally. The speaker read a short quotation from an early Carolina History, which is found in the Trinity library. This quotation concerned social work in the Province of Carolina about two hundred years ago. After reading this passage, the lecturer stressed the importance of studying the local institutions of the past, especially those of the past fifty years. He pointed out that social work means doing something for others.

Sunday School Secretary Speaks to Ministerial Band

Mr. Jerome, the Sunday School field secretary of the North Carolina conference addressed the Ministerial Band at their meeting Friday night. His subject was "The Sunday School Problem."

Mr. Jerome called attention to the need for better equipment and a more universal attendance of the members of the church. He declared that only about thirty per cent of the church members attend the Sunday school service. He also asserted that the church pay for the Sunday school literature out of the church treasury and should not make the pupils bear this burden.

He declared that the pastor's relation to the Sunday school is vital and that he should be an active and energetic worker in organizing Sunday school and Mission Study classes as well as preach for the Sunday school and supervise the work generally. He declared that this work is of great importance and should not be overlooked or neglected by the pastor.

Page Supporters Organize Club to Boost Candidate

The Page supporters on the campus met Monday, March 16, to organize a Page-for-Governor Club and elect officers. Caviness Brown was elected president, Henry Cole, vice-president, and J. H. Harrison, secretary. There are about one hundred and fifty Page supporters in the college, and they are planning to organize clubs in the rural sections around Durham and secure speakers for Page to appear before the student body soon.

Kappa Sigma Initiated Two New Men Saturday

In addition to the active chapter there were a number of visitors present from Chapel Hill, and Malory Hackney and John B. Hill, of Durham. An informal feed was given after the initiation.

Debating Team to Meet Emory Selected Friday

In what each of the judges separately pronounced the best preliminary in a long time, H. E. Fisher, N. M. West, and G. D. Harmon, with R. D. Ware as alternate, were selected last Friday night to represent Trinity in the coming debate with Emory University. This debate will take place in Atlanta the latter part of April. Those appearing in the preliminary, in addition to the ones selected were: T. A. Banks, Jr., Hugh Leffer, B. I. Satterfield, M. M. Miller, and H. C. Sprinkle.

S. W. Marr, '13, spent a few hours on the campus Sunday. He is now engaged in the banking business in Raleigh.

John Wesley Burrus, ex-'20, is now studying dentistry at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

SHIRLEY ENCOUNTERS NO WOMEN

Dr. Graves Seems Not to Have Worried
Over German Bullets, But Dodged Encounters With French
Maidens

The third of the series of faculty lectures was held in the Y. M. C. A. hall last Wednesday evening when Professors Cannon and Graves read papers on some observations as officers during the recent war. The papers were humorous, but contained enough incident and fact to make very interesting reading.

The first paper was read by Professor Cannon, telling some of his observations as a chaplain in France. He gave an account of several personal incidents that occurred among the men of his own company. His account of the actions of a young Italian, the assistant driver of the truck on which he rode, were humorous but touching enough to affect every listener. How he overcame difficulties, including the English and French languages, how he always kept a supply of jam and bread under the front seat of the truck, how his desire to go back to Italy was never realized, how he loved his truck and worked for his comrades, how he went A. W. O. L. and S. O. L. and got by with it; all these accounts were interesting and made excellent reading. Professor Cannon gave a few of his observations on the French language. He said that the French people certainly did not take advantage of their opportunity to use this most flexible language. From his observations only three French words were necessary for the happy existence of the foreigner in France, vin blanc, combin, and comme a. All other words are supplementary and unnecessary.

The paper read by Professor Graves was entitled "An Apology for Junior Officers." In this he explained the whys and the wherefores of First and Second "Looles" and poor Captains. He gave an account of his own experience from the time that he left college to go to a training camp while others waited for the draft. The terrors of training camp life that a pedagogue was forced to undergo brought the audience to a state of sympathetic attention. How the good laidies of a certain southern town persisted in seeing that the soldiers were properly cared for, and their recommendation that bath-robes and bed room slippers should be provided brought tears of mirth—to the eyes of the auditors. From the southern training camp to England and France was the journey elaborated on by the speaker. Professor Graves assured his audience that he came through the entire serimmage without contracting any entangling alliances with members of the opposite sex, a fact that came as no surprise to those in the audience who claim even slight acquaintance with the ex-Junior officer. Professor Graves said that all his experience as an officer, with its paper work and all had served, he hoped, to prepare him to rub elbows with a buck private the next time the United States attempts to pull off a little scrap. That was the height of his ambition, to become one of the common soldiers like those he had under him throughout the war. Junior officers were such merely from ignorance and a desire to do their share before the draft blew them into the scrap. In conclusion, Dr. Graves said, "An officer? Never again."

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP MAN WRITES LETTER

C. E. BAGLEY, '16, GIVES INTER-ESTING ACCOUNT OF OXFORD UNIVERSITY

The CHRONICLE is in receipt of a most interesting letter from Charles R. Bagley, '16, who won the Rhodes Scholarship his senior year at Trinity, and is now a student in St. John's College, Oxford University. Bagley's letter is relative to life at Oxford, and is one of the two that he agreed to write for the CHRONICLE, the other to deal with Rhodes Scholarships.

