April Number Of The South Atlantic Quarterly Will Be Off The Press Soon

Six rather commendable articles on ethical, economic, historical, and literary topics are featured in the April, 1926, number of the South Atlantic Quarterly which will come off the press within the next few days. Of particular interest are the articles dealing with the unethical practices of modern business, the dangers threatening the federal reserve system, and the romance of Alfred Tennyson and Miss Selwood.

"There is more dishonesty and rottenness in business than in practical politics or public affairs," writes Mr. Clinton Woodruff in his article, "Business or Politics: Which is the More Ethical?" The article is a courageous denunciation of the unethical tone of modern business relations. Mr. Woodruff is lamenting the fact that "macroscopic decency" have permeated the business system of our country. He gives much praise to the canons involved in the code of ethics drawn up by the Commercial Ethics and adopted by the National Association of Credit Men in June, 1925.

Perhaps the most outstanding article of the review in many respects is "Two Dangers Threatening the Federal Reserve System," by Raymond H. Lounsbury and Clyde Olin Fisher of Wesleyan University. Mr. Fisher was formerly a student in Trinity College. Remote and immediate dangers are apprehended. A loss of membership through the withdrawal of state banks in time of crisis is pointed to as the most formidable danger. Numerous theoretical reasons are given why independent national banks should fear competition from state banks.

"New legislation, designed to avoid the immediate danger of loss of membership, should not be permitted, for, at the same time, it involves the remote danger of undermining the banking structure," think the writers about the enactment of legislation regarding the matter. Then they list the advantages of branch banking. They say that the branch institution is more economical, that it is safer, and that it affords more convenience to customers than the independent bank. Yet there are three disadvantages to branch banking, they say. "First, there is the danger of the monopoly; second, the loss of the judgment and initiative of the independent banker; and finally, the probability of unethical practices of competition during the transition." Branch banking, however, is said not to be needed now, but the great need is for state banks to be required to take out national charters.

Another notable article carried in the April Quarterly is Mr. Kasey's "Alfred Tennyson: A Victorian Romance." This is a very interesting account of Tennyson's early life at Somersby, his friendship with Arthur Hallam, his love for his sister, Emily Tennyson, and his romance with Miss Selwood. The effect of the romance on Tennyson's writings is explained in detail.

Guilford Game Is Not To Be Played

Owing to examinations which will be in progress at the time of the baseball game scheduled between Duke and Guilford, the officials at the latter institutions have asked that the game be canceled. The Duke officials, although regretting that such a cancellation had to be made, granted the request.

Athletic relations have hitherto been carried on with utmost harmony between the two institutions—the Guilfordians always adhering to the very highest type of sportsmanship—and this annual game has always been looked forward to with interest, but for most excellent reasons, Guilford asked that the game be canceled, and the Duke officials are thoroughly in sympathy with her demands.

DUKE TRACK MEN FALL TO W. & L.

Generals Lead by Safe Margin Throughout Entire Contest Duke Fights Well.

The Washington and Lee track team defeated Coach Bucknell's army of 26 in a dual meet held on Hanes field last Thursday afternoon. Although the Generals held a substantial lead throughout the entire contest, it was a very interesting and closely contested meet. The outcome of the meet left Coach Bucknell very enthusiastic over the prospects for his men this season. Almost every event was hotly contested and in many cases the winner was in doubt until the very finish. Two cases of this was in the shot put, when Kidd of W. & L. beat Caldwell on his last throw by only one inch, and in the 440 yard run Pegram of Duke, forged ahead in the last few yards to win a first place.

The 100 yard dash was one of the prettiest events of the meet. It was run in the record time of 10 seconds flat, with Milbank of W. & L. barely winning from Branton. Hodge won the two mile in easy fashion, after holding a substantial lead from the start to the finish with the good time of 10 minutes and 38 seconds. Davis, of the W. & L. team, was the high scorer of the meet, getting a total of 12 points from six places in the 220 yard dash, and the high and low hurdles. Lowry, also of the victors, won the pole vault on his last try, going over the bar at 16 feet.

Four men of the Duke team who are not wearers of the "D" won first places in the meet against W. & L. and this will probably excite them to better let. Pegram won first place in the 440 yard run, Hodge took the two mile, while Aycock won the broad jump in a pretty jump, and Bennett easily heaved the javelin almost 157 feet for his first place.

