

BLOMQUIST GIVES COURSE IN BOTANY IN CAROLINA HILLS

Duke Botanist Offers Unique and Interesting Course at Junaluska

CHILD TO BE DIRECTOR
Faculty Will Be Composed of Professors From Outstanding Southern Universities; South Carolina, Florida, Kentucky, Salem, and Others Represented.

By REBECCA KIRKPATRICK
The opportunity for unexcelled instruction in a well-equipped summer school combined with the recreational advantages of an ideal summer resort make the Lake Junaluska branch of the Duke university summer school unique and interesting as plans are now being perfected for the third annual session of this school, which will open on June 8 and close July 17.

Professor B. G. Childs, of the faculty of Duke university, who has been the director of the school will continue in that capacity during the coming season. Professor Childs' management accounts for much of the phenomenal growth and success that have resulted from the establishment of the school.

The faculty of the school has been gathered from the outstanding universities of the south, and next summer's staff will boast of several new additions to the teaching body. Duke university, University of South Carolina, University of Florida, University of Tennessee, Kentucky State Teachers' College, and other institutions will be represented on the faculty of the summer school. Dr. W. L. Craig, head of the department of philosophy at Duke, is a new member of the faculty who will add prestige. Dr. H. L. Blomquist, professor of botany at Duke, Dr. M. D. Wiggins, newly appointed dean at Wesleyan college, and other well known college instructors will be included in the faculty of the Junaluska school.

The curriculum which the school is offering during its third session is a more varied course of studies than ever before. Work will be offered in practically all of the standard college subjects, including education, psychology, English, history, biology, mathematics, foreign languages, Bible, and in other important fields.

Perhaps the most unique and interesting course that is included in the course of studies of the Junaluska school is the field botany course offered by Dr. Blomquist. This is the only one of its kind that has ever been offered in the south, and students registering for it will find with Dr. Blomquist have an excellent opportunity of doing interesting and valuable work under able instruction.

Duke university also offers a high light in the social activities of the school. Since the first session of the Lake Junaluska summer school one day has been set aside as Duke day, when all Duke alumni and students from the western part of the state gather at Junaluska. Plans are made for a picnic for this great event, and an elaborate program features the occasion. It has been the custom to hold an aquatic tournament in the afternoon, a picnic supper in the late afternoon, and an interesting evening of entertainment at the social auditorium at night.

SOCIAL WORKERS OFFERED CHANCE

Fellowships Available For Students Majoring in Religious Education For Study in New York

The New York school of Social Work is offering summer fellowships of $100 each for six weeks course, July 1 to August 18, for men who are preparing for social work, teaching, or the ministry. Men who are completing their college year will be given preference. A feature of the course will be an evening discussion seminar led by members of the staff of the New York school, and of national leaders in the fields of industry, community organizations and church work.

The summer fellowships present an unusual opportunity to study the vocational aspects of social work through class activities and practical experience in New York institutions. It is intended that this six weeks shall prove a real orientation course in one of the most interesting fields of present-day life.

Applications for these fellowships can be filed with the Fellowship committee, New York School of Social Work, 100 East 22 Street, New York City, or Dean W. H. Wynnman.

Not Merely A Newspaper, But An Institution

DUKE UNIVERSITY, DURHAM, N. C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1928

LETTERS NOW DUE FOR "GRIEVANCE ISSUE" OF "CHRONICLE" NEXT WEEK

Within the past few days rumor has been received that plans are on foot to publish a yellow journal on the campus, but the Chronicle would not look with favor on any such anonymous sheet, whose contributions would be of a destructive criticism. We do think, however, that there are many things here "deserve criticism as well as an equal stimulus that deserve praise, and in view of this fact we are offering two full pages of the Chronicle next week, in the hope that this "yellow sheet" will not be published. If you wish to say anything about any institution or other things on the campus write an open forum letter, either editors, and not more than five hundred words, who do not want your name unless you wish it published. All articles to appear in the "Grievance Issue" must be in our plain plane and not deal too much in personality. The Chronicle is taking responsibility for everything that appears. Contributions should be in the hands of the staff by Monday night at 10 o'clock. If more articles are offered than can be used on two pages additional space will be provided. If you have something to say—now is the time to say it.