While in college Bagley was a brilliant student and a leader in all branches of college activities. He was an instructor in French for a year after his graduation, and then served with the American Expeditionary Forces in the war for two years. Being discharged on the other side, he went immediately to Oxford to take up his studies. The letter is given below:

2 March, 1920.

To the Editor of the Chronicle:

DEAR SIR: I have often wondered why Trinity students took so little interest in the Rhodes Scholarships. Since coming up to Oxford last October I have decided that this apparent lack of interest has been due to a corresponding lack of definite information and sympathetic encouragement. As the result of misinformation given me by persons who spoke as if with authority, I was at one time very lukewarm towards the idea of trying for a scholarship myself. Thanks to Dr. Peppier and a few others, who helped me along materially, I was persuaded to take a step which I shall never have cause to regret. In many ways, Oxford is even better than I expected. For this reason I should like to send some definite information to the students of my alma mater for the benefit of any who desire to supplement their work at Trinity with three years of university training at Oxford and with extensive travel in Europe. I shall be as brief and as clear as possible.

LIFE AT OXFORD Courses, Degrees, Method of Instruction, Exams, Etc.

The normal course is three years long, the first year being spent in general instruction, while the last two are given over to work on some special subject, such as history, law, theology, medicine, classics, economics, English, modern languages, etc. Students from accredited colleges and universities are excused from the first year's work (moderations) and may begin work at once on their special subject (Final Honour School). In this way they are able to take both the B. A. and either the B. Litt. or B. C. I. degrees during the three years. Don't misunderstand the standard of the Oxford B. A. degree. M. A. graduates from Harvard take two years for it and find themselves very busy meanwhile. The B. A. degree automatically becomes a M. A. after four years'

time, provided the graduate keeps his name on the books and pays the necessary fee. Recently the degree of D. Phil. or (Ph.D.) has been instituted, primarily for Americans. Promising graduates of accredited institutions may arrange to take this degree during the three years covered by the Scholarship.

The system of instruction is different from that of most American or French universities. Oxford University is made up of twenty-two colleges, which are scattered about town in a radius of less than three-quarters of a mile. The number of students in each college ranges roughly from 70 to 600, the average being around 175. Every student is a member of some college, where he pays his college and university fees, such as matriculation, tuition, and alas! many others. He may room and get his meals in college if reservations are made far enough in advance. As a rule, the freshmen live in college, while old men rent a couple of rooms somewhere in town. Each student, whether living in or out of college, is placed under the general supervision of some professor of his own college. This college tutor does nothing more than check up on your terminal reports and see to it that you leave Oxford at the end of the term and report back at the beginning of the following term. He turns you over to some one who tutors in your special subject; the latter tutor is responsible for your instruction. You call on him in much the same way one calls on a friend. He suggests a list of ten or twelve lectures per week to attend, helps with any arrangements necessary, and sets a time for you to report to him once a week with an essay on some assigned subject. In this way every student gets individual attention, has a chance to ask questions freely, and can discuss informally or even argue the question with the tutor. A good percentage of the tutors are very decent, sociable fellows as well as authorities on their subjects. I don't hesitate to go to my tutor with anything that troubles me. Many of them coach on the river, others play golf with their students, while one in the French school took tea with one of his students last week and wound up by borrowing a shirt from him. Still another, finding out that one of his students was an acrobat, standing on his head. Unfortunately, I haven't been able to get this familiar with my tutor as he has no children, and I have no extra shirts.

After exams, on Moderations, which comes at the end of the first year there are no further exams, until you are ready to try for a degree. If you satisfy the examiners on the eight or ten papers set and on the oral that follows, the degree is granted; otherwise, back you go to study for another year. The questions are such that cramming doesn't help much; you must know your subject so thoroughly that it has become a part of you.

Some of the schools here are not as up-to-date as the corresponding departments in French or American universities, but they many people will gather about

In his address at the Academy Sunday afternoon before a great audience Dr. Mims paid beautiful tributes to the memory of the life and character of Mr. Southgate.
"He was a friend to Trinity,
when the existence of the institution lay in the balance, his real voice cried for freedom, for progress. He's now gone from Trinity, but don't you want him crowning glory of your city."

in the sixth on an error, and a single by Chandler, who relieved Neal at second. Lenoir had no opportunity to score until the eighth as none of their men were able to get further than second.
In the eighth came their only two runs. Lenoir's outfield seemed to be unable to get under the flies that came their way, and the infield was by no means invincible. For Trinity, the old reliable outfield, Hathaway, McArthur, and Cole, and catcher, Carson, lived up to their last year's reputation. Three pitchers were used, Carroll, Brown, and Caviness, all of whom were able to hold Lenoir at their mercy so far as hits were concerned, only two hits being credited to the visitors. Among the new aspirants for varsity positions, Chandler and Neal at Salmon, Folger, and Whitener at vacations. This is an excellent supplement to the work done in the Oxford French school. The same holds true for the other modern languages.

All students have access to the Bodleian Library during term and may arrange to work in any of the large British libraries during vacation. This includes the British Museum.

Those who have a genuine interest in scholarship will find Oxford up to its reputation. are all very thorough. Oxford is admittedly strong in history, classics, law, and English. The French school, which I am well acquainted with, has improved greatly during the last few years until it is now, in my opinion, the best place I know of for an English-speaking student to learn the history of the language and literature. It is worth pointing out that Rhodes Scholars studying French at Oxford may spend six months of the year in France and take courses in the French universities during the summer

The remainder of the letter, which takes up sports and activities of all kinds, will be printed in another issue of the CHRONICLE.