Caldwell lived up to his usual standard of performance, and collected 8 points to his team's total. He lost the shot put to a W. & L. man by only one inch, but easily won the discus throw with a distance well over 100 feet. Beverly easily leaped over the bar and won the high jump at a measured height of 5 feet and 7 inches. Aycock not only took the broad jump event by his jump of over 20 feet, but he tied for second in the high jump.

This meet with Washington and Lee is the first of the many contests which will be scheduled between Duke and this institution in the future. The Generals have the reputation of putting out unusually good teams, and the Blue Devils supporters should feel like their track team showed up remarkably well against such opponents. There will be a return meet at Lexington next year, and the Duke track men will work to bring back a victory from their invasion into Virginia.

The summary of the meet follows:
100 yd. dash—Milbank, W. & L., first; Branton, second; Erwin, Duke, third. Time—10 sec. flat.
1 mile run—Sutton, W. & L., first; Wiglesworth, W. & L., second; Tuttle, Duke, third. Time—1 min. 49 sec.

After the dance ... a pipe and P. A.

WHEN you've kicked off the pumps and tossed the collar on the table, while the music is still singing in your brain and memories of one dancing deb in particular crowd your thoughts, fill your pipe with Prince Albert and light up. Make it a night of nights.

P. A. is so genuinely friendly. It hits your smoke-spot in deep center right off the bat. Doesn't bite your tongue or parch your throat, because the Prince Albert process said "nix on the rough stuff" at the very beginning. Just cool contentment in every perfect puff.

Don't put off till tomorrow what you can smoke today. Get a tidy red tin of P. A. now. Snap back the hinged lid and release that wonderful fragrance. Tamp a load into the bowl of your jimmy-pipe and light up. Now you've got it . . . that taste. Say— isn't that the goods now?

P. A. is sold everywhere in tin and tube, packed and held, packed in handkerchiefs, and good crystals—handkerchiefs with orange-convexer tabs and always with every bit of this and partly removed by the Prince Albert Process.

SPORTS DUKE LICKS ELON: ALUMNI & BULLS WIN

BATTING SPREE

Fifth Inning Was Featured by Nine Duke Runs.

FOGLEMAN DRIVEN TO BENCH
Elon's Port-sider, Unable to Stop Starling Methodists, Quits Mound in Favor of Shepherd.

Playing 'mid the swirling, whistling, roaring air currents which marked the last day of the March Lion, the young Blue Devils gave the spectators an eye opener in the form of a sensational batting spree in their game with the Elon Christians on Hanes Field Wednesday afternoon last. The Duke team opened their season with a powerful batting exhibition that sent the Elon Christians back to their home under the weight of a 11 to 5 defeat.

The fierce wind made fielding very uncertain. Both teams showed up very weak in this line, yet despite the frequent errors which punctuated the game on several occasions, it was a corking good game to the Duke fans. Until the fifth inning it appeared to be a very tight encounter and the Elon Diamond artists led by Fogleman threatened the hopes of the Blue Devils. With the coming of the 11th, it was clear that their essay was only a threat.

Elon came to the bat and scored 4 runs in the first inning, gaining a lead which she was able to hold until the third, but here "Lefty" Fogleman, who had been ferried long to have less effect upon the fast hardening Blue Devil sluggers, Saunders and McFaris connected with Christian spheres that resulted in scores for both, a feat that placed Duke in the lead at the end of the third. Duke lost this lead in the fourth, occasioned by Saunders' homer with Sims on base.

The Avalanche of the Fifth
With the coming of the second half of the fifth, the Blue Devils began becoming thoroughly acquainted with the action of the double by Saunders, started a period of scoring that was only checked after the Blue Devil chafed, up the runs to their credit. Every member of the Duke team hit with a monotonous regularity that soon turned the game into what one sport writer termed an Easter egg hunt for the Christians. Most of the hits were sent into deep right, but a few such as the long single by Weaver caught out the far recesses of the left marauders.

Home Runs and Hits Galore
In this inning Green, who had slugged the old age into right field, slugged for a homer, each, while Chappeil's three base hit in the same direction could have easily been turned into a four, had it not been that Chappeil's recent illness sapped his strength so that he was not able to circle the bases in the form of a lion. Other runs in this inning were made by Brown, Swift, Weaver, and McFaris, and Saunders crashed the blue triple.

