"WHAT IS A KISS?"

IS ANSWERED BY CYRANO

that Roxane loves Christian (Christian does not know that Cyrano loves Roxane), he offers to write Christian's love letters and to enable him to woo Roxane through Cyrano's eloquence and wit.

Making Love by Proxy

The love making by proxy continues very successfully until Christian finally decides to woo Roxane without the aid of Cyrano. But when he sits beside her in the beautiful garden, all he says is, "I love you." She tells him that he has the right theme, but she asks for variations on it. Finally she decides that his eloquence and wit have deserted him, and then she also leaves him.

Christian is then left in utter despair. By Cyrano steps out of the evening shadows and offers to help him again. They throw pebbles at Roxane's window and finally succeed in bringing her on the balcony. Cyrano remains hidden in the shadows of the vine-covered balcony and whispers eloquent words to Christian. Cyrano's winged words of eloquence finally win Roxane's consent for a kiss, and then Cyrano remains hidden in the vines while Christian ascends to the balcony and takes the kiss which Cyrano has won.

Cyrano never falters or betrays Christian, but he cannot help uttering to himself: "He! . . . What a turn of the screw to my heart! . . . Kiss, banquet of Love at which I am angust, a crumb drops from the table even to me, here in the shade. . . . Yes, in my outstretched heart a little fall, as I feel that upon the lip pressing her lip Roxane kisses the words spoken by me!"

Of course the romantic reader wants to know if the situation is ever thus with Cyrano. That is another story.

VICTORY OVER GUILFORD ENDS

FALL MATCHES OF

WIN TWO GAMES OUT OF THREE

Local Tidlers Lose to University, but

Nose Out Victory Over Wake

Forest and Guilford

Trinity's victory over Guilford on November 8 brought to a close a fairly successful season for the local courtiers.

Three opponents were met during the fall term, two of which were conquered, the third doing the conquering. The first opposition the Trinity netmen encountered was the strong Carolina aggregation, which carried off the honors of the day by winning all five singles.

Two double matches resulted in ties, however, and darkness put an end to further play. The match was played on the local courts, with Captain Whitman, Burns, Swearingen, Mayer, Farris, and Kurnas in the role of defenders.

The dreadful Demon Deacons were next encountered, also in the home arena, but this time there was a smile on the face of the devil when the sun set because the lads from Wake Forest were immersed in the bitter waters of defeat. The invaders won two singles but Captain Whitman and Burns proved to much for them.

Finishing a pair of singles and a double, Farris and Swearingen also annexed a victory in the doubles.

The local Tidlers determined that the last match of the season should be exact, by like the first, but with themselves on the other side of the net. With this in view they hid themselves to Guilford to give the Quakers a few points in the gentle art of crucifying a tennis ball, and proved themselves apt instructors, winning five singles and a double.

The remaining double was donated to Guilford.

The Town Girl Party

On Saturday night, November 15, the black girls were at home in the parlor of Southgate to the town girls. The stiffness and formality of a reception was lacking and the girls enjoyed the evening in an atmosphere of jolly laughter and cordial good feeling. A jazz orchestra furnished the music, and during the evening Miss Baldwin played several beautiful piano selections. Punch, ice cream, and cake were served. The management of the entertainment was in the hands of Miss Sara Kate Ormond, Chairman of the Social Committee of the Woman's Student Government Association.

Literary Societies

Athens and Brooke Literary Societies will meet together next Saturday evening with Mr. Holton for a further discussion of plans for carrying out a program to encourage intercollegiate debating among the women.

DEAN WANNAMAKER LEADS

IN GREAT PEET MEETING

Students are Urged to Forget Wake Forest Game and to Rest for the Season

Last Wednesday morning directly after chapel there was held one of the most enthusiastic peet meetings that Trinity College has ever witnessed. With practically the entire student body present an even greater peet meeting was held than the one which was held before the Trinity-Wake Forest game. Dean Wannamaker, the good old Dean, was the principal factor at this meeting. He made one of the best talks that the student body has ever heard him make. He began his talk by asking "Are we hearted?" The immediate response was "No." In the close of his speech, he stated that although we lose the game we should not go around the campus with long gloomy faces, and he requested that the students get out of their blues and go about with smiling faces that would make anyone think that we won the game. He pointed out that losing the game was a mere incident in life and would be forgotten. The Dean concluded his talk by asking for the hearty co-operation of every student, and for the meek support to the team, for the two important games which remained. Harrah for "Old Dean Wannamaker" is a man after our own heart. This remarkable speech, cheer leaders Caven and Waggoner led yells for Dean Wannamaker and Coach Jones who were followed by numerous yells for the team. With everybody feeling that they owned the world, the meeting was adjourned by the singing of "Trinity."

Kappa Sigma Gives Tea

Party on Last Tuesday

On Tuesday evening, November 11, following the Wake Forest game, informal tea was given in honor of the (latter) alumni in the Kappa Sigma Chapter room. Light refreshments were served to the guests—visitors from out of town and several town and "Shack" girls. Among the visitors present were: Dr. W. S. Anderson, Steve Anderson, Bush White, John Duncan, Charles Duncan, John Long, Gene Raper, Mr. and Mrs. Mickle, and Coach and Mrs. Garrity of Wake Forest.

