TRINITY COLLEGE BENEFACCTOR
Washington Duke Has Officially Dedicated to his Memory a Building Which He Started as the New Hotel.

Fitting tribute was paid yesterday at Washington Duke, one of the early benefactors of Trinity College, the new college hotel which bears his name. The college's president, Dr. W. S. Brown, spoke of the late Mr. Duke's generosity, and the accomplishments of the Trinity College. The hotel was formally opened to the public with appropriate ceremonies.

HOSPITALITY VOTES FOR CHRONICLE
Society Unanimously Endorsed Preservation of Present Relation.

The only activity of the evening was the presentation of the university's present to the Chronicle. The presentation was attended by Dr. W. S. Brown, president of Trinity College, and the college's students and faculty. The gesture was made to the Chronicle as a token of the college's esteem for its work in the past and its promise for the future.

DUKE UNIVERSITY FIELDS GREAT LOSS
The passing of Mr. J. B. Duke has left an indelible impression on the entire university. The late Mr. Duke, a benefactor of the institution, had been a forceful presence in the university's affairs for many years. His contributions to the university were numerous and invaluable. His death has left a void in the heart of the university community.

CONSTRUCTION IS DELAYED BY RAIN
Water Has Been Pumped Out of Cellars and the Contractor Is Now Working on New Building.

The recent rains have delayed work on the new building. It is now estimated that it will be ready before the winter. The new building is expected to be completed by the end of the summer. The construction is proceeding at a steady pace, and it is anticipated that the building will be ready for use by the fall.

LOYALTY FUND DRIVE MAKES GREAT START
First Theological on Loyalty Fund Helps Make Duke Thrive.

The loyalty fund drive continues to make great progress. The first theological on the fund has been received, and it is expected that the fund will reach its goal in the near future. The loyalty fund is an important source of revenue for the university, and it is important that it continue to thrive.

The Chronicle is reprinting Student Association features every week. This week's feature is "The Duke of Days," a collection of humorous and insightful articles written by students for students.
SUGGESTION TO ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

During the recent Close-up window, we have observed that our campus is in need of improved intercollegiate relations and better organization, which we believe would improve our athletic performance. We are committed to recommending the following improvements:

1. Create a more structured training regimen to ensure球员 are well-prepared for competitions.
2. Implement regular team meetings to foster better communication among players.
3. Establish a system for player evaluation to identify areas for improvement.
4. Introduce a mentorship program to provide guidance and support for young players.

We strongly believe that these changes will lead to enhanced athletic performance and a more cohesive team.

THE CROW'S NEST

Dr. Few's Advice

Every man's way of life is as near a canon as we have for the development of his mental and moral capacities. He has to choose his own path, and let no one else choose it for him.

TheSphere of Influence

Dr. Few says, "The true sphere of influence is the circle of those who are influenced by us. It is not the number of people influenced, but the depth of influence that matters."

WAYSIDE WARRIES

AMERICAN TOBACCO KING

J. B. Duke dominated the tobacco industry in the early 20th century, making a fortune from the production of cigarettes and cigars. His legacy is still felt today, with the Duke University and Duke Energy companies bearing his name.

DEPARTMENT OF DECISION

Condorcet's Paradox

J. B. Duke's decision to establish Duke University was based on a paradox in voting theory known as Condorcet's Paradox. This paradox highlights the complexity of decision-making processes and the potential for inconsistencies in collective judgment.

OPEN FORUM

"The views expressed in this column are those of the individual authors and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editorial board of The Crow's Nest."
There is a group of students among whom there are pronounced sympathisms either for or against the moral and ethical standards of the student body, depardent on their personal natures, and it is true that some of these people have at times been seen about our campus living beyond their means. With the use of oratory and the application of our oratorical and declamatory skills we are often able to bring home to students the deplorable conditions under which we exist; they stress particular virtues, the admirable disregard of conventional ethics,
the deplorable influence of the outside world,
and the distaste of the general public for the influence of our college. This attitude is eminent in some of our fellows and the prescriptive spirit of the student body is often reflected in the Spirit of the student body is often reflected in the attitude they take toward their classmates.

We students of Duke University are now encountering in the university a spirit of revolt, which might I. elicit a reaction from those in authority. Gentlemen: you represent the academic policy of the university. You are enjoyed by them; we long as our professors,
look upon them as your school and to realize the true depth of your wishes. We of the student body will take toward the question of the Council or the stipulation from the proper authorities in power. The spirit of revolt, though it may be just as alien to our manifest destiny to us just as alien to our manifest destiny to us as is the spirit of revolt to the student body,
will be a truer and keener insight into human beings and the more subtle and esoteric
aspects of our educational system.

It is possible that the college officials may be concerned with the amount of debate on the subject of the proper limits of student freedom,
for the students have long been in the habit of expressing their opinions of them.