Nominations Must Be Filed By Saturday

According to official announcement made today by the president of the Men's Association petitions for officers for the coming year may be filed as late as Saturday night at 12 o'clock. After that time others will not be accepted. The student body is advised that two members must be elected to the publication council and they must come from the rising senior class. Due to the tardiness in filing petitions the final elections will be postponed for one week and they will take place on Monday and Tuesday, April 23 and 24. A complete list of nominations will appear in the Chronicle next week.

MRS. GROSS TALKS ON MODERN PLAYS

Director of Taurians Meetings "Recent Plays Meeting of Woman's Club"

Mrs. Gross in an able handling of the subject, "Recent Plays" at the meeting of the Woman's club on Friday took after a very fitting introduction, the two ever-recurring tendencies in our modern plays first of which was the search for realism and second, the tendency toward experimentation in presenting this realism. This tendency toward realism has been observed first in the method of production and second in the material of the plays and third in the handling of facts in the play.

"The Strange Interlude" is a successful play revealing the tendency to experiment. The story is not imaginative, as this startling production leads on to think it is very realistic. In discussing the plot Mrs. Gross tells of the career and heart adventures of Lina Lovell, a neurotic self-centered woman. The point of view is to make the audience "hear" the people think, to realize the mental processes of the characters. The story of the play is rather unpleasant but it is presented as something new.

Following this discussion Mrs. Gross gave the following quotation as a comparison: "For all your players and audience—the theme is the comedy of human existence which may be worth while in the years which have gone and those which are to come, but of chief importance only in the eternal now, during between two ticks of a clock—when we pause for an instant to bear witness that we are living."

"The other interesting plays taken up by the speaker were "Reluctance" by Reinhardt, "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Danton's Dream." In "Midsummer Night's Dream," the interpretation of "Puck" makes him malign and Mephistophelian. He is more like the god Pan. This play is a most artistic production. "Danton's Dream" tells of the fall of the great nationalist. It is a splendid play and portrays how realistic the modern play can be. During the court scene when Danton is only pleading his innocence before the people he has saved Carthage, in reply to his opponent Danton suddenly begins to laugh ironically, the laugh is taken up by the court members and soon the whole audience is rocking with laughter without realizing it, this scene is a typical example of how the modern plays are getting the audience to become a part of the play.

Following this enlightening and interesting discussion Mrs. Gross, who has made an extensive study of modern drama, the members of the Woman's club enjoyed an informal social hour during which refreshments were served by the social committee.

BEVACQUA IS ELECTED SIGMA PI SIGMA HEAD

An important meeting of Sigma Pi Sigma, the honor fraternity in physics, was held last Tuesday, J. M. Pigford and Dr. C. C. Taylor were present. They represented the local chapter at the national convention being held at Davidson college on April 10 and 11.

The following officers were elected to lead the club this spring: President, Frank W. Bevacqua; vice-president, H. J. Jennings; secretary-treasurer, Gladys White.

Dr. McDonough to Talk to Graduates Thursday

Dr. William McDonough will speak at the regular meeting of the Graduate club Thursday evening at seven-thirty o'clock in room 2B of the West Duke building. The topic of his address will be "The American Plan for Outlaw War and its Difficulties."

U. OF PENN. PROF. TO LECTURE HERE

Professor Pattee Will Discuss "Mark Twain and American Romance" Here Tomorrow

Professor Fred Lewis Pattee, of Pennsylvania State College, will lecture here on April 12 upon "Mark Twain and American Romance." The lecture, which will be given under the auspices of the English department, will be given at half past eight in the Y. M. C. A. room in the East Duke building.

Professor Pattee is probably the best known teacher of American literature in the entire country. He has written or edited a large number of books. Among these are "A History of American Literature Since 1870," "Century Readings in American Literature," "Tradition and Jazz," and "The Development of the American Short Story."

The English department will give a dinner in honor of Prof. Pattee. A number of prominent English teachers from other institutions in the state have been invited to be present at both the dinner and the lecture. The lecture will be open to the public. There will be no session fee.

Professor Pattee now teaches only during the fall semester. He has spent the winter in Florida. He is now returning to Pennsylvania by automobile.