Fogleman Out With a Swish
Falling in all his efforts to stop the Blue Devil slugging, Fogleman, with a cheerful smile upon his face, finally succumbed to his place. The wiry slugging lift to the outfield with surprising form and looks very good to become second Everett Spikes, for he hit the credit was the high score of the game. McFaris crashed the home plate twice.

Duke Battery Good
Joe Thompson and McFaris, who together made up the Duke battery, were playing in topnotch form. Thompson was twirling the horseshoe sphere in a manner that did himself credit. He allowed the visitors only five hits, and these he managed to keep so well scattered as not to be a source of much danger.

The wilful work of Pearce made him the outstanding star of the game to say nothing of a very brilliant catch he made in the deep outer garden. The wiry slugging lift to the outfield with surprising form and looks very good to become second Everett Spikes, for he hit the credit was the high score of the game. McFaris crashed the home plate twice.

Only First Place for Duke.

The opening meet for the Duke track team resulted in a decisive victory for the Carolina Tar Heels. The Blue Devil runners were only able to annex one first place. This was in the pole vault, which Hargrove took at the height of 10 feet. The Duke men were able to take many second places, but the Carolina men proved their superiority by losing out their opponents for the first place.

This was also the opening meet for the Tar Heels, and their performances were remarkable for an early season exhibition. From all appearances, the U. N. C. team will again easily annex state honors as a track team.

Although the meet was run on a hot, wet track, some of the events showed some fast time. Daniels, of Carolina, easily won the two mile over Hodge, of Duke in the good time of 10 minutes and 22 seconds. Bruton and Erwin both showed up well for Duke in the dash

BULLS WIN FROM
BLUE DEVILS 8-3Many Errors on Both Sides—
Bulls Have Easy Time
With Varsity.

In an exhibition game Monday afternoon, the Durham Bulls had little trouble in defeating the Blue Devils by an 8 to 3 score. It looked like a shutout until the fifth frame when McNeil, Bull right fielder, fumbled a long fly and was the direct cause of three Duke runners crossing the plate.

Thomas, working for the Blue Devils was not as steady as could be desired and was hit in almost every inning. However, on two occasions when the bases were all occupied, he steadied and retired three men in succession. The entire work of the Duke team looked pretty good at times but on occasions presented a rather ragged front. Six errors were charged to them, four of which were made by Brown at short. Two of these were made in an effort to retire runners. Brown somewhat made up for his misdeeds, by leading his team in hitting with two safeties to his credit, one of which was for extra bases.

On the other hand the Bulls looked pretty good and showed signs developing into a first class ball club although they were not as good as they seemed. They easily equalled the Blue Devils record. Their errors were scattered over the teams no man making more than one. Manager Brown was the laughing stock of the game, connecting for a triple, a double and two singles out of five at bats.

BATTER UP!!

By R. T. H.

The roaring of the March Lion seemed to have had little effect upon the biting eye of the Blue Devils in their game with the Elon Christians.

Wonder if the smile, worn by "Lefty" Fogleman, as he was leaving the mound, had anything akin to the smile that is often spoken of as a "mechanical smile." If it has not, it deserves to be classed in a class of its own.

Guilford officials tell us that impending examinations make it very unwise for the students of that institution to participate in the baseball game scheduled with Duke on April 8. This seems to be a very admirable attitude for the college to take when selecting between the honor of the two evils, but it is a stand very similar to the one generally taken towards athletics in the present age.

Those who witnessed the game between the Varsity and the Alumni, were sure in for a treat. The twirling of Jessie Sanderson, the catching of "Chink" Johnson, the fielding of "Pink" Warner and "Candy" Hall, the spectacular home-run-robbing catch of Everett Spikes, as well as all the rest of the wonderful playing of the members of the 1925 "Wonder Team" was something to make the heart of every Duke student and alumni

"The Woe" Turner and "Candy" Hall. Smith, specially short stop and second baseman on the 1923 "Wonder Team."

With Captain Jesse Sanderson displaying the same form with which he battered his opponents in the day game by the Trinity Alumni team had no difficulty in routing over the present Blue Devils in the first of 12 to 1 Saturday afternoon on Hanes' Field. The Duke Blue Devils lost tally came in the last inning when Sanderson let up as a result of two hits and a wild pitch by Sanderson himself.