FRESHMEN AND STATE FRIDAY

Elliott and Prichard from Chapel Hill are Best Men of Meet—Green Takes Third Place for Trinity

The Carolina freshmen cross-country team stretched its legs here last Saturday, to win over the Trinity freshmen runners by the score of 20 to 39. The winning team was the team making the smaller score, points being recorded on a negative or low score basis, each runner taking the number of the place that he came in. Elliott and Prichard, libel-minded University froshes, stepped the two and a half mile distance in 14 minutes and 3 seconds, Elliott barely winning ahead of Prichard. Green, of Trinity, furnished the thrill of the race by sprinting to a third place finish ahead of Gaskill of Carolina.

The first of the meet was held between halves of the Trinity-Wofford football game, and going out over the course through West Durham and by Watts hospital they came to the finish line.

DR. PATTERSON DELIVERS ADDRESS TO SCIENCE CLUB

Professor of Physics at Carolina Talks on Phenomena Governing the Flow of Liquids

Dr. A. H. Patterson, professor of Physics at the University of North Carolina, delivered an interesting lecture on "The Interesting Phenomena Governing the Flow of Liquids," in room 20 last Wednesday evening. The lecture was graphically illustrated by various apparatus connected with the physics department, making the lecture doubly interesting.

In accordance with custom the lecture was given under the auspices of the Crowell Science Club. The Club has in the past endeavored to present the College with able speakers from various parts of the country, and it plans mature, Trinity students will have the opportunity of hearing several of the country's most distinguished scientists before the end of the college year. The Crowell Club extends a hearty invitation to all the College Community to attend the various lectures from time to time.

Five Members Address The Ministerial Band

As the president was absent at the meeting of the Ministerial Band Friday night, the vice-president, Mr. Kiker, took charge. Several of the members were called on to make short talks. Mr. Swearingen spoke on "The Minister in Athletics" in which he showed the need of a healthy body in ministerial work. Mr. Maxwell, the second speaker, pointed out the minister's place in the classroom. Next, Mr. Kiker spoke on "The Minister in the Literary Society," showing the importance of learning to think and speak while on one's feet. The fourth speaker was Mr. Ashmore. He spoke on "The Ministerial Student in the Ministerial Band" urging that every member get to work and help develop the Band. He cited Butler College as an example, stating that the Band up there was alive and doing very good work. The members felt that the Band belonged to them and they worked for it. Mr. Pratt, the last speaker, pointed out the ministerial student's place on the campus. He said that the members of the Band should mix with the Students and lead them by their example; showing them that a man can live a clean life even among temptations. After discussing a plan to get more of the members to attend, all were especially urged to be there at the next meeting.

"The Best Laundry For Trinity Men"

FIRST WRESTLING MATCH WITH CONCORD "Y" TEAM

Men Who Have Not Won Letters Will Wrestle for Team
Standing

Thirty-five men are battling with all their strength for supremacy in wrestling. In every weight several men are competing for college honors, but it is hard to decide who will represent Trinity in her various meets during the coming season. Many hard schedules are on the program, including Navy, Washington and Lee, Carolina, State, and other colleges in the State and south.

Captain Hardaway is acting as coach in the absence of "Bill" Bailey, last year's coach. Captain Hardaway is developing a remarkable team, but the team feels the need of a more experienced Mentor to guide them along the rough road laid out for them this year.

Before the Concord Y. M. C. A. match on December 11, in the gymnasium, all men who have not made letters on the team will wrestle for team standing. Men who otherwise would not be able to show their ability as wrestlers, will have the opportunity to prove themselves before the student body.

OPEN FORUM

Editor of The Chronicle,

Dear Sir:

At a recent meeting of the North Carolina College Press Association, the publications at Trinity College were given a place at the head of the list; considered among the foremost of the large publications in the State of North Carolina. But who is responsible for this great honor being bestowed upon the publications at Trinity? Sooner or later it will be the members of the student body or should the members of the staff share the honor? It is a significant fact that an exceptionally few members of the student body are willing to devote their time and talent to the promotion of the various publications, and for this reason the editors and managers must do the best they can with the assistance they may get, regardless of the fact, that there is much talent available, but who do not appear interested in their publications.

Although the editors and managers of the various publications struggle from day to day almost single handed in an effort to make the Trinity publications the best of all college publications, they do not seek the credit which may come to the College, for themselves for considering themselves only a small part of the college community and as such do their work in a manner which will be for the good of Trinity. But they do desire and need the co-operation of every member of the student body in order to be successful in their undertakings, and give to Trinity college and her students production of which they should be justly proud.