BUSINESS GROUP INCREASES FAST

Business Administration Has Enrollment of 1039; Has Much Equipment

That the Business Administration group here is one of the most rapidly growing and popular courses here, was revealed recently by statistics from the office. There are more students enrolled in courses in Economics than in any other department with the exception of English, a required course. The number of enrollments totals 1039.

University statistics is slowly but surely coming around to the realization of the value of commercial courses in the college. While the number of courses offered in Business Administration do not fully meet the demand, the facilities for the student's preparation for business life have grown greatly increased.

The accounting laboratory in West Duke is one of the latest additions to the commerce group. The laboratory is well equipped with several thousands of dollars worth of office machines. These machines are now coming into general use in the business world, and the knowledge of how to operate them will be of great practical value to them.

The present equipment of the laboratory consists of two adding machines, one Burroughs calculator, two Monroe hand calculators, a comptometer, and several electronic calculators.

Two of these three electric calculators are the latest development in office equipment. Problems in addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division can be solved on them by merely pressing a button.

COLTRANE READS THESIS BEFORE GRADUATE GROUP

At the meeting of the economics division of the Graduate club last night in the economics room in East Duke James Coltrane talked for an hour on the subject: "Southern State Courts and the Validity of Hours of Labor and Minimum Wage Laws." This is the title of his thesis. Mr. Coltrane will offer as a part of the requirements for the master's degree this spring.

Graduate students in economics and other subjects in the economics department science departments meet every Tuesday night at which time one of the students discusses his thesis for an hour.

DEBATERS INVADE SOUTH ON ANNUAL TOUR NEXT WEEK

Ervin and King Will Represent Duke on Annual Southern Tour Beginning April 18

FACES TIGHT SCHEDULE
Duke's Team Will Meet Emory, Alabama, and Birmingham Southern on Three Successive Nights; Debate Topics Complete Final Arrangements; Successful Tour Expected

Duke's Team Will Meet Emory, Alabama, and Birmingham Southern on Three Successive Nights; Debate Topics Complete Final Arrangements; Successful Tour Expected
Paul Ervin and Jennings King have been selected to represent Duke university on her annual Southern tour which begins April 18 on this trip Duke will meet Emory university, the University of Alabama, and Birmingham Southern. The program calls for consecutive nights, which means that Duke's team will face probably the hardest schedule any team has participated in for many years.

The query that will be used on the Southern trip is the same that was used in the debates with Rutgers and Alabama here. Both the affirmative and negative sides of the question are: "That the United States should cease to proceed by armed force capital invested in foreign countries except after formal declaration of war" were upheld by Duke in the spring program. The same plan will be followed when Duke invades the South. At Emory university on April 18 they will defend the affirmative of the query above; on the 19 the debaters will uphold the negative of the query against the University of Alabama speakers; and on the following day Duke's team will again defend the negative of this query, this time against the University of Birmingham Southern. This engagement will conclude the tour for the Southern trip.

The debaters for the Southern tour were chosen as a result of their appearance in the contest held here with Rutgers, Alabama and Swarthmore. Six men were eligible for the trip. These were Ray Carpenter, Spruill Thornton, Paul Ervin, Jennings King, W. A. Hart, and Harold Cutler.

Paul Ervin of Charlotte, N. C., is a senior and has participated in many intercollegiate contests for Duke. His extensive experience in forensics and the victories he has helped bring to Duke strongly attest his ability in this field. Jennings King of Laurinburg, N. C., is a Junior who has also been in many intercollegiate debates and his appearance here offered favorable proof of his ability to uphold Duke's enviable debating record for the present year.

Debate coach J. J. Herring has completed final preparations for the trip and it is expected that Duke will end the tour with the best record to their credit thus far ever before.

McCullen Will See SENIORS ABOUT JOBS

J. S. McCullen of the American Telephone and Telegraph company will be on the campus tomorrow at 10 o'clock to interview a group of seniors to whom Dean Wannamaker gave application blanks two weeks ago. Mr. McCullen will give the seniors an insight on the kind of employment offered by the Bell System in the Southern States.

Dr. Wannamaker has asked that all the students who met with him two weeks ago go to file their cards with him showing when they can best see Mr. McCullen.