The entire Alumni team, which resembled professionals more than they did the college players of these years ago, were members of the 1923 championship team turned out by Old Trinity. They were in fine condition and showed it. They knew they were good and they proved it to the satisfaction of all concerned. They took the offerings of Buster Swift as they came and showed little mercy, hitting almost at will and showing an inclination to bunch their hits where they would do the most good. The result was 13 runs from 16 hits while the 5 scattered hits of the Duke Blue Devils netted only one run and that as a result of a wild pitch.

The Blue Devils seemed to be utterly unable to fathom the offerings of Sanderson. Not a single varsity man got more than one safe, though three of the five hits registered were for extra bases.

On the other hand the old stars connected hard and often. J. D. Johnson, the first starter with the "spes" was the star of the afternoon with four singles as five times up. Spikes, who batted over 300 year before last, came next with three hits out of four attempts, and in addition settled four runs for his team. "Candy" Hall, who showed with a trio of hits, two of which went for extra bases. His flashy base-running also was a feature of the afternoon for he pilfered bases whenever the nation struck him.

According to Cap Card the Alumni and J. D. Johnson, next should play away team south of the Mason and Dixon Line and according to the performance of last Saturday Cap is correct.

AT SOUTHGATE

Mrs. J. P. Cornelius, a native of India, was a guest at Southgate for several days last week. Mrs. Cornelius is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Cornelius, who is a student at the college for high class Indian girls in Madras. She came to Durham from visits to Greensboro and Winston-Salem, and she intended to go to Randolph-Macon, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, and other well-known places after leaving here.

Before her marriage Mrs. Cornelius was Helman Appasany, and her home was in Madras. Her family belongs to the highest caste of India—that of the Temple poets. Her father was disowned by the family when he became converted. Her childhood was spent in ease and luxury, as her father owned several industrial estates in India. Her husband's family changed its name when they accepted the Christian faith. Dr. Cornelius is the professor of philosophy at the University of Lucknow. At the present time, however, he is studying in the United States. Mrs. Cornelius accompanied him to the United States in the interest of the girl's school at Madras. This school of girls, Vidyalaya, was founded several years ago by Mr. Paul Appasany, a brother of Mrs. Cornelius, and his wife. For some time there has been felt in India a need for a school for high-class Indian girls. There are boarding schools for girls in India, but due to caste distinctions, it is impossible for girls of the highest caste to attend the same school with girls of a lower order. Accordingly, for quite a number of years there was no opportunity for the high-class girls to obtain any higher education. Realizing this grave need, Mr. and Mrs. Appasany founded a school which they hope will in time do college work. The school was at first supported by money donated by the founders and their friends. A board of managers was soon organized in India to aid the school. A few years later rough interest in the school was aroused in England to form a committee which contributed annually to the maintenance of the school. It also sends English teachers out to Madras to instruct. Mrs. Cornelius is anxious that such a committee be founded in America. As she visits the colleges, she is trying to interest the Y. W. C. A. in the school to such an extent that they will contribute to its upkeep.

The school has made marked progress since its founding. It is open to both Christian and non-Christian girls of the highest caste. Courses are offered which prepare the students for college entrance, or a finishing course may be had. The enrollment is increasing yearly, and it is hoped that in the very near future the course may be extended.

Mrs. Cornelius proved a most interesting guest during her stay on the campus. She was quite a picturesque figure in her gorgeous native costume. On several occasions she spoke to student gatherings. At Vespera she talked of the educational project in Madras. She also gave several very interesting talks to the girls at Southgate. She told of many of the customs of her native land and of conditions there. She presented India to attractively and interestingly that the Y. W. C. A. at Duke is considering a project for trying to aid the school at Madras financially.

REGISTER FOR APRIL HAS GOOD FEATURES

Rev. W. W. Peete Writes "The Soul of Our Alma Mater" Article by Dr. Pegram.

The April number of The Alumni Register carries three interesting articles in addition to an abundance of other material of general interest. Near the front of the magazine appears an article by Wesley Taylor, 29, now in New York City, which describes in detail the recent annual meeting and dinner of the New York alumni as well as a number of Mr. Taylor's personal views concerning the prospects of Duke University. The article, like all of Mr. Taylor's work, is well written and interesting.

