TRINITY HAS GREAT DEBATING RECORD IN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

TWENTY-SEVEN OUT OF FORTY-
FOUR DEBATES WON BY TRINITY TEAMS

NO SERIES LOST IN TEN YEARS

In Past Ten Years Trinity Has Won
20 Out of 26 Debates—Entire
Record of 25 Years Given

Trinity College has been in the field of intercollegiate debating for twenty-five years, and in this period it has won 27 out of 44 debates, or an average of 61 per cent of victories. The leading position of Trinity becomes more evident when the records show that in the last ten years Trinity has won 20 encounters, and lost only six. In this last period, Trinity has defeated every team in a series, so that the defeats suffered by Trinity debaters are really not noticeable when the final results are shown.

In the old days, the annual debate with Wake Forest College at Raleigh attracted considerable attention and much rivalry. This series of Thanksgiving Day debates began in 1897, and for five years the two institutions met on the floor, Wake Forest winning the series with three victories and two defeats. The members of the first debating team were J. B. Needham, S. A. Steward, and J. M. Flowers, and the last two mentioned took part in two more debates before leaving college.

Trinity's debating teams in the old days were not quite as successful as their successors. Following the Wake Forest series, Emory won out of two debates from 1903 to 1905; then Randolph-Macon defeated Trinity in two straight debates, and so did Sewanee. But since then, Trinity has never lost a series, and the victims of our debating system have been: Vanderbilt, defeated twice out of three debates (1905-08); University of

N. M. WEST SELECTED TO REPRESENT TRINITY AT ANNUAL PEACE CONTEST

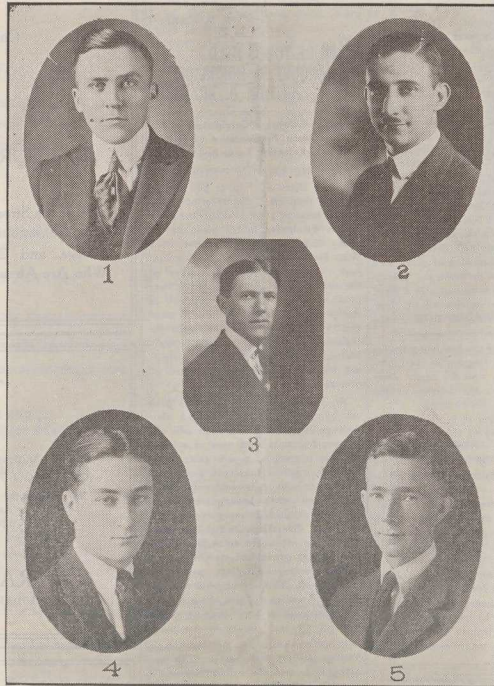

Much Material Out for Preliminary—
State Peace Contest to be at Burlington This Year

N. M. West, of Council, North Carolina, speaking on "National Seclusion versus International Cooperation," was selected by the judges at a preliminary contest held in the Y. M. C. A. hall on last Friday afternoon to represent Trinity at the annual State Peace oratorical contest to be held in Burlington, North Carolina on April 21. W. J. Bundy, of Farmville, North Carolina, speaking on "Versailles versus Washington," was selected as alternate.

Four other men entered the preliminary contest to represent Trinity in the Peace Contest, causing the competition to be very keen. The others who participated were: B. I. Satterfield, of Roberson, North Carolina, "Failure or Success Through Public Opinion"; C. H. Smith, of Harmony, North Carolina, "Peace Through Revolution"; John H. Small, of Washington, North Carolina, "Some Accomplishments of The League of Nations"; Leo S. Brady, Durham, North Carolina, "Education, The Only Means of Achieving Permanent Peace." The orations were all of a very high order; each man had his subjects well in hand, and the delivery of all the contestants went to prove that each man had done much consistent preparation for the preliminary.

The judges were professors James Cannon III, Holland Holton, and I. S. Harrel.

The college community will regret to learn that Thos. B. Ashby, Jr., was called to his home in Mount Airy Sunday morning on account of the sudden death of his father, Dr. Thomas B. Ashby.