The Bell System is selecting college graduates to enter advanced work in its different branches of service. The technical operations, business operations, engineering development and research, and analysis of accounting and operating records. About 20 Duke seniors have the opportunity to see the company as prospective employees.

Finley Now Displaying Samples of Invitations

Frank Finley, chairman of the senior invitations committee announced that samples are now on hand and orders must be placed within the next few days if delivery is to be made by May 15. He states that he has the teacher and pastboard backs, and seniors must already placed their orders with the committee.

PARAGRAPHS

So the former Irene Castle is going to start a dog farm where homeless dogs may be cared for. Will not someone do something for the poor fellow who is leading a dog's life?

The modern girl can dress in eight moves, says a woman writer. Allowing two for lipstick, two for rouge, two for hair, and two for clothes—and the thing is done. Still we wonder if the last two moves might not be cut down to one move?

The roof of the convention hall at Houston has been built separate. Conventions have a way of taking the roof off so probably this is a move in the direction of conservatism.

McAdoo was accused of not knowing the constitution of the United States; but not much of an accusation, we think, because Jefferson and Washington would not recognize it today after it has been mutilated by the courts.

TRIVIALITY

The conservation of two seniors, who take their positions among the alumni in June, emboldens us to offer just a bit of friendly advice to freshmen.

The members of the class of '31 have now been here long enough to become acclimated to the University environment. It is assumed that those who with an education are beginning to best themselves to seek the manner in which to most efficiently pursue knowledge. Do not mistake us. We neither suggest more hours in the library nor fewer week-end trips. Those are commendable and worthy, but our senior sophistication points toward utility.

All education is the study of great men and their works. This being understood, it naturally follows that if the most is to be derived from the study of great men, great teachers should be sought to give instruction. Why seek to learn greatness through the medium of mediocrity?

But you have guessed it by now! The friendly advice is the same old hackneyed, heavily-emphasized advice that has been poured into your ears for, by these many months. Choose your course of study by the quality of the professor offering it, and not by the name or the easiness with which it may be passed.

Once, now and then in perhaps a score, a student finds a professor who is something more than a lecturer, quizzer, and who finally decides the grade to be given. There are some few instructors (forget the faculty salary scale) who not only offer knowledge and information but inculcates the finer details and inspires the student to seek knowledge for the pure joy of knowing.

This will go down in the great list as a piece written on a "trivial" topic. Yet, if two score undergraduates catch the meaning, feel the importance, and see the light, we feel that we can renounce the caption of this opus with a clear conscience.

OFF THE TRACK

In the course of four years in college many things may get off the track, and when we come to our senior year and begin to see the light, although in a very small way, we wonder about things as they exist. Few activities connected with college life have drifted so far from their purpose as athletics, and yet the misplaced emphasis has almost escaped our attention because we have joined with the great mass of folk everywhere in clamoring for victory.

When an athlete reaches the point that he represents his or any other institution, goes on the field the very day goes up for victory, and righteously the request is made. This seems to be the victorious age. The mere idea of winning has caused many colleges to employ players, to send scouts through high schools, and to resort to underhand methods. Athletics seem to have become commercialized and now the question of gate receipts enters into the contests. The Army-Navy game is regularly played in one of our largest cities because it will be accessible to more spectators.

With this tremendous expansion in the field we wonder if the emphasis has been misplaced. College athletics were originally begun for the physical development of the students, and every student with an interest in the field was allowed to try for the team, but now the coaches watch the prospects carefully and after the first few weeks the "squad" is cut, and all the less likely prospects are not invited to come out again. Instead of participating in the field to meet actual lectures in a gym class and here the fundamentals propounded, and sit in the stands when an actual contest is in progress. It is thought that these less likely candidates will take the coaches' time off the men who are able to bring victory for the team—but this is where we claim that athletics is completely off the track. Sports have become particularly to the extent that the idea is to create winners in each field—a championship five, an uncomparable nine, or inimitable eleven, as the case may be. For this purpose spring practices are held in football, and instead of the player having his attention diverted from his studies for a season, it has become a whole year affair. Basketball practice really begins in earnest after the season is over—the whole idea is to win. Now coaches and colleges are rule-bound to have a high code of ethics, and we know of no other place where the games are played as fairly and decently as in colleges, yet how few men really contribute to the making of the team. The whole student body has been encouraged to believe that they are adding materially to the victory by wild cheering. Now we know that support makes victory more sweet, but it doesn't add so much to the actual results.

