TRINITY WILL OPEN ITS THIRD FOOTBALL SEASON SATURDAY WHEN THE SPEEDY GUILFORD ELEVEN IS TO BE ENCOUNTERED ON LOCAL ATHLETIC FIELD

COMPARATIVE STRENGTH OF THE TWO TEAMS IS UNKNOWN ALTHOUGH IT IS BELIEVED THAT TRINITY HAS A STRONGER TEAM THIS YEAR THAN IT HAD LAST SEASON

SEATING CAPACITY HANES FIELD HAS BEEN DOUBLED

SEVERAL NEW FACES WILL BE SEEN IN THE LINE-UP OF THE METHODIST TEAM

Neal, Simpson, Garrett, Smith, Caldwell, Taylor, Hatcher, and Pennington Old Letter Men Back

On Saturday afternoon when "Are you ready, Captain Neal?" rings out over Hanes Field a thousand Trinity students will feel their hearts leap into their throats as they watch their team and that of Guilford clash after the kick-off in the first intercollegiate scrap of the year. Will the first scrimmage bring a sigh of relief or a groan to their lips is the question that many men are asking this week? Guilford's strength is unknown as yet for his game Saturday is also their first one for this season. Last year Trinity ran up a score of 28-0 against them, the largest score that she had made up to that time. Whether their team will be stronger or weaker is not known or the sport pages have been peculiarly silent upon that subject. However, it may be expected that regardless what kind of a team they send down here that team comes with the determination to win everything within their power to carry back to Guilford the ball that is used in the game. They have always had a scrappy team with lots of spirit which means a great deal.

Trinity's team is an unknown quantity which will be solved Saturday. Her success on the gridiron for the past two years means much but it does not mean that this year will tell the same story. The practice game on last Saturday afternoon revealed some things that must be remedied during this week. Although the first team ran up a score of 35-6 it will be noted that the second team did score and that defensive practicing will be a feature of this week's work.

Harvey Johnson, the man who ran 60 yards scoring a touchdown for the second team, was the outstanding star for his eleven and will be one the first string backfield men. Frank Brown, a first string half, was a consistent ground gatherer at all times, and Reid Garrett showed that he had lost none of his playing ability of last year but had improved. Captain Neal ran 70 yards for a touchdown after a kickoff. Simpson again did the Wake Forest stunt by kicking a beautiful one from the 35 yard line. Caldwell did especially well at kicking off during the game and Bullock made gain after gain through the line and promises to be a good broken field runner. Each side and especially the first team was frequently penalized but a few more practices should eliminate this.

Just what line-up Coach Steiner will send into the fray on Saturday is a matter for much speculation. The new men who were not at the camp are being given the first principles of football and some have already been promoted to the first squad. As first as Coach Burbage gets new men in shape he sends them on to Coach Steiner for a try-out with the first string. This gives him more material to work with and at the same time makes it almost impossible to give even a probable line-up.

Neal will be the man for left end but Caldwell who was taken from his guard position of last year to tackle at the beginning of this season may again be shifted back to guard with Weaver or some other man as tackle. Taylor will play one guard and Simpson will be middle man again. However, if

BLEACHERS SEATING NEARLY TWO THOUSAND ADDITIONAL SPECTATORS BEING ERECTED

Many Other Improvements Have Been Made During the Past Week to Put Gridiron in Good Shape

Hanes Field has undergone quite a change within the past week. Under the supervision of Manager Smith, his able assistants have put the gridiron in first class shape for the first game of the season. The goal posts have been erected and the field has been chalked off. The dummy pits have been cleaned out and have been refilled with fresh shavings. The whole field which had grown up rather thickly during the summer has been mowed. The gridiron has been roped off and the line markers have been set up.

The Athletic Association, realizing that larger crowds will attend the games this year, has seen fit to purchase so-called knock-down bleachers. A string of these bleachers have been erected on the North side of the field and will seat as many or possibly more than the bleachers on the South side. It has been decided that the grandstand is not to see to sit during an exciting game of football and two tiers of these bleachers will be erected in front of it. With these bleachers up the seating capacity of the field will be doubled.

During the past few afternoons the field has presented a rather busy scene. Practically four complete teams are rapidly being whipped into shape by the coaches and the managers are busily working in order to have the field in readiness for the coming game.

ANNUAL RECEPTION OF THE Y. M. C. A. TO BE GIVEN NEXT WEDNESDAY EVENING

Plans Are Underfoot to Make the Reception This Year the Best in History of the College

The annual Y. M. C. A. reception to be held next Wednesday night of Oct. 4, promises to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the college year. No trouble or expense will be spared in making it the biggest event of its kind for many years. B. B. Harrison, the Y. M. C. A. president, has been busy for some time, making arrangements for an interesting and elaborate program. The object of the annual reception is to promote the interests of the students and of the college. It is a general "get-together" in which new students may become acquainted with each other and with the different student organizations and activities. An address of welcome will be delivered by the president of the Y. M. C. A. in which he will endeavor to explain the character and aims of that organization.

In order that new students may get to know all the phases of student life at Trinity College, there will be a number of short, snappy speeches made by the representatives of each of the college publications, organizations, etc. Coaches Steiner and Burbage are expected to make talks on the abilities of the college and the approaching inter-collegiate contests. The captains and managers of the coming varsity teams will also be present, and will probably have something to say in regard to advancement of college sports and the promotion of better athletics.