N. Y. U. DEBATERS WON 2-1 DECISION OVER TRINITY TEAM

THE FIRST DEBATE IN SERIES WITH THE NORTHERN SCHOOL LOST

A VERY INTERESTING CONTEST

Argued the Question of Adopting the Principle of the Closed Shop
in American Industry

Trinity's first debate with New York University resulted in a victory by the visiting team in Craven Memorial Hall last Wednesday night, when the question of the closed shop in American industry was discussed. Both teams put up high grade arguments and the decision in favor of New York resulted from a superior handling of the facts in the case, together with the advantage of having the popular side of the question. Theodore R. Distler and Donald L. Brown were members of the team which won the 2 to 1 decision over the Trinity team, composed of John H. Small, Jr., and Norman M. West.

All the speakers were completely at ease on the floor, and this fact made it one of the best debates held at Trinity. The Trinity team, representing the affirmative of the query, Resolved: "That the Closed Shop should be retained in American industry," contended that the closed shop is necessary to give labor its just share in the management of industry, and that it is the only way to secure collective bargaining. The New York debaters immediately launched into the debate, and presented facts in opposition to the affirmative and then presented a well formulated plan providing for a National Industrial Conference, a Board of Arbitration, and other details.

The victory of the New York debaters was the second of their Southern trip, their affirmative team of the same question having defeated Richmond University.

TRINITY AND EMORY TO MEET IN THIRD DEBATE BETWEEN TWO COLLEGES

Ware, Herring, and Sprinkle Meet
Emory in Atlanta Tonight on Jap Immigration Issue

The fifth intercollegiate debate on Trinity's forensic schedule for this year will take place in Atlanta Wednesday evening, when H. C. Sprinkle, Jr., of Greensboro, R. D. Ware, of Albemarle, and H. J. Herring, of Burgaw, will meet a trio of Emory University debaters. The query for discussion is, Resolved: that Japanese should be admitted to the United States on the same conditions as Europeans."

The Trinity speakers, who have been coached by Professor Holland Holton, left Tuesday afternoon in high hopes of bringing back the scalps of the Georgians. In the past two years Trinity has won two debates from Emory, both of them by unanimous decisions, and since the record for the season stands two won and two lost, the local Methodists are eager to report another victory.

The three Trinity speakers are all experienced intercollegiate debaters. Herring, captain of the team, has made two previous appearances, one against Swarthmore and one against Richmond, and both times was on the winning side. Ware debated Richmond last year, and would have debated the same college this year but for illness which made it necessary for an alternate to take his place. Sprinkle was on the team that defeated Emory on a Trinity floor last year.

Miss Goldie V. Copley, '17, was drowned April 2 while in bathing at St. Cloud, Florida. The particulars of this tragedy are not known except that Miss Copley could not swim and in all probability she got beyond the safety zone and drowned before aid reached her. She was principle of the High School in St. Cloud.

EDITORIAL

PARAGRAPHS

Though the editorials and the general plan of the paper this week were under the direction of the Editor, in his absence, the technical make-up of the paper has been in charge of Bradshaw and Lander, two of the associate Editors.

Who's gonna win, Cigarettes or Coco Cola?

There'll be a terrible confusion this year about the directions. How can the girls who live in SOUTHTIGATE, located on the WEST manage to wear an EAST-er bonnet? We'll bet on the girls: they'll find some way out!

The other day in the dope shop Dr. Adams and Dr. Cotton got interested in a discussion about the United States' failure to participate in the Genoa Conference. Dr. Adams issued a challenge to his friend for a public debate on the query. Come on now; let's have one. We'll go so far as to have the pictures of the speakers put in the CHRONICLE. What'll be the "Date" on the contest? Dr. Cotton said Dr. Adams "Randolph." Gee! Moral: Stay away from the dope shop!

WHAT MAKES DEBATING SUCCESS POSSIBLE?

A very long record of successes in inviolate debating reflects credit and honor on Trinity in a way and from an angle that may easily be overlooked. Too often, one is inclined to give the credit to the men who actually did the speaking, whereas much of the credit and honor is due to the training and preparation that enables the speakers to hold high the name of Trinity. How about the class-rooms and the instructors there? How about the forceful teaching that places the student in a way for learning to make practical application and use of the principles that are taught? Why should we forget that the student's thinking is so directed that he may apply it to the end that convincing arguments may carry the decision. There is never a debate held by Trinity men where splendid training is not in evidence. The departments of history, economics, English, and in a measure, at least, some of the other departments, indicate by the manner in which Trinity's debaters argue, that efficient work is being carried on in their class-rooms.