College athletics, as they stand today, are a waste of so many outside interests have taken the attention of the student off of scholarship. Colleges are no longer completely confined to intellectual pursuits, but instead they are a combination of numerous activities engaged in by the students. And again the college executives say that too many people are going to college who do not really belong there, but yet they send their sons through the high schools each spring, and a war is almost waged to see who can get the prize athletes, but where is the college that fights over the scholar in the class. When the time comes for scholarships to be awarded we wonder if the scholar and the athlete stand on the same basis? As yet Duke has taken no partial stand and we hope that it will not do so many colleges have done—attempt to build winning teams with the hope of getting something. After the Dartmouth team from last year, and Alabama were put on the field the number of applicants for admission rose rapidly. In fact these schools came to the fore because of their teams, but do colleges need advertising?

Colleges have been thrown into the horns of the dilemma. They must either be willing to engage in mass production of graduates, caring little whether or not the men in college are worthy, or they must decide to stand in favor of intellectual enrollment and a more selective basis for prospective students. The college executive who continually tears his hair because so many students are in college who do not belong there is also the one who wants athletic teams to win so that the institution will get prestige and advertising. Thus they themselves create their own problem, and certainly they have no right to grumble when their advertisement brings results. The colleges themselves must accept all the blame for their own shortcomings. We would never recommend the abolition of athletics, but we would argue that the idea of creating stars be forgotten, and that the old idea of training for everybody be revived so as was the original intention.

BEYOND THE SYMBOL

At last the people of the Western Hemisphere are following the example set by the English, and it is the man today who receives the consideration and not the party occasionally. Although this situation has not completely altered, the party "bosses" are beginning to see that the electorate will not be blindly led any more by a donkey or an elephant and the letters G. O. P. are almost meaningless. Everywhere we find the people asking, "What does the candidate himself stand for?" This is the first sensible move that the American people have taken with regard to the exercise of the franchise.

In the coming student government, W. M. C. A. elections we hope that the student body will feel the necessity of considering the man rather than his associates, his fraternity, or some other minor matter which might be used against him. When a man is placed in a position of responsibility it is reasonably expected that he will practice the principles he has been evidencing in his activities on the campus. Too many men play to the grandstand rather than come out openly and boldly with a statement which may cause unfavorable comment. Even the boldest individual fails to be criticized by those about him because it is only natural for people to want flattery instead. Just because a man has committed himself on what he believes to be the right thing is no reason why a few students should attempt to spite his chances. After all, such maneuvers often come through jealousy rather than actual competitiveness. If students did what they know they should do every time they act there would be few opportunities for them to receive so much criticism as is now heaped upon their heads.

After all we are inclined to believe that the average or common man does best in a public office. Few men have ever held the presidency with as few capabilities as Coolidge, and yet can it be denied that he has been successful? His gain in popularity has resulted in great clamor for mediocre men in public office, and here in our college community we find that average men and women are able to do more with activities than a person who succeeds in an office just because of scholarly attainment. If a man is popular enough to win an election he usually is good enough to do the office justice. The qualities used in making friends can be put to good use in the administration of the office which he is elected. The campus has slowly drifted away from the idea that only a Phi Beta Kappa man can administer the office of president in the M. S. Association, and we hope that more and more the students will consider the qualifications of the man, rather than petty distasteful features which amount to nothing in the course of one's duties.

Miss Harroson
May Queen at G. C.

It will be of interest to many Duke students to learn of the election of Miss Angelita Harroson as May Queen of Greensboro College for Women. Miss Harroson is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harroson of Cherryville, N. C.

She attended the Duke University Summer School during the last session.

Newcomer's Club
Charmingly Entertained

On Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 the Newcomer's Club of Duke University met with Mrs. A. S. Pease at her home in Hope Valley. Assistant hostesses for the occasion were Miss William Blackwell, Mrs. Louis Patton and Mrs. E. W. Nelson.

An interesting program had been arranged including a clever play. Following the delicious refreshments were served.

Chi Delta Phi
Initiates Four

On Wednesday evening the Chi Delta Phi honorary literary society initiated four new members. Initiation services were held in the apartment of Miss Louise Seybolt in the faculty apartments. Following the service delicious refreshments were served.