EIGHTEEN MEMBERS OF THE JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLASS INITIATED INTO THE TOMBS

Ceremonies Lasting Over Two Days Will Culminate in a Banquet at Local Cafe Tonight

The annual initiation of the Tombs was held on Tuesday and Wednesday night, at which time eighteen goats were taken through the ordeal of horse-play and the ceremony of initiation. Tuesday night was given over entirely to "rough stuff" and a comic vaudeville for the amusement of inmates of Southgate Hall. Walls, moans, and cries of "neant butter, hit me harder" were heard all over the campus until well on into the night. Knew prints can be seen at various spots about the campus where the initiates crawled after the manner of worms.

All dormitories were devoid of freshmen from the time the first snark of a paddle was heard until the last Tombs initiate had sought his bed.

STUDENT COUNCIL IS ELECTED AND BEGINS ITS INITIAL DUTIES

COUNCIL MEMBERS HELD FIRST MEETING TO LAY PLANS MONDAY AFTERNOON

By-Laws Will Be Framed and Major and Minor Offences Defined at Next Session

The first meeting of the Student Council of Men's Student Government Association of Trinity College was held on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the conference room of the Columbian Literary Society Hall in East Duke building. The first action of the Student Council was to elect officers as provided for in the constitution of the association. The following officers were elected: J. L. Jackson, chairman; T. B. Bradley, vice-chairman; J. B. Harris, secretary-treasurer; Jackson, Bradley, and Harris automatically became the Supreme Executive Committee of the council, and T. B. Ashby, C. H. King, and Jack Caldwell likewise became the Election Committee of the council.

The duties of the Executive Committee shall be to transact the routine business of the council and to summon witnesses as well as to make formal reports to the Dean when necessary.

The duties of the Election Committee shall be to make arrangements for the annual elections of the Men's Association and the Student Council in accordance with Article six of the constitution; to prepare the ballots; and to provide voting places and tellers. It shall receive and publish nominating petitions. Plans were discussed whereby a suitable honor system might be installed in the Men's Association. Many helpful suggestions were made, but no definite action was taken. All members of the council agreed that the proper method of administration would be to create a sentiment in favor of certain customs rather than to make specific laws which were irrevocable. By-laws will be framed at the next regular meeting, and these rulings along with other legislation and suggestions will be published in the Chronicle for the benefit of all students. The legislation of the Student Council (Continued on Page Five)

GYMNASIUM INSTRUCTOR FOR WOMEN STUDENTS IS ADDED PHYSICAL TRAINING FORCE

Miss Elva Christenbury of Charlotte Will Have Charge of Games and all Athletics for Women

Miss Elva Christenbury of Charlotte, has been added to the department of physical education at Trinity college in the capacity of physical instructor for women. The addition of Miss Christenbury to the department brings the number of those engaged in training the bodies of Trinity men and women to four. Miss Christenbury will have charge of games and athletics for women under the direction of Captain W. W. Carl, for twenty years director of the gymnasium at the Methodist College.

Miss Christenbury was for a time a student at the University of Chattanooga and Ohio Wesleyan University. At the latter institution she took work in the theory of coaching organized games. This course included experience in coaching under supervision. Last year she was assistant in physical education and in charge of outdoor sports at Queens College, Charlotte. She comes to Trinity highly recommended.

Three hours a week of physical exercise each year through the junior year is required of Trinity students and Miss Christenbury will have charge of this work for the 250 girls. She will work under the supervision of Captain W. W. Carl. The employment of a physical instructor has raised the enthusiasm of the co-eds concerning athletic sports and some good inter-class games seem assured.

LARGE STUDENT BODY ATTENDS IMPRESSIVE OPENING OF COLLEGE

PASTORS FROM VARIOUS DENOMINATIONS WELCOME NEW STUDENTS

HON. JOS. G. BROWN IS HEARD

S. A. Stewart Speaks and Dean Wannamaker Pays Tribute to Dr. Kilgo

At nine o'clock, September 20, about nine hundred students gathered around the flag pole when college was formally opened by the raising of the flag by the class of 1923. Following the raising of the flag the men and women, both those who have been here before and those who are here for the first time, entered Craven Memorial Hall for the first chapel service of the year. This was the largest attendance at chapel in the history of Trinity College. Students had been pouring in for several days. The usual program for the first chapel service for the year was followed, except, instead of all the pastors of the city making talks, representatives of the various denominations made talks, welcoming the students to the city and inviting them to attend their respective churches. Rev. Dr. Mike Bradshaw, pastor of Memorial Methodist Church, who spoke a word of welcome in behalf of the Methodist preachers of Durham, was enthusiastically applauded when he said, "I am not a prophet but I venture to predict that on or about 5:00 P.M. of October 12 something is going to happen that has not happened in twenty-five years." Not even the newest arrival on the campus had to be told what Dr. Bradshaw meant for every one knew that was the date for the Carolina football game. For several minutes he had to wait for the noise made by the clapping of hands to cease before he could continue. When the noise died down, Dr. Bradshaw continued by saying that he expected to be there. The speaker then turned to the discussion of the main theme of his address which emphasized the study of books and of cultivation of the spiritual side of life. When Dr. Bradshaw had finished, Dean Wannamaker pointed out that the reason Trinity had not defeated Carolina in the last quarter of a century was due to the fact that we had not played them in that length of time.

Dr. Scanlon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, represented the Durham ministers of his denomination. He invited Trinity students to his services and wished Trinity the best of luck in their athletic.

Dr. Welch, pastor of the First Baptist Church, made an interesting talk. Besides extending the students a cordial welcome to Durham and to his church, he went so far as to say that if Trinity beat Wake Forest honestly in the football game Armistice day, that he bid them God's speed. Invitation and welcome were read from other pastors of the city. Dr. Wannamaker also read a telegram bearing the greetings of Dr. Few who was in New York.

Hon. Jos. G. Brown, of Raleigh, chairman of the board of trustees of the college, reviewed in an interesting manner the growth of Trinity College in the last few years. Mr. Brown was once a star baseball player on the Trinity team. He urged the students to live up to the ideals for which Trinity has always stood.