But, the class-room work is not the only place in which capable and result-producing work is done. The personal interest taken by the members of the faculty is a big factor in the success that goes with a Trinity team. Although some comparatively small percentage of the debates have not come as victories to the College, no one of them has been lost by a unanimous decision. On the other hand, Trinity recently ended a series of nine consecutive triumphs by receiving unanimous votes of the judges. The record is familiar, but it is easy to forget what makes the record possible.

To be a bit more personal, the gratitude of every man who is interested in the sterner things associated with the College is due to men like Drs. Boyd, Adams, and Laprade, of the department of History, Drs. Glasston and Cotton, in Economics, and to Professor Flowers, Dr. W. I. Cranford and other faculty members of the Debate Council. Particularly Trinity men should feel grateful to Professor Holton, of the Department of Education. Patientstaking and detailed work has been given for a number of years, and the thoroughness with which the Trinity men face opponents is traceable in a large way to the expert advice all of these men, especially Professor Holton, have rendered.

Likewise much praise and many thanks are due Dr. W. H. Pogram, of the Chemistry Department, who for many years acted as coach for the delivery of the speeches.

In this connection it is not amiss to urge that more men of the student body appear for places on the teams. A gold letter is awarded men who have indicated proficiency in debating. The award is announced along with other academic honors at commencement time. Considerably more men are right now in College who possess the ability and the capacity to present Trinity on intercollegiate debates. The work is purely on the outside and nominally no scholastic credit is assigned for it, but it is none the less advantageous. An expanded program will afford opportunity for more men to make the teams. Let the future preliminaries see many contesting for places.

A SCHEDULE BLUNDER

When the schedule committee selected next Saturday as the time for playing the Trinity-Corolla baseball game, we are of the opinion that an error was made. This, undoubtedly will be one of the most important games on the schedule—one which the students most desired to see and one when the team most needed the support of an enthusiastic body of students. But evidently laboring under the misapprehension that a record crowd could be obtained on Saturday and that the crowd could be better accommodated when the entire seating arrangements could be given over to the public, the management went ahead and scheduled the game for Easter Saturday. Easter Saturday is not properly a holiday, and save for the fact that Saturday usually affords a good crowd, there is no logic in the assumption that Easter Saturday will draw a larger number of fans than any other Saturday. Easter Monday, the most desirable day, could not be had, but some time when the students could enjoy the affair and could support the team should have been arranged.

The task of arranging a schedule is not an easy task and the matter of arranging finances, is no whit easier. We believe that to management was sincere in arranging for the game on that day and we hold to the idea that its motives were all right, but here, as in the matter of scheduling the Wake Forest game so early in the season, the management erred. If it was done as an experiment, we believe that it will not show any more money than any other Saturday would show, though there will be no way to prove this. If the score goes contrary to the hopes of Trinity supporters, the absence of an encouraging body of students will enter into the affair, for one of the advantages of playing at home is the support that is accorded; the team is entitled to this. The students likewise are entitled to having the game played when they will not be put to any inconvenience, such as that one of not going home Easter, will be entailed. We earnestly hope that a blunder of this nature will not occur again. Theoretical logic might be found to justify it but practical logic is totally distant.

TO THE CHRONICLE BOARD:

The issue of the CHRONICLE for next week, April 19, will be in charge of Mike Bradshaw, Jr., one of the Associates Editors. He will have entire charge and responsibility for the paper, though he has the assistance of the other members of the staff for reportorial work only. The issue for the 26 will be in charge of H. C. Sprinkle, Jr., and that of May 3 will be directed by W. H. Lander. These dates were drawn by the men themselves.

ORDER OF TOMBS HELD BANQUET IN HONOR OF ARTHUR B. BRADSHAW

Plans for Extensive Celebration of the Twentieth Anniversary of Organization Launched

Arthur B. Bradshaw, "King of the Southern Diamond," and one of the principal founders of the Order of Tombs was the honored guest at a banquet given by the Tombsmen in his honor at the Gooey Shop last Thursday night, when plans for the extensive celebration next year of the twentieth anniversary of the order were launched. Over forty members of the order who are now in college in addition to eight alumni members were present to do honor to the founder who felt the urge of his Alma Mater and returned to dispel rumors of his death which had been scattered all over the country.