The new initiates were Miss Mary Asden Hauss, Miss Helen Jenkins, Miss Esther Metherell, Miss Esther Moric. Old members of the organization were Miss Helen Chandler, Miss Selma Wallack, Miss Lillian Swartz, Miss Opal Winstead, Miss Kenneth Fulton, and Miss Rebecca Kirkpatrick.

"Freshman Frolics"
Prove Great Event

The Freshman class entertained with a gala night in the Southgate gymnasium on Tuesday evening at the "Freshman Frolics." This affair was given as a "lucky" party and many unique and unusual costumes featured the occasion.

A number of interesting games, contests, and other forms of amusement had been arranged and the class spent several hours of uproarious fun. Music was furnished by "Jelly" Leftwich and his Duke University Blue Devils.

The Southgate gymnasium had been decorated in keeping with the idea of the party and advertisements and other bizarre scenes of decoration were exhibited. During the evening ice cream cones were served.

Lambda Chi Alpha
Closes Dance Program

On Friday evening the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity were hosts at an elaborate dance at the Washington Duke Hotel. The large hall room was used for the occasion, and the fraternity colors motivated the decoration. Purple, green, and gold—the fraternity colors—shaded the lights, producing a lovely effect. A reproduction of the pin was used on the wall and lighted during the no-break dances.

During intermission the members of the fraternity and their guests went over to Welcome-In where a lovely supper was served. Lovely luncheonettes decorated with the seal of the fraternity were presented to the guests.

Music for the dance was furnished by "Jelly" Leftwich and his Duke University Blue Devils.

Alpha Tau Omega
Entertains at Tea Dance

On Thursday afternoon the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity entertained at an elaborate tea dance in the large ball room of the Washington Duke Hotel. The ball room had been beautifully decorated emphasizing the fraternity colors.

"Jelly" Leftwich and his Blue Devils furnished music for the occasion, and during the afternoon delicious punch was served.

Out of town guests for the occasion were Miss Elizabeth Jones, of High Point; Miss Rose Lambeth, of Greensboro; Miss Ann Arowsmith, Miss Virginia Monahan of Hixson, Mr. Ann Kearney, of High Point, Mr. Welch Harris, of High Point, and Mr. Paul Carmichael, of Charlotte.

Kappa Sigma Dances
During Holidays

The Kappa Sigma fraternity was host to a number of Duke students and a great number of town guests at one of the largest and loveliest dances of the season on last Thursday evening at the Washington Duke Hotel. Dancing continued from nine until two.

"Jelly" Leftwich and his Blue Devils orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

The large ballroom of the hotel had been attractively decorated for the occasion. The fraternity pin with a beautiful lighting effect decorated the side of the room and was used during the Kappa Sigma no-break dances.

During intermission the members of the fraternity and their guests enjoyed a buffet supper at Welcome-In. Here lovely favors in the form of leather card holders with the Kappa Sigma seal were presented to the guests of the fraternity members.

A large number of out of town guests were attracted to Durham for the Kappa Sigma dance among them being Miss Sarah Brooks and Landrum Norris, of Raleigh; Miss Elizabeth Dunn and Miss J. Dunn, of Kinston; Mr. Buster Manning and Mr. Hooker Spence, of Raleigh; Miss Mary Neal Wilkins, of Gastonia; Miss Elizabeth Parker, of Gastonia; Miss Sara Kate Ormond, of Kings Mountain, and Miss Virginia Denny, of Greensboro.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Gives
Brilliant Dance

The dance of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity that was held at the Washington Duke Hotel on Wednesday evening was one of the loveliest and most largely attended dances to be given at the University during the year.

The large hall room of the hotel was used for the occasion. An enlarged reproduction of the Sigma Phi Epsilon pin decorated the room and was lighted during the fraternity no-break dances. A large fraternity banner was also used.

During intermission the Sigma Phi Epsilon and their guests were entertained at a charming buffet supper at Welcome-In. Here spring flowers were used for decoration, and the fraternity colors were effectively used. Beautiful favors consisting of lovely silver jewelry engraved with the Sigma Phi Epsilon seal were presented to the guests of the fraternity members.