Dr. Wannamaker paid a fitting tribute to Dr. Kilgo who died since the closing of college in June. He pointed out that the probability Dr. Kilgo did more for Trinity College than any other man. He came to Trinity at the most critical period of her history. He never faltered nor failed and it was largely through his efforts that Trinity has the standing among the institutions of learning that she has today.

S. A. Stewart, a graduate of Trinity and who has spent a considerable amount of time in Japan, made an interesting talk to the students. He told of the great responsibility that rested upon the shoulders of the youth of this country and of the Orient.

Verily! Verily! The way of the initiate is hard.

Trinity 20—Guilford 7 in 1920. Trinity 28—Guilford 0 in 1921. At the same rate of increase, the victory Saturday should be overwhelming.

Among the familiar quotations now prevalent on the Park is the one which goes like this:

"O Professor, Professor
Have mercy on me—
A Senior."

That the old-time Southern chivalry still exists at Trinity is testified to by the many opportunities opened to the co-ed from Southgate who wished to change her room to another dormitory.

ALL PULL TOGETHER

The beginning of another football season causes The Chronicle to again congratulate the team on the remarkable record it has made since football was re-established at Trinity two years ago.

But having passed over past achievements with a word, we wish to call attention to the fact that this year Trinity has undertaken a full-fledged championship schedule, and that in order to continue the accomplishments of the past it will be necessary to utilize all the strength of the entire College.

Every man who has any of the qualifications for a football player must go out and work on the squad so that those men who are selected to play the games may have as much competition for their positions as possible. The men on the team must do everything possible to perfect their play—they must train, and work, and study in order that they may be able to respond to the ples of the College for that last yard of ground which may mean the difference between victory and defeat. And especially would we call attention to the fact that the entire student body must give to the team its most whole-hearted and enthusiastic support if the team is to triumph in the hard fights ahead.

It should be remembered that Trinity expects every one of her sons to do his duty—whether the student is on the grid-iron, the diamond, or in the bleachers rooting and cheering for the men who are representing them.

The last opportunity for men to come out to try for places on The Chronicle will be given Friday night immediately after the pep meeting in Craven Memorial Hall. All men who wish to try for a place of reporter which is a necessary step leading towards the editorship of the paper must be at this meeting without fail.

J. M. Barrett, '21, is a visitor on the campus.

SOMETHING MUST BE DONE

The poor service and the "public-be-damned!" policy which has been and which is now being pursued by the management of the Trinity College Book Room must be changed and changed immediately.

For the past two or three years the students of Trinity have endured patiently the hardship which has now, because of the great increase in the size of the student body, become more oppressive than ever. Although practically everybody connected with the College has at some time or other criticized the business methods of the Book Room, some doing this in the most vehement manner, nothing has ever been done to remedy the matter. The failure to do anything about the affair has been largely due to the fact that the student body has been practically unorganized until the present year, and also because the leader in any movement undertaken to relieve the situation would stand in danger of arousing the anger of the powers that be.

But now the time has come when the student body must arouse itself and through the student government association or some other representative body demand that steps be taken to force the management of the book room to employ sufficient help and to take other steps which will enable it to give to the students of the College reasonably efficient service. Under the present conditions, the book room is usually kept open only during classes and for a little while in the afternoons, and when it is open there is rarely over one person to wait on the crowds of students who go there to buy books and supplies.

There is of course a little excuse for the congestion at the book room at the present time, but the end part of the story is that the situation will be relieved but slightly at any time during the present year unless drastic action is taken to bring about a change. Throughout the whole of last year, whenever the book room was open, it was always crowded and it was a rare occurrence if a person could get his wants attended to on his first trip to the room. Usually when the office was opened for the ten minute period between classes, forty or fifty students would rush in and crowd the place. The one clerk would try his best to wait on as many customers as possible but before half of the clamoring students could buy their pencils and notebooks or whatever they were after, the clerk would say, "I'm sorry fellows, but I've got a class," and he would have to close up and go to his recitation. That in itself was bad enough but the students could realize his position, and they would take it well enough.

But on many occasions, the proprietor himself would come out and in tones which seemed to accuse all those who had come in to patronize his establishment of committing some crime, he would order them out without any regrets or explanations. The order would simply be "get out."

It would seem strange that a business conducted in such a manner could ever succeed if it were not a known fact that the College has given the management a monopoly on the book supply and the other things which are necessary for the student. Under the present system in which every member of the faculty is an agent or order-taker for the book room and no competition is allowed, there is no necessity for the owners of the book room to consider the wishes of their customers. They know that the students must buy books and that they cannot buy them elsewhere, so they naturally assume that the students are at their mercy, and, acting on this assumption, they figuratively tell the students "to go to."

This condition is going to be changed, however, either by the voluntary action of the Book Room Management, or by the action of the College authorities, or by the student body which is better organized this year than ever before.

There is little hope that the first method will be used. Too long has the book room management used its power over the students to extort and to bully them. The policy "You should be thankful for what we condescend to do for you" has held sway too long to be changed without outside pressure. It is useless to hope that the management of the book room will ever voluntarily adopt a policy of service and business courtesy.

The second suggestion that the College will eventually discover the evil and remove its cause offers a better chance for bringing about improvements. It is really the duty of the College authorities to take steps to this effect since it is because of their past policy that the book room obtained the power which gave it absolute control of the situation.

instead of looking out for the personal profit of a few men, those in charge of the College should first of all consider the needs of the many hundreds who compose the student body. They too, however, must change their policy before they will do this because it was by order of College Officials that the College was forbidden to carry notebooks, and other supplies in stock because it would interfere with the business of the Book Room.