Mr. Bradshaw told the members present how the order was founded when feelings between the fraternity men and the non-fraternity men were at a bitter stage by a group of men in their junior year who realized that such a situation should not exist and would not exist if some large brotherhood were formed which should include every type of college man. Ever since its foundation the Tombs has attempted to stand for the true Trinity spirit, and its purpose has been to serve the college community. "This work should be carried on. We should be willing to give other colleges the advantages we have by doing a little missionary work," the speaker concluded.

Preceding the speech of the famous Trinity pitcher, Professor H. E. Spence, acting as toastmaster, called for speeches from H. C. Sprinkle, head of the organization, and "Sooner" Powell, who made an oration on the "Mission of the Tombs." John B. Walker, Jr., the first secretary of the organization made a short talk, and the other visitors of the evening were introduced.

Tremendous Ninth Inning Rally Defeats Durham Y

Although for eight innings Coach Baldwin's men played ball in a listless manner, allowing the Y. M. C. A. to pile up seven runs to Trinity's one, they rallied in the last half of the ninth in remarkable style, and only ended the run away when they had added eight more runs to their score. Eight hits were made by the Methodists in the last inning, while the Y team changed pitchers twice in a vain effort to halt the terrific onslaught of the Trinity nine.

Thompson started the ball rolling for the Y nine with a two bagger, but Perry failed to reach first, and Thompson was tagged out at third. Two runs were made in the fourth inning when Thompson again knocked a two bagger, and was brought home by Montgomery. Perry came home, and Rodden knocked a home run but was ruled out for failing to touch first base. Stalling knocked a home run in the sixth; Dempster was relieved by Sanderson in pitcher's box. Trinity scored in the seventh by Smith coming home on Johnson's three bagger. Coach Baldwin's men allowed three men to reach home in the eighth, largely on account of errors.

Folger led off for Trinity in the ninth with a clean hit to center field, after which Neal, Johnson, and Ormand followed in rapid order, each having a hit to his credit. Spikes sacrificed and allowed Ormand to come home. Deal, put in as a pinch hitter, and Sanderson both got on second and first respectively. Charlie Smith knocked a three bagger to the fence, bringing in Deal and Sanderson. The game having been won, the remainder was left unfinished.

The score by innings and the batteries were as follows:

Y. M. C. A.000 121 030—7 10 4
Trinity000 000 117—9 12 6
Durham "Y": Mason, Suit, Haley, and Montgomery. Trinity: Dempster, Sanderson, and Neal. Umpire: Red Rowe.

SAVOY CONTEST

The contest in which free passes to the Savoy Theatre will be given to those who have paid their subscription to the Chronicle will be conducted this week on the following basis: For the best suggestions for the most appropriate piece of music to be played while the picture here named is showing, fifty single passes will be given. The very best suggestion will be rewarded with a pass good for two weeks. A brief suggestion of the story of the picture is appended below. See it and then tell us the name of music that the Orchestra should play while it is showing. Hand your answer to the Editor not later than April 18. "Don't Tell Everything" is the love story of Cullen Dale, wealthy sportsman. After an exhilarating courtship, he proposes and is accepted by Marian Westover. At this juncture, his former sweetheart, Jessica Ramsay, appears on the scene and attempts to win Dale's love. She is unsuccessful but she does arouse the jealousy of Marian. However, Dale, by adopting cave man tactics, causes Marian to marry him, and all ends well.

SAVOY

The recently elected officers of the Y. M. C. A. will be installed at the meeting of the "Y" on Wednesday, April 19. It is planned to make the meeting an occasion for a general good time. The College Orchestra and Glee Club will be on hand to furnish music; the girls from Southgate will be present to supply beauty; and the only other element necessary for a happy social evening, "refreshments" will be furnished in abundance.

130 formulae actually made up and tested

A few years ago we decided to make a shaving cream. We had already achieved the ideal toilet soap by blending palm and olive oils. So we embodied this blend in a shaving cream.