The members of the fraternity and their guests were: Mr. Hugh Howard and Miss Rachel Williams, Mr. Luther Moore, Miss Mamie Ruth Fleming, Mr. J. B. Anderson and Miss Elsie Neal Gibson, Mr. Bruce Alexander and Miss Elizabeth Parker, Mr. E. E. Mitchell and Miss Virginia Polts, Mr. B. W. Mohr and Miss Dorothy Jeanette, Mr. C. McDuffie and Miss Mildred Hutton, Mr. Leon J. Hixson and Miss Kate Graham, Mr. Mooren Reams and Miss Margaret Royall, Mr. Marion Reams and Miss Rachel Aycock, Mr. J. B. Stanley and Miss Lella Self, Mr. G. W. Sanders and Miss Elizabeth McPaydon, Mr. Charlie Spear and Miss Helen Douglas, Mr. Everett Smith and Miss Lena Brook, Mr. W. O. Lee and Miss Corinne Cook, Mr. Gilbert Holt and Miss Edith Parker, Mr. Ivey Allen and Miss Dorothy Mitchell, Mr. James Treadwell and Miss Sarah Kate Ormond, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reynolds, Mr. R. H. Chapman and Miss Peggy Halliday. The stars were Jack Sams, Mr. Cleveland McConnell, Mr. Fletcher Nelson, Mr. John Cole, Mr. Gilbert Fossell, Mr. W. P. Bauld, Mr. Russell Charles, Mr. R. L. Saunders, E. Jenkins, Mr. Walter Kirby, Mr. Charles Lehrbach, and Mr. J. A. Moore.

Man Riled by Rivals' Time Claims

Rutherford, N. J., March 9, 1937

Larus & Bro. Co., Richmond, Va. Gentlemen:

I sure get some riled when I see where some fellow is crowding over the fact that being older, and having run into Edgeworth sooner than the unfortunate competitors, he challenges the world as the champion long-time member of the Edgeworth Club.

He doesn't deserve any medals. He got his reward in the enjoyment of his smoking for the added number of years.

But, if you are to believe that, that's all right. If you care to delve into ancient history, look up when they say you will arrive at the approximate time when I first joined the club.

I have smoked at least one pipeful of every other tobacco I have seen smoked, sometimes through necessity, but most of the time to prove to myself that I have been right in sticking to the old.

Yours truly,

Duke Baseball Team Is Winners In Early Games

Blue Devils Win Majority of Games During Hard First Week of Schedule. Penn State, University of Penn and Washington and Lee Are Defeated

Duke university opened baseball season last Tuesday week on Hanes field, against the Nittany Lions from Penn State. The pitching of Lefty Jenkins was the feature of the game. The sophomore southpaw allowed only three hits, two of which were of a scratch nature. At the same time his teammates were giving him good support and pounding the old apple when they came to bat. Dean closed one of Hanes fast ones in the fifth inning, sealing in Weber ahead of him. Arley led the batting with two doubles. Duke played ball in general to gain the victory by the score of 5 to 1.

The game next day was against Washington and Lee. The Blue Devils battered the veteran Follard for a total of ten hits while the Generals were able to collect only four safeties off the masterful pitching of Jean Belue. Nick Warren led the hitting with a home run and a single out of four times at bat. Duke infielders made several errors but such faults were overshadowed by flashes of brilliant fielding. Duke gained an early lead and kept it throughout, winning by the margin of 5 to 2.

The second game against Washington and Lee was an early season game in every respect. Errors, home-head plays, wild throws and the like happened frequently. The Generals scored ten runs in three innings off three hits. Lefty Hawkins pitched good ball for two innings, but in the third he lost control and was relieved by Andy Johnson. Johnson allowed only three hits in six innings but got wild in the sixth and was relieved by Belue.

Duke got twelve hits to eight for the Generals but lost the contest by the score of 10 to 12. Webster and Adams, of Duke, and Eigeback, of Washington and Lee, each hit for the circuit.