W. W. Peete, '03, contributes an article on "The Soul of Alma Mater." "The Soul of Duke University—that something which no one can see or touch, but which all can feel—will have more to do with our greatness than anything else," Mr. Peete explains. In discussing the future of Duke, he says, "The South is not yet free from intolerance, and prejudice, and suspicion that make the soil unfertile to the growth of an institution such as that proposed for Duke University."

One of the most featured articles found in The Register is a personal letter written by the "Grand Old Man," Dr. W. H. Pegram, to Trinity's "Patron and Friend," Mr. James B. Duke. The letter is purely of personal nature and is remarkable in revealing the charming and inspiring personality of Dr. Pegram. This letter is certainly the most striking article in The Register.

The Register also carried an abundance of information concerning the Alumnae Home Coming Day, set for May the first. The cover daily illustrates the idea with a view of former May Day events at Duke and Alumnae Home Coming Day, May Day.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE DISCUSSED BY CO-EDS

At the Y. W. C. A. meeting on Wednesday evening Elizabeth Ramsey, Alton Herman, and Mary Restler gave reports of the League of Women Voters' meeting which they recently attended at Charlotte. They gave most interesting accounts of the meeting as they had the opportunity of hearing some of the most active women active in politics of the United States. At a banquet given there, Mary Restler gave a speech, representing the women of Duke University.

It is hoped that in the near future a Junior League of Women Voters may be organized at Duke. Most of the outstanding women's colleges have such a league, and it is felt that it will be a forward step to have such a league, and it is felt that it will be a forward step to have one here. At the women here already seem to be over-organized, it is probable that at first the league work will be taken up by the Life Literacy League or some other organization already established.

The Ox Woman

On an East Indian farm, where the crop is tea, a wooden plow turns up the rich black soil. A woman drives, another woman pulls—and a black ox pulls beside her.

Six hours under a tropical sun, a bowl of cold rice—and six hours more. Then the woman goes to her bed of rushes, and the beast to his mud stall. Tomorrow will be the same.

The American home has many conveniences. But many American women often work as hard as their Oriental sisters. They toil at the washtub, they carry water, they churn by hand—all tasks which electricity can do for them at small cost, in half the time.

The labor-saving possibilities of electricity are constantly becoming more widely recognized. And the social significance of the release of the American woman from physical drudgery, through the increasing use of electricity in and about the home, will appeal instantly to every college man and woman.

CAMPUS POLITICS WARMING UP FOR ANNUAL ELECTION

ment and plenty of capacity for leadership. Some have mentioned him as a possible darkhorse although it is not known whether his friends expect to put him out to the ring. Then, of course, popular athletes are always men of political availability. Favorite sons of that stamp being considered are not known, but such nominations are not unexpected.

The casual observer would probably be inclined to predict a very quiet campaign this year. None of the men considered as possibilities are in any sense fire-eaters and if there is any display of protechnics, it must come from an unseen source. Neither does there seem to be an appreciable reaction against the present administration. A large, sharply defined group of political grippers are not to be found. The Reds of the campus apparently have slight ambitions in governmental affairs.

There is still a remote hope for excitement. All the supposed candidates belong to local fraternities. It need not be said that the public mind can understand how these clubs that are bidding for recognition can desire to have the president of the student body among their numbers. Will there be a scramble among the local fraternities? It is impossible to know. But in general it should be fairly safe to predict that the popular boomers, demagogues, mud-slingers, and prayers of stump speakers to "save the campus from ruin" will be used so extensively in the coming campaign. There will doubtless be plenty of demonstrations of many kinds, but lots of action among the little groups; but a general effervescence like that of last year is unlikely to occur. Yet one must wait to know.

NEW PROPOSAL FOR CHRONICLE IS UNACCEPTED

The student council, elected by popular vote, will have the right to select a large majority of the board, adding the power of censorship of this publication to an organization empowered with legislative, executive, and judicial authority. The foremost argument of the opponents of the plan is that an organization which should be free of political handiwork will be in an excellent way for political domination.

Until some agreement between the two societies and the publication board is reached, the full control of the Chronicle will remain in the hands of the present board. And, until both societies agree to release the Chronicle, which is the property of the two societies, nothing definite toward the new plan can be done.

SUMMER SCHOOL ANNOUNCEMENTS ARE OFF PRESS

ganized primarily to offer scholastic aid in raising the standard of elementary teachers in North Carolina. The opening and closing dates, first session June 11-July 20, second session July 21-August 28, are the same as the opening and closing dates of the Summer School of Duke University, except that only the first session will be held at Lake James.