The remaining solution of the problem for the students themselves to take the matter in hand. It is to be hoped that this will not become necessary but it should be borne in mind by the management of the Book Room that there is a limit to human patience and that the Student Co-operative Book Supply system has proved too successful in other colleges for sensible men to think that the system as made at Trinity is the only possible method of meeting the great demand for books. The College Authorities must also realize that no student body, however docile, will perpetually stand for injustice, and that the most submissive man or beast, if goaded sufficiently, will rebel.

CO-OPERATE

It is to be hoped that all students of the College will co-operate with the football management in making all practices strictly secret, in accordance with the wishes of the Coach.

There should be no trouble about this matter, but for some reason or other there are a number of students who seem to think that the rule prohibiting anyone from going to the football field does not apply to them.

As Coach Steiner has stated there are to be no favorites. Every man, woman, or child is to be barred from the football field while practice is going on unless he or she belongs to the football squad or to the managerial department. So keep away from the field in the afternoons and keep others from going down there to peep over the fences. This means you!

JOIN A SOCIETY

It is the duty of every new student at Trinity to join a literary society Saturday night when Hesperia and Columbia throw open their doors for the reception of new members. The duty is one which each college student owes to himself to perform.

We are not going to give any of the many reasons why the men of '26 should take this step. There are many others who will do this during the next few days but we do wish to state that in our opinion Trinity has two of the best literary societies in the State and that it is an honor and a great privilege to become a member of either of them.

Decide immediately that you are going to join one of the societies and in doing so you will take a step which you will never regret.

And having joined do not be content with being a passive member but become an active member. Take part in the program for it is only by intensive and extensive practice that one ever becomes a master of the art of public speaking.

A SEPTEMBER PREAMBLE

By A Senior

"September was a golden rod." Silently and unannounced the cooler days and frosty nights return to renew the vigor in the more serious activities of life. With the first dewy kiss of fall, the vacationer folds his tent away and struggles back home. The rod gives way to the inkly pen. The little red school house breaks its dreary silence. The world goes back to work.

This September of 1922 has been many years in getting here. When the doors of this splendid institution of Trinity College swung open to greet its arrival, they squeaked with a new pride and enthusiasm, thrilled with the knowledge of the many rich possibilities the visitors brought. When the writer says "rich possibilities," he says exactly what he means. The nine months between this September and next June should furnish proof sufficient that the waiting for this year has not been in vain. While viewing in secret satisfaction the golden harvest of the noble efforts made in the past, we should pause at the threshold of the new year in an effort to make ourselves, as individuals and as a community, architects of a plan becoming the realization of the possibilities before us.

What shall we count as a successful year? By what concrete measure must we determine our degree of attainment? True, we can't spoil a record by breaking it. It is no miracle, no violation of the laws of nature for a rising "student body" to gain in acceleration or motion; yet if we are to progress we must move. "Promotion is three-fourths motion!" and we can ill afford to waste a home-run by halting on third to congratulate ourselves. There can be but little doubt that our permanent success will be measured by the effort we put forth, by the combined and individual action of the student body in promoting those things of importance in the community. Each student should earnestly strive to answer the question of how he may best serve this splendid institution to which he has come. Having answered, he should waste no time in beginning work toward that end. If one would get the inspiring spirit of Trinity let that person begin at once to serve. Don't wait for the spirit to visit you; it would not be welcome if it came uninvited.

Individual effort should lead to a better community spirit. The community is composed of every individual, faculty and student. All people cannot be forced to live and believe the same; yet there should be little reason why every act, deed or movement, born of the spirit of old Trinity should not be supported by one hundred per cent. Let each man find his way to render this college a service and make the year a success. Let there be no slackers in the important affairs which are a part of this noble institution. Push on, and if necessary, fight on, with the slogan, "A Greater Trinity" ever ahead. This is the way, straight and narrow, to the spirit we seek. The greatest sense of reward will be the feeling of honest achievement.

He is truly a pessimist who stands beneath the bending boughs of September's tree of possibilities and growls at the fruit over head.

IN THE ENEMIES' CAMPS

When Trinity opens her 1922 football season in a game with Guilford Saturday afternoon she will face, a team whose strength can not be determined. It is true that Guilford was one of her opponents last season but it is also true that this team has undergone considerable change since then. While there will only be one change in Guilford's backfield, it is understood that there will be quite a few new faces in her line. It is to be remembered that much of the Methodist's success in last year's contest was due to the superiority of her line over Guilford's. It is certain that the Quakers will send a strong team and if Trinity wins it will not be an overwhelming victory.

In their second contest of the year the Methodists will face a team of unknown power. The best information available concerning the strength of the Hampden-Sidney team is indirect and not at all definite. This team held the strong V. P. I. team of last year to a 14-0 victory but this year V. P. I. had an easy time in the game between the two teams.

As her opponent in the third game of the ensuing season Trinity has the strong aggregation representing the University of North Carolina. In the Carolina varsity Trinity will probably find her hardest opposition of the year. Carolina has eleven letter men back including all of their last year's team with the exception of her quarterback, "Bunt" Lowe. She also has a wealth of new material and the one open position and possibly some others will be easily filled by new men. Her formidable line will probably outweigh Trinity's by several pounds while the backfield of the two teams will weigh approximately the same. Carolina will have two other distinct advantages, the advantage of experience and what advantage there is in playing on her own field.