PRINCETON TIGERS WIN FROM DUKE BY CLOSE SCORE

Both Teams Play First Class Ball as Tigers Win Four to Three

Twelve-Inning Battle Score Tied Twice as Pitchers Dug In Forged Into Extra Innings. Jenkins Fans Twelve

The Princeton Tigers clawed its way to a 4 to 3 victory over the Duke Blue Devils in a grueling twelve-inning contest, in the second game of a double-header which the Blue Devils played at El Toro park on Easter Monday. The game was featured by the pitching of Jenkins, for Duke, and Heydt, for Princeton. Jenkins struck out eleven men and allowed but seven hits, while Heydt made only two runs miss the bat and strike and was touched for three hits by the Blue Devil batters. However, Duke's men were all singles and well scattered while the Tigers hit for extra bases on three occasions, often when a hit meant a run.

The game was more like a mid-season contest than one of the first week in play. Both teams played smart, thoughtful baseball handling the ball with decency throughout. Lefty Jenkins pitched with the calmness of a day in June from the beginning to the end. Heydt was considerably more calm than a day in June if that be possible. At no time during the game he would just as soon have had down as not. By the second time he came to the bat, the crowd had formed a genial feeling toward him because of his indifference. If indifference helps him win games, Heydt will never lose one.

Weaver led the batting of the game with three hits out of six trips to the plate. He hit two singles and scored two runs.

A good size crowd of about 3,000 turned out for the games.

DUKE NET TEAM TAKES MATCHES

Captain Stewart Rogers Leads Teammates to Decisive Victory in Virginia

Winning every match, the Duke university tennis team completely swamped the team representing the Richmond Medical college here yesterday morning by a score of nine matches to nil. No match went over two sets with the exception of the first doubles event of the day.

Captain Stewart Rogers showed his teammates the way when he subdues the Richmond captain in straight sets, 12-10, 7-5. The Duke captain was pushed, as the score indicates, and found difficult in solving the puzzling delivery shown by the Richmond man.

The games saw-sawed from the beginning and it was evident that the match would be close. Captain Rogers, however, after the count was 10 all, broke into the service of his opponent and won a game. He then easily won his next serve. In the second set Rogers also found that he did not have easy going. His opponent stuck to him with bulldog tenacity. The count again was tied at 2 all and the same thing occurred at this time as happened in the first set. Rogers broke into his opponents serve and moved the set and match.

This match showed the strength of the "Blue Devil" court outfit. The Medical boys were by no means setups and the Duke lads had a tough time in winning the event in such a decisive manner. Most of the games in all the matches saw-sawed back and forth with neither player at advantage but the breaks came to the Duke boys and they were able to keep up the points on the "Doctors."

WHITTED'S NINE WHIPS U. OF PA. IN GAME MONDAY

Duke Nine Wins Last of 3-Game Series With Eastern Champs of '27

FINAL SCORE WAS 2-1 Devils Had Little Trouble in Disposing of Yankee Crew From the Keystone State

Dean Belue pitched his second full game of the season Monday and allowed the University of Pennsylvania's team a meekly 4 hits while his mates were hitting the pill for 8 markers. The game as a whole was fast and runs were few and far between. The final score saw Duke with 2 while Penn had made only 1.

The entire Devil team gave Belue splendid support and their belting was well in line with the 220 yard dash, and the 440 yard dash. Whittle, Currie's fast running mate was second in scoring hours, placing two first and one third to total 31 of his team's score. Brummitt was the high scorer for the Devils, taking two first places.

QUADRANGLE PICTURES

"Underworld," a mighty gripping melodrama of the world ruled by gangster kings and peopled by fierce human birds of prey is the intensely dramatic picture to be shown at the Auditorium this evening beginning at six-fifty o'clock. A cast of superb artists have been chosen to portray the various roles in this production including George Bancroft, Clive Brook, Evelyn Brent, and many other bright lights of the silver screen. George Bancroft gives his most striking portrayal in this melodramatic thriller. Next to it, the seaman of "Old Ironsides," the villain of "The Pony Express" and the cowpuncher of "The Tough Riders" are said to pale in comparison. Clive Brook's brilliant setting opposite Florence Vidor in "A Fraud to Love" and Pola Negri in "Barbed Wire" made him one of the most popular male leads on the screen. Evelyn Brent starred in "Love 'em and Leave 'em" and "Love's Greatest Mistake" but in "Underworld" she wins new laurels and gives us most superb portrayal of her screen career.