It is an amazing fact but true nevertheless, that the publications at Trinity do not receive but a small fraction of the support of the local student body, and that other colleges with a smaller student body far surpass Trinity publications in circulation. We willingly give our money and lend our good will to all other forms of activity. Why not aid our publications? It seems that while it is not only the duty of every student to subscribe to at least one of his college publications, his interest in the various activities should be strong enough to create in him a desire for a record of what takes place throughout the year. He is enabled to keep abreast of the times by merely subscribing to at least one, if not all the publications of Trinity.

If interest is not awakened soon, the Trinity publications will not be able to hold the high place they now hold, because these publications are limited in their scope and in their efforts to promote the best interests of Trinity College, due to the marked indifference of the student body. The instituting of a publication fee into the required list of College expenses appears to be the only solution to the problem at this time. The Chronicle since its foundation, theoretically at least, has been published by the Columbian and Hesperian Literary Societies, but practically since that time it has been on its own resources, to survive—perhaps the literary societies hardly aware of any connection with the College newspaper. The Archive is practically on the same basis; except in rare instances when a clever business manager is able to induce the members of the Senior class to subscribe for it, whether they supported it or not.

Therefore it appears that a publication council should be in control of these two publications, to promote interest and control the policy of these publications. This council should be representative of the college community; should include the editors and managers; have representatives of the two literary societies; of the four classes, of the athletic council; and should include at least two members of the faculty; thus the policy of the paper would depend upon the opinions of representatives of the College; would be supported by the publication council; and consequently by the entire student body. Thus the financial handicaps and limitations would be removed, allowing the editors and managers to widen their scope and making the publications at Trinity College the best possible.

A. H. Young.

Trinity Students:

During the past few weeks there has been considerable criticism of the honor system at Trinity. This criticism has been due to the fact that certain students have been losing money from their booths or "honor system boxes". In the literary societies, among the students on the campus, and in The Chronicle statements have been made that the owners of the booths have been losing money to the extent of approximately seventy-five dollars.

The amount of money that is claimed to have been stolen is undoubtedly exaggerated. The owners have been reporting to me for several weeks that they have been steadily losing money. On being questioned as to the amount they could give no definite figures, but estimated their loss at a rather high figure every time. They admitted that they did not check up on the cost of the goods in the box and their receipts. It is very natural for anyone who is losing money to exaggerate. It is human nature.

Also the owners have expressed their opinion several times that they felt certain that small boys were doing most of the stealing. It seems as if most of their losses occurred during the supper hour when there are very few students on the campus. One of the owners has also reported that he has seen more than one just before supper groups of small boys from West Durham waiting near the boxes. Other men have seen them. Last year some small boys were caught stealing from these boxes. Then why make the charge, as one man has done publicly, that the Trinity students are a bunch of thieves and that the honor system is a failure?

Even if some Trinity students have taken money that did not belong to them, it does not necessarily follow that this is a general practice. Very little money has been taken from the box at Aycock. If the practice of stealing is general, why is that one box has paid well without hardly any loss? Does it not point to the fact that only a few individuals, perhaps, three or four, are guilty of stealing?

Finally, if a few students are guilty of stealing and most likely there are a few, the student body should take an absolute stand against the practice. Report any man who is caught stealing, and the student council will see to it that he is punished severely. Stealing, no matter how small the amount, is most certainly violating the honor system. The Editor of The Chronicle took the right stand in his editorial in the last issue. It may be a small matter, but any violation of the honor system must not be allowed to pass without making the student body indignant and without being punished. Students must not take a passive, indifferent attitude towards the smallest phase of the honor system.

W. S. BARNES.

J. P. BOYD IS CHOSEN AS PRESIDENT OF COLUMBIA

Lee, Abrams, Laprade and Young Also Obtain Offices—Hesperia Changes
Query for Inter-Society Debate

Last Saturday evening Columbia held an election and installation of new officers for the coming year, which was presided over by the regular program. Julian P. Boyd was given the highest honor that Columbia can bestow upon one of her members, that of the office of president. In his inaugural speech Mr. Boyd thanked the members of the hall for their expression of their confidence in him by electing him to the distinguished office of the presidency. He pledged himself to the faithful performance of his duties, and asked for the co-operation of every member.

The other officers elected were: P. A. Lee, recording secretary; W. A. Abrams, corresponding secretary; L. S. Laprade, chairman of the executive committee, and A. H. Young, marshal.

Columbia begins this quarter with much enthusiasm and spirit. The officers are men who are highly capable of filling their respective positions, and much is expected of them this quarter.

Hesperian recalled the challenge which was sent to Columbia at the previous meeting and issued a new challenge to a debate to be held on the evening of December 16th, on the question "Resolved that the Port Bill which was defeated in the election should be passed."

The challenge was accepted, however, the side which Columbia should uphold was not decided upon.

Jernigan Reads Paper at Classical Club Meeting

The Classical Club held its regular meeting in room 2A of West Duke last Friday evening at 7:30. An unusually good paper was read by Mr. C. G. Jernigan on the "Fatalism of the Greeks." This paper was very interesting and was enjoyed by all present. After this reading the meeting was thrown open for general discussion, and things of interest were brought up during this time.