A Mandolin Club has recently been organized by the women students of the College. Hazel Thompson was elected president at the first meeting and Robert James was secured as an instructor for the club. The members are:

TRINITY WILL OPEN ITS THIRD FOOTBALL SEASON SATURDAY WITH GUILFORD TEAM

aldwell does play tackle Pennington or Porter, the big boy from the Land of the Sky, will help Ike do the guarding. Hatcher will likely play the other tackle while right end will lie between "Rat" Austin and Carter. Fritz Smith will again guide the destiny of the team as quarter. Fritz, however, is suffering from a bad ankle, and if the worst does come Winters, the Massachusetts chap, will take his place. The rest of the back field is all a matter of guess work. Bullock, Garrett, Boswell, Waldo, Westmoreland and Harvey Johnson will be the men to pick from. Brown and Garrett will probably begin as halves Saturday with Bullock at full back and Johnson and Boswell will probably go in the game before it is over.

It will be seen that these men were practically all at the camp and have the advantage of the new men. Before the next game, however, such men as Everett, Boling, Shute, Legerstett, Wyatt Brown and several others will be pushing the men who play in Saturday's game for places on the team.

Each initiate carried a toy cornet, a nipple, bells, and a soft pillow. The pants of each were decorated with lace and toy bells, which rattled with every movement of the wearer. The initiates were paraded about the campus and through the streets of Durham, where they frequently gave nipple drills, direct of traffic, sold matches and papers, and performed many stunts for the amusement of the spectators.

The ritualistic exercises were held on Wednesday night in the East Duke building, after which a feed was served at the Tavern Cafe in honor of the initiates. All active members of the Tombs were present, and in addition Dr. N. I. White, Professors Spence and Cannon, and several members of the alumni.

Henry Sprinkle acted as toastmaster. Speeches were made by Professors Spence and Cannon, Dr. White, and several active members of the Tombs. All initiates were called on for short speeches. Wit and jocularity flowed freely about the tables.

The initiates were: Mike Bradshaw, J. L. Jackson, Divy Moore, Ike Taylor, Eugene Brooks, Fritz Crute, J. B. Harris, Carl Knox, H. D. Ormand, Bob Pinnix, Jimmie Simpson, Fritz Smith, Everett Spikes, T. B. Bradley, Walter Turrentine, Edgar Fisher, J. D. Secrest, and George Allen.

NOTICES

It is not too late to make the football team yet. The coaches are especially anxious for new material, and everyone who has the time is urged to report at the gymnasium tomorrow at 2 o'clock to get a uniform.

Secret practice began on Hanes Field Monday. No one is allowed inside the gate or on the fence, so please do not bother the managerial staff by trying to get in. If you are allowed inside it gives other teams in the state an opportunity to send men and get valuable information. Please co-operate and help give Trinity the best football season in many years.

The will be a pep meeting held in Craven Memorial Hall Friday Night at 7:30. All students are urged to be present and the freshmen particularly are advised to be there. This will be the first pep meeting of the year and the new men as well as the old will be given an opportunity to learn the yell.

The football management requests that all students sit in the temporary bleachers on the North side of the field during the football games this season.

All men who are desirous of making places on the business staff of the Trinity Archive will please see manager Walter Turrentine at once. This applies largely to juniors; however, one or two sophomores may be considered.

Bailey, the fighting bearcat, will renew his wrestling class on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All men who are interested, including both new and old students, will report at the gymnasium at the aforesaid time.

Important meetings of all classes will be held Saturday. Some of the classes are planning to elect officers at this time.

Interesting Program, Consisting of Music, Speeches, Was Given and General Good Time Was Had

Friday night the Trinity students were entertained at a reception given to welcome them to the Trinity Methodist Church. The excellent program included speeches of welcome and some very good musical selections.

Promptly at 8 o'clock a receiving line was formed and from that time on until the last person left the church enjoyment never died down. When the receiving line was broken up every one passed into the main auditorium where a fine program was presented.

The first thing on the program was a musical selection on the magnificent organ. This was followed by a vocal selection rendered by the Lakewood Male Quartette.

Reverent A. D. Wilcox then introduced the principal speaker of the evening, General Julius K. Carr with a few well directed words. General Carr's speech welcomed the Trinity students to the Trinity Church and the Trinity Bible class. He urged them to fill the pews assigned to them in the church by attending the church services regularly and thus form a habit which they would be proud of in future days. He also urged them to attend the Trinity Bible class, telling the boys to bring their "girls" and the young ladies to bring their gentlemen friends. He pointed out to them that they would not show due appreciation to the church if they came and enjoyed their hospitality and did not attend Sunday School and church. He closed his talk by placing a sign on the wall welcoming all present to attend his Bible class the next Sunday morning and urging everyone to speak to a friend about it.

Several musical selections followed General Carr's talk, the first of which was a solo by Miss Hightower. General Carr showed some of the old-time Southern hospitality by escorting Miss Hightower to her place in front of the audience and holding her music for her throughout the song. After this the Male Quartette gave another selection and amid a volley of applause returned for an encore. They sang an old love song which brought back fond memories to the old folks and thrilled the hearts of the young people. Then Miss Hightower rendered two selections and Mrs. D. W. Newsom concluded the musical part of the program with a beautiful vocal solo.

Mr. C. H. Livengood, superintendent of the Sunday School, made a short talk welcoming Trinity students to the Trinity Sunday School. He urged them to make themselves at home in the Sunday School, by joining some class and attending every Sunday.

Rev. M. T. Plyler, presiding elder of the Durham district, welcomed the Trinity students to all the Methodist churches in the city, endorsing General Carr's remarks and urging them to attend church services as often as possible.

These remarks concluded the regular program for the evening, and at their completion, Rev. Wilcox announced to the audience that they might retire to the adjoining room where refreshments would be served, and music selections would be rendered, adding that nothing but dancing would be barred.

Ice cream and cake were served to all and beautiful selections were rendered by a local orchestra. Every guest enjoyed himself, everyone declaring that the reception was a great success.