And our first step was to ask a thousand men the virtues they wanted in it. These were their requirements:

First, a quick shave

These men wanted quick shaves, above all. Did not like long brushing, finger rubbing, hot towels, delay.

So a cream was made which acts in one minute. Within that time the average beard absorbs 15% of water. This result is due to almost instant removal of the oil that coats the beard.

Next, liberal lather

Next, they wanted liberal lather. They wanted a little of the soap to go far.

So we developed a cream which multiplies itself 250 times in lather. A bit on the brush—only one-half inch—suffices for a shave. A single tube of Palmolive Shaving Cream serves for many weeks of shaving comfort.

Lather that remains

Then they wanted a lather which maintains itself without drying on the face.

So we perfected a lather which maintains its creamy fullness for ten minutes.

A soothing soap

They wanted a soothing shaving cream. They wanted a lubricated razor, no irritation, a pleasant after-effect.

The best way ever known to those ends is the blend of palm and olive oils. The lather is a lotion in itself.

18 months of experiment

We are experts in soap making. But it took us that long to attain this ideal shaving cream. Step by step its supremacies were attained, and finally the best shaving cream in existence.

Now we ask you to test it. Learn in how many ways it excels. It will lead the way to a lifetime of delightful shaves.

TRINITY HAS GREAT DEBATING RECORD IN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Tennessee, two out of two debates (1906-1908); University of South Carolina, two out of three (1911-14); Washington and Lee, five out of six (1914-1919); Swarthmore, seven out of eleven, Richmond, four out of four, and Emory University, three out of three.

In the record of twenty-five years of debating at Trinity, two men stand out unrivaled in the number of debates in which they participated: W. A. Cade, who from 1911 to 1913 took part in four inter-collegiate debates, and Henry E. Fisher, who from 1918 to 1921 took part in five intercollegiate debates, and of these four were victories.

Men who have made names for themselves on previous debating teams and are still in the college community in some capacity are: Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, Mr. C. L. Hornaday, Mr. Holland Holton, Mr. James Cannon, III, and Mr. B. W. Barnard.

A complete list of the forty-four debates which Trinity has taken part in the last twenty-five years, together with the members of the team, and the decision is given below.

N. Y. U. DEBATERS WON 2-1 DECISION OVER TRINITY TEAM

ity. Previous to this trip, New York University defeated Princeton on a very similar question.

First Affirmative

John H. Small traced the differences between capital and labor for the past six centuries, from the time in England when capitalism was unknown, through the period of the Black Death, down to the Industrial Revolution and the recognition of trade unions in 1824. Capital and labor have both been at fault, and the differences in the situation throughout different periods might be described as the swinging of a pendulum. At present the working man has achieved certain results and benefits, and the affirmative contended that the maintenance of the closed shop was necessary for the preservation of the victories on the part of labor.

Small presented the contention that the affirmative was in favor of maintaining the closed shop where it was already established. Today it exists as one of four forms of industrial systems: 1. Open shop; 2. Closed shop; 3. Preferential plan; 4. Co-operative system. He concluded by pointing out that the public should be the decisive factor in social legislation, but that the system of the closed shop was the most advantageous because of the equality of collective bargaining, and the fact that the system was of advantage to all parties concerned.

First Negative

Theodore Distler brought out the contention that the closed shop was not necessary for collective bargaining at the very beginning of his speech, losing no time in presenting vital facts to back up his arguments. The power of the closed shop is very great, and it practically forces the worker to join the union or starve. When once in the union, the member has to obey the dictates of walking delegates from far-off headquarters regardless of the local situation.

Instead of the closed shop, labor can use the power of injunction which it has recently acquired. The argument of the affirmative that the closed shop was necessary was met with the contention that the intervention of the courts of equity made this untrue. Society now cannot afford to let combinations like this continue.

Second Affirmative

Norman West brought out the proposition that the necessity for the closed shop to secure collective bargaining was really the fundamental question of the debate. Capital and labor both have their organizations, and labor must have its organizations in order to give the public its side of the question in reply to contentions of associations of business executives. The balance of forces would be arranged under the closed shop system so that the public should wield the deciding factor.

West traced the condition of labor and stated that the open shop had been outgrown; that the unrestricted right of discharge possessed by employers was unjust; and that the closed shop was of advantage to all parties.