A number of prominent professors from different colleges and universities throughout the country have been engaged to augment the number of Duke professors who will teach in these summer schools. Approximately 150 courses will be offered in the Duke University Summer School, many of which are only for teachers and for which college credit is not given. Most of the courses, however, give credit toward college degrees. Courses of graduate instruction leading to master of arts or master of education degree are also offered.

Among the students attracted to the summer schools are those who failed college subjects, those who intend to graduate in three years, high school students who desire to take a course before college opens, and teachers. Expenses are nominally low. Teachers are required to pay no tuition fees. Those in charge provide for recreation and entertainment of the students.

MILE REY TO GIVE DRAMATIC READING

Her appearance here will be Mile Rey's first trip to the South. While here she will visit her friend, Miss Alice M. Baldwin, dean of women, whom she met some years past in New York City. Mile Rey has given readings at Bryn Mawr, Smith Vassar, Wellesley and Mount Holyoke, to mention but a few colleges. The Providence Journal says, "Mile Rey's reading (in Madame Sans Gêne) was a real accomplishment in character portrayal. She showed real genius in her handling of the crowded scenes, maintaining and heightening the realism when playing the parts of five or six persons simultaneously." Many students who remember Mile Swanson in "Madame Sans Gêne" will be anxious to compare Miss Swanson and Mile Rey in their respective roles.

PRIZE OFFERED FOR BEST PAPER ON DANTE

The Commonwealth, a magazine published in New York, has announced a prize of $1000 offered by Mr. John S. Leiby, of St. Louis, Mo., for the best essay on the great Italian poet, Dante. The contest is open to all people interested in the subject, whether they be college students or not. In length the paper is limited to 5,000 words. It must be typewritten and it must be in the hands of the prize committee by September 1, 1926.

Interpretative work, rather than philosophical or research work, is desired in the contest. The paper is to be written in English. Those who are interested in the matter and desire further information are requested to write to Commonwealth, Grand Central Terminal, New York City.

Among the ten judges for the contest will be Dr. Dino Bigongiari, Dr. Chas. A. Dismore, and Dr. John H. Finley. Manuscripts submitted should be sent to the Dante Prize Commission, care of the Commonwealth at the address above given.

DOCTOR EVERETT SPEAKS AT DUKE

form the basis of a book on the subject of "The Philosophy of Tragedy" which will appear in the course of a year.

Dr. Everett is at present head of the department of philosophy at Brown University, a position which he has filled for some thirty years. He is the author of the standard text book on Ethics, Moral Values, which is used at Duke University and many other colleges in the study of Ethics. Dr. Everett received a great deal of his early training abroad. He has studied at the Universities of Berlin and Strasbourg; James Seth, the famous Scotch philosopher, was another of Dr. Everett's instructors.

The first academic position held by Dr. Everett was an instructorship in Greek and Latin at Brown University. Later, though, he entered the philosophy department, of which he became head. In 1912-1913, during the absence of President Faunce, Dr. Everett served as acting president of the university. He presided over the 1923 meeting of the American Philosophical Association; and at the International Philosophical Congress at Paris in 1921 he was an American delegate and read an address.

Although Dr. Everett makes use of none of the usual lecturing tricks, he is an extremely interesting lecturer. One of his elective courses at Brown University includes one hundred and forty numbers. It is expected that his lectures will attract a large portion of the academic element of the community.

Mr. Herring is at present working on the little model stage; it is hoped that the little stage with its sets complete will be on display immediately after Easter.

WILL ROGERS SAYS DUKES HIS SCHOOL

town, real state. I may decide to take a Post Graduate course next year, four years at Yale never did me much good. So Mr. Flowers and myself are out to spread the higher education among the heathen of this country. Mr. Flowers and I, when I was visiting OUB College in Durham were talking about how a lot of Colleges are scattering their Degrees around so promiscuously that I said, "The whole system is wrong. Every Tom, Dick and Harry has a degree; if you can think so Will?" I replied, "Yes, I didn't get one either."

The only slip Rogers makes is to call Prof. Flowers secretary to the Corporation of "Duke University", perhaps allowances should be made for Will's memory, after so long a time as two months.