Members of Varsity Tennis Team to be Selected Soon

Preliminaries for a tennis tournament will be played sometime in the near future. A notice will be placed on the bulletin board announcing the date. All who wish to try out for the varsity team will be getting in trim for the said tournament. Dr. White, who will coach the tennis team again this year, has authorized Captain Turrentine to get his men together and bring practice for the upcoming intercollegiate tournament which will be held this fall.

Dr. W. P. Few left this week for Charlotte where he was called on business.

Fritz Crute May Become Eligible for Football Team

Fritz Crute, husky full-back and mainstay of last year's eleven, will probably don his uniform and report for practice soon. Crute has one more course to get off before he will become eligible, and permission to stand the examination is pending on the decision of the faculty committee, which meets tomorrow afternoon. If he is granted permission to stand the examination, and if he passes it, he will report for practice immediately.

This news will be most welcome to the football squad and to the entire student body. The lack of a trained full-back has caused no little worry on the part of the coaches, and it is thought that Crute can fill the position in the same manner that he did last year. For two years he has been the mainstay of the backfield with his headwork and punting ability, and the admirable manner in which he played his position has brought comment from the foremost critics in the state.

Sophomores Elected Jack Caldwell to Student Council

At the first meeting of the sophomore class, G. B. Caldwell, '25, was elected to represent the class of '25 on the Student Council Committee. There were four candidates nominated for this office. The election of a Student Council representative was the only business matter of importance to be brought up at this meeting.

The sophomore class is larger this year than it has been at any other time during the history of the college.

Representatives of Girls' Organization had a Party

In preparation for the coming of the large number of women students, the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, the Student Council, and the officers of the Junior Big Sisters held a week-end houseparty in Southgate Hall September 16-18 at which time plans were discussed and perfected for the reception of the incoming women students. All trains were met, the girls were given the glad hand and directed to the college where they were welcomed, shown to their rooms, and made to feel at home.

Junior Class Elected Its Members of Student Council

C. H. King and J. B. Harris were elected members of the Student Council from the junior class at the class meeting on last Saturday. Four men had been nominated by petition as provided for in the constitution of the Men's Student Government Association of Trinity College. They were as follows: J. B. Harris, J. D. Secrest, W. H. Carstaphen, and C. H. King. Three ballots were taken before a final decision was reached. J. B. Harris was elected by the first ballot, but another ballot was required to determine whether King or Secrest should be the second council member from the junior class. King was elected by a slight majority.

Class officers for the junior class will be elected at the next regular meeting of the class on Saturday.

IN STUDENT PARLANCE

"How many subjects are you carrying?"
"I'm carrying one and dragging three."—The Wesleyan dandy.

It was a pretty but very polite person who sat next to Jones in a railway station.

"Pardon me," said he to Jones, "but what would you say if I sat on your hat?"

"Suppose you sit on it and then ask me," sarcastically suggested Jones.

"I did," said the politely person imperturbably.—Kind Words.

NEVER BEFORE

Motorist (to tramp he has knocked down): You must have been walking very carefully. I've been driving a car for six years and never before knocked any one down.

Tramp: Not at all, gov'nor; I've never been knocked down before and I've been walking fifty-three years.—Answers.

Felix: "That girl I was with last night reminds me of a church bell, but she hasn't the sense of one."

Felix: "What do you mean?"

Felix: "Well a church bell has an empty head and a long tongue, but it is discreet enough not to speak until it's tolled."—The Wesleyan Advance.

ANNUAL RECEPTION OF THE Y. M. C. A. TO BE GIVEN NEXT WEDNESDAY EVENING

The Orchestra and Glee Club will furnish music for the occasion from their repertoire of good selections. The management also promises some surprises in the form of special music.

Immediately after the regular program there will follow a social hour, during which refreshments will be served, and the young ladies of the "Framusky" and the new men students may become acquainted.

Every new student who enjoys a good time, and who wishes to learn something of the aims, ideals, and general affairs of his college should not fail to be present at the reception, where a glad hand and a genuine welcome will be extended to him.

THE HESPERIAN LITERARY SOCIETY HELD ITS FIRST MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT

Interesting Addresses Were Made by Professor Flowers, President
Sprinkle, and Others

The first meeting of the Hesperian Literary Society was opened promptly at 7:30 Saturday night by President Henry C. Sprinkle. There were a number of new students present at this meeting along with an average attendance of old members.

Following the preliminaries President Sprinkle made a speech welcoming the new students to Hesperia. In his speech he stated that he was glad to see the large number of new students present. He expressed the wish that all these new students would come again many times during the school year and invited them to make themselves at home in Hesperia every Saturday night. In concluding his remarks he introduced Professor R. L. Flowers, a Hesperian, as the friend of every Trinity Student.

Professor Flowers urged every new student to become a member of one of the literary societies. He stated that if he would step out on the campus he would see many more students on their way to the moving picture shows than were in the halls of the two Societies. He said that these students would regret this in later years. He showed how it would do them little good to spend four years in college trying to gain an education if, on leaving school, they will not be able to express themselves clearly before an audience. He pointed out a religious meeting at Los Angeles at which several great religious leaders from Europe and from Canada had not been able to impress the vast mob that thronged the amphitheater, and showed how the late John C. Kilgo once the beloved president of Trinity College had held the emotions of the crowd under the influence of his wonderful speaking voice.

He told how Dr. Kilgo had learned the art of public speaking early in life.

He said that he would much prefer that a student attend society on Saturday night than to spend the time studying a lesson assigned by him, if it were impossible for the student to do both.