Second Negative

Donald L. Brown closed the argument for New York with a strong denial of the closed shop system and the presentation of a plan based on co-operation. He showed that the closed shop restricts production by placing a penalty on efficiency, and a premium on idleness. The petty differences as a result of this system result in the suffering of the public, and instead of securing industrial peace and co-operation, the closed shop has acted as a wedge between employer and employee.

The plan to accomplish co-operation was presented by a large chart, giving the basic principles of this new system. The solution of the industrial problems, according to Brown, lies in the installation of a National Industrial Conference, which is to supervise the entire industry; under it would be a National Board of Arbitration and a Works Council. This would be the best type of collective bargaining, and labor would have a fair chance in any controversy. The trade unions would then have the function of caring for old age pensions and other minor problems.

The negative was able to quote many names of the caliber of Taft and Hoover as favoring the open shop, as well as a number of Chambers of Commerce. The plan of the negative was sustained and explained as the only means of obtaining real co-operation.

"Little Things"

By Pritchard, Bright Co.

Someone has said, "It is the little things that count." They do to a degree, but not in selecting a suit of clothes. A young chap fell in love with a good looking suit because of the beautiful changeable blue and green silk lining in the coat. This may have been very attractive when his coat tails were moved in the breeze or when of a warm summer's day he carelessly allowed the coat to swing open: the lining served its purpose—it sold the suit. The manufacturer had, at the cost of a couple of yards of silk—perhaps doubled his money on the suit.

The coat, however, did not live up to the reputation established by its beautiful interior—it soon lost its shape—the part wool material wore threadbare—even the lining, as if discouraged, began to crack. Of course many high grade suits are beautifully finished, but what we mean to impress is this: Do not purchase a suit merely because it appeals to your sense of "Differentness."

Sometimes the unique placing of a pocket or a clever arrangement of buttons will sell a suit, strange as this may seem. And it is not only the young men who "fall" either, for many a staid business man has little hankerings—maybe deep in his soul—for that undefinable something termed "Class."

Be sure of your clothes—know that he is a man who will not cater to a manufacturer who attempts to make style supersede quality. Style coupled with good material is much to be desired, but do not turn down a good piece of goods for a little feature which catches your eye in an inferior suit and which no doubt will prove monotonous even before the suit is half worn out. No amount of "chic" can redeem a suit when it has lost its lines and the material has become shiny and coarse.

Know a man by his clothing!

DURHAM WON FIRST OF SERIES LAST SATURDAY WITH 9 TO 1 VICTORY

Trinity Met Strong Pitchers on Lee Gooch's Team—Neal Gets Two-Bagger

In a loosely played ball game, the Durham "Bulls" defeated Trinity at the Doherty Field in East Durham Saturday by a score of 9 to 1.

The Trinity team played a better game than the score would indicate but it was no match for the leaguers who took advantage of every opportunity, and scored nine runs on ten hits. The "Bulls" got away to a flying start in the first inning when two bases on balls, an error, and a hit scored four runs. Trinity scored her only run in the same inning when Tom Neal doubled and was brought home by Johnson's single. Durham scored two runs in the third inning when Gooch singled and tallied when Shay drove a long home-run drive to the center field fence. Two more runs were added by Durham in the fourth when McNiff singled, stole second and scored when Clark singled. Clark tallied when Benson tripled. The last run of the game was scored by the "Bulls" in the ninth when Angier singled and was brought in by a hit by Shay.

Both teams played first class baseball after the fourth inning and gave the large crowd of fans a good exhibition. In the fifth, Sammy Carson, who has signed to play with the Durham team this year, took Tom Neal's place behind the bat and Tom went to his old position at second base. Both men looked good in their old-time places, and played a snappy brand of ball for the remaining innings of the game.

Simpson pitched a good game for the leaguers and with better support would have held the leaguers to a much closer score. Of the ten hits registered against his delivery, several would have been out off by fast fielding. He was slightly wild, but throughout the game he kept his head, and made the opposing batsmen work for what they got.

Charles Smith led the Trinity hitters by getting two clean singles. He also put up a good fielding game, and made one exceptionally good stop. Turner at short also played a fine game for the losing aggregation.

For Durham the feature of the game was the home-run by Shay, who also got a triple out of his five trips to the plate.