Gilbert Powell, a rising young barrister of Durham, welcomed the new students to Hesperia with a flowery tongue which is his own. He told how he joined Hesperia when he entered Trinity seven years ago and spoke of the benefits he had received from his society.

Mr. Herbin, of Greensboro, was the last speaker of the evening. He spoke briefly of how much he regretted that he had not entered into society work with more zeal and exhorted every new student to join the society at the earliest opportunity, and to put some good hard work into it. He urged every old member to work this year harder than ever before. The society then adjourned to meet next Saturday when all new students will be given an opportunity to join the society.

On Sunday afternoon a beautiful Vesper service was held in the Social Room of Southgate Hall for the women student of the College. The theme of the meeting was Friendship.

This idea was carried out in Bible selections as well as in a talk by Herminia Haynes and a poem read by Helen Cantrell.

Blanche Baringer, '22 former president of the Women's Student Government Association, was in Durham for the opening of the College and made an inspiring speech to the old students on the possibilities of student government and their responsibility for its progress.

will be such that it will cover a wide range of offenses and will not be limited to any specified few. The policy of the council will be progressive and rigorous. There will be no leniency for those guilty of major offenses.

Major and minor offense will be defined at the next meeting of the council, and the definitions will be published in the Chronicle.

The member of the Student Council from the Law School has not yet been elected, but such a member will in all probability be chosen by the next meeting of the council.

J. D. Secret, secretary-treasurer of the Men's Association, was present at the Student Council Meeting on the request of the president of the association. Pickens, of the sophomore class, acted in the place of Jack Caldwell as the latter was unable to be present at the meeting. The next meeting of the Student Council will be held on Thursday at 7 P.M. in the Columbian Literary Society Hall.

Girls' Student Government Association Held Meeting

The first Women's Student Government Meeting of the year was held Thursday night at eight o'clock in Southgate Auditorium. After the formal opening, the president welcomed the new students into the Association and in a few words set forth the aims, standards, ideals, and spirits of Student Government.

Miss Kennedy on being introduced told the history of the student government association and expressed faith in the vast possibilities of the organization. The Council was then formally introduced after which the important business of the evening such as the reading and explaining of the regulations was taken up. The fine spirit manifested gives promise of great progress this year.

LETTER RECEIVED FROM C. R. BAGLEY OF MUCH INTEREST TO STUDENTS

IT CONTAINS INFORMATION OF MUCH VALUE CONCERNING RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

SCHOLARSHIP IS NOW OPEN

Election of a New North Carolina Representative at Oxford Will Be Made Soon

A letter from Charles R. Bagley, a graduate of Trinity, which has recently been received by Dr. Peppier will be of interest to all Trinity students.

Bagley graduated from Trinity in 1914. He returned to Trinity the following year and took his M.A. degree. In 1915 and '16 he was a teacher in the Spartanburg High Schools. Bagley returned to Trinity as assistant in the French department where he remained until 1917. During the war he was a captain in the 81st Division and saw overseas service. He was awarded the Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University and graduated in June 1922. Bagley's unusual ability is attested by the fact that he took both his B.A. and B.Litt. degrees from Oxford in three years, whereas the average student requires two years to get the B.A. degree alone.

St. John's College, Oxford, July 1, 1922.

Dear Dr. Peppier,

This fall, as you remember, is the time for North Carolina to elect another Rhodes Scholar. The man chosen at the coming election will enter Oxford as a member of the class of 1923 in October of next year.

You have been very zealous in promoting the Rhodes Scholarships. I remember with gratitude your unselfish efforts in my behalf back in 1916. Despite the efforts of certain individuals, however, the scholarships and the advantages they offer are not yet very well known. I was amazed to find, on comparing experiences with a number of American boys at Oxford, that some of them had actually been advised not to try for the Scholarship, on the grounds that Oxford had nothing worth while to offer an American student. Such advice is bad and the ignorance which underlies it is hurtful. A few years at Oxford, of course, does not make a man; but the three years of study and travel offered by the Scholarships does afford opportunities for a good man to broaden his outlook on life and to develop himself in many ways. I believe that if the real conditions were commonly known, more men and better men would apply. As you have always shown a keen interest, I am turning to you for assistance in bringing to the attention of Trinity men certain facts in regard to the Rhodes Scholarships and their advantages.

This is a letter of information, not an appeal. Oxford doesn't have to advertise for good men; on the other hand, I have known few good men who could not profit by three years at Oxford, following a college degree at home. I say "following a college degree at home" because I believe that study abroad should always be as a supplement to, not as a substitute for our own college or university degrees.

It is unnecessary for me to go into details about the advantages of study in foreign countries. Every one must realize by now that no single country—not even our own—has a monopoly on all the best things in education or in life. It is rather bold to assume that we are so self sufficient and so superior that we cannot learn anything helpful from other countries. In fact we cannot even have a reliable standard without some comparisons. How do we know that we have the best unless we have seen and tried some others not so good? A serious student who has three years abroad is not a mere tourist. He has the desire and the time to learn. He is not content merely to visit. He has the opportunity of seeing at first hand many different methods of accomplishing the same thing in every phase of life: art, commerce, education, government, society, etc. From these many civilizations he can choose deliberately and freely the best of each and incorporate into his own life the qualities of each which seem to him worth while. Study abroad imposes nothing on a student. It simply gives him a wider range of experiences, a broader vision of philosophy, and a greater variety of life from which to create the standards of his own life and individuality.

The Rhodes Scholar has an opportunity for both extensive travel in Europe and University training at Oxford. I have never seen its equal in any of the big universities of France or Germany. This quality of sportsmanship nourished and developed on the football field at Oxford is useful in all the contests of after life. Every one likes to deal with a good sport. Besides the fine spirit which prevails in all games, the opportunities for sport of every sort for every one are practically unlimited. No one holds back for fear of not being proficient at a game. There are no professional coaches, but the captain of any team had much rather have a beginner who is keen than a good player who is indifferent or conceited. The chief object of sport is health and enjoyment, not advertisement through victory.

There are many other advantages which I could enumerate. There are also some disadvantages to be taken into consideration, but the later are not very serious. Among these I might mention the fact that the annual allowance of the Scholarship (350 pounds—about $1,650.00) must be supplemented by three to five hundred dollars if the holder wishes to travel extensively and to take part in all phases of Oxford life. Another thing. At Oxford one meets with many methods and customs which seem to us absurd. Likewise, an American is likely to resent the fact that Oxford is a rich man's university, and often becomes annoyed at the inevitable cliques which exist. On the whole, however, Oxford is very democratic, a place where ability and character count most. Friends and honours come to them who are worthy.

A man who comes away from Oxford complaining of having made no friends, is simply holding the mirror to his own face; for, of all places I know, it is the place where one reaps what one sows. There are many experiences in my life which have been pleasant and profitable. Some I cherish with particular fondness. There is no period of my life, excepting perhaps, my military service, which I look back on with greater satisfaction than the three years spent as a Rhodes Scholar. For me it has meant the difference between the willing acceptance of mediocrity and an insatiable desire to attain to that vision of something better.

Sincerely yours,
Charles R. Bagley,
B.A., B.Litt. (Oxon).

Freshman Class Meeting Was Addressed by Dean Wennemaker

On Saturday, September 23, the class of '26 held its first regular meeting of the college year. Dr. W. H. Wennemaker addressed the class on college ethics. His advice was sound and was well taken by every Freshman. He asks Freshmen not to wear any school belts except Trinity ones. Likewise he warned Freshmen against being too fresh, and asked them to show due respect to their professors and to the seniors.

Ministerial Band Held Its First Meeting Last Friday

The first regular meeting of the Ministerial Band for this year was held Friday evening. D. M. Sharpe newly elected president had charge of the meeting and extended a cordial welcome to the new men. On account of a reception at one of the city churches a short meeting was held. However, some important legislation was passed before the meeting was adjourned. Among this was the change from Friday to Thursday evening as the time for meeting. The Band in taking this action did so on account of the many things that take place on Friday evening. Heretofore, pep-meetings and other things have interfered with the meeting of the Band on Friday evening. The fact that Friday night is date night also figured conspicuously in making the change.

The president made it plain that all meetings would not be over forty-five minutes in length.

All new men who wish to join the Band will be received at the regular meeting Thursday evening at 7:30.

LARGE ATTENDANCE WAS THE FEATURE OF FIRST MEETING OF THE COLUMBIAN SOCIETY

Addresses of Welcome Were Made by President J. L. Jackson and by Dr. W. T. Laprade

Celebrating its 76th anniversary the Columbian Literary Society held its first meeting of the year on Saturday, September 23 in the society hall. Nearly a hundred men were present to hear the opening address, by President Jackson. After the invocation by the Chaplain, J. L. Jackson welcomed the men of '26 to the halls of Columbia. He expressed the desire for every man to join some society.

In the absence of one of the speakers who was to appear on the program, novel entertainment was furnished the society by T. B. Bradley, who presented the merits of Hesperia from an unbiased point of view, and L. L. Wall, who upheld the cause of Columbia. Bradley point of view, and L. L. Wall, who upstandpoint. He mentioned their spacious hall, beautiful decorations, and last of all their magnificent red carpet. Advancing further in his plea for Hesperia he spoke of the illustrious men that Hesperia has sent out into the world. He closed his speech in a flood of oratory, in which he lauded the splendid work Hesperia was doing. L. L. Wall in his own inimitable way praised Columbia to the skies. He declared that there were three things Columbia had back of her: her purpose, her products, and her history. Wall said that the purpose of Columbia was to help every new man in every way it could. Likewise he spoke of Columbia's products who now command places of fame in the world. He then reviewed the past record of Columbia in debating and oratory. He pointed out that Columbia had won four of the last five intersociety debates. He closed his talk by urging every man to join Columbia.

Among the old Columbians who were present at the opening meeting was E. M. Spivey, of Winston-Salem. Mr. Spivey said that September 20th was probably the greatest day in the lives of the Freshmen who entered college on that date. He urged every man to avail himself of his opportunities and to always assume an air of optimism in his work at college.

Well every body about settled down now, and I am going to take the liberty of thanking you for the interest taken in our little PRIZE contest.

The Fountain Drink was only a token of our Friendship for the older Students and to make a lasting one for the NEW STUDENTS Which we trust will illustrate our desire to have you with us and welcome you to enjoy our every effort to make you feel at home.

President Jackson then introduced Doctor W. T. Laprade, of the History department of Trinity College. Dr. Laprade struck the keynote in his exhortation to every man to learn to express himself clearly. He deplored the fact that the present generation is so unprepared in the art of speaking. He declared that the people were waiting for someone who is able to speak forcefully and is able to put across his ideas. He pointed out the point also that in every branch or profession today that there will be some need for ability to convince people. Dr. Laprade said that in order to speak forcefully you must first have something to say and then be able to express it. Likewise he told every new man that unless he give expression to his thoughts he is availing those who have confidence in him. Dr. Laprade closed his address by urging every man, old and new, to cultivate originality and a pleasing style in speaking. He pointed out that the only way to do this was to join a literary society whose purpose was to produce speakers. President

Jackson then announced that on next Saturday night the society would be opened for the reception of new members. Every Columbian was enthusiastic over the prospects for 1923, and predicted a banner year for Columbia.

The Durham High School football team will play Ruffed Friday afternoon on Hanes Field.
