BARNES DISCOVERS CAPABLE PLAYERS

Bob Bruton and Helen Eubanks Continue in Spotlight; Upchurch and Miss Hermetick Also Good

Directors J. Foster Barnes and George Enckel Lettwith got their respective "vocal instruments" together last Monday night in the "T" hall for the first joint session of the orchestra and the glee club, both organizations having previously practiced separately, in preparation for the biggest event of the year, "The Belle of Barrenville," which is to be given in the Duke Auditorium at 8:15 on Tuesday evening, May 14, 1929. The members of the women's glee club, the men's glee club, and the well-known Delta Sigma Phi orchestra have been practicing diligently their respective roles in the famous musical comedy for several weeks and the directors express great confidence in the ability of the young students to "put on" a real "show"—here—just thirty days from tonight. New stars are constantly being discovered among the members of the cast of "The Belle of Barrenville." In addition to the highly dramatic scenes introduced by Bob Bruton and Miss Helen

Eubanks, who are the principal characters in the production, and W. M. Upchurch, Jr., the "Irish comedian" who is accompanied by the recently discovered "Irish" from Germany, Miss Grete Hermetick, another "comedian," has emerged from the depths of probation. Among the most promising members of this discovery are C. S. Hooper, as Romeo de la Vega, Miss Elizabeth Stallings, the cunning Mercedes, Earl Brian, the Torador, and Miss Nancy Browning, as Susan de Montmorency. Mr. Barnes, who is producing the coming musical show, is well pleased with the manner in which the daily practice sessions are developing his talented pupils, and is looking forward to a successful presentation of "The Belle of Barrenville."

SPIRIT OF AVIATION ENTERS UNIVERSITY

Aerial Photographs and Propellers Replace Banquets and Pennants in Students' Rooms

"The spirit of aviation has entered the university," says Lieutenant Frederick M. Hopkins, Jr., in the March issue of Aviation. "It has been coming to visit to visualize the walls of fraternity and dormitory rooms of our students crowded with pennants and banners of Yale, Princeton and Harvard. Now at New York University! Displaced there, too, are pennants from wrapped wing surfaces, aerial photographs, and propellers which have been better days, now decorate them four walls. Ditch C on the campus at University Heights has a propeller light hanging in its dining hall.

"The new engineering students enrolled for aeronautical engineering last fall, in the remaining completed engineering courses of the college. New York University was the first to acknowledge the growing importance of aviation. In 1921 Professor Alexander Klemin was permitted to present a series of aeronautical lectures to students in the immediate and the council of the university authorized a senior year option in aeronautical engineering for the years 1924-25.

In 1927 came the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics. In 1928 the new department approved the curriculum for an Air Corps Certificate. In 1929 the New York University Flying Club was organized. The club, the Air Corps Unit and the Flying Club have been able to satisfy the most insatiable. The technical and the practical are working hand in hand.

"The course itself is straight mechanical engineering for the first three years with the exception of the inclusion in the junior year of a basic course in aerodynamics and airplane design, theoretical and merely introductory. In the senior year the following courses are given: advanced theory and practice of airplane design, aerodynamics, airplane propulsion, internal combustion engines, advanced applied mechanics, air transportation, propeller design, thermodynamics, and the high speed internal combustion engines, etc.

"Whereas the course in the college is highly technical, the Air Corps Unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps affords the student instruction under army pilot in practical aeronautics. There are three such units in our American colleges, at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at the University of California, and at New York University. The Flying Club of New York University has sixty-seven members. They have accomplished much that neither the school of aeronautics nor the Air Corps Unit can attempt. It conducts its own ground course with student lectures at its weekly meetings."

ARTHUR RUGH TALKS TO DUKE AUDIENCE

Noted Authority on Religious Life of Young People Talks at Chapel

Arthur Rugh, field secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who is making a lecture tour of the principal American universities, was the speaker at the chapel services last Monday morning in the Auditorium, his subject dealing with the college student in this country today.

Declaring that the American student is "inefficiently trained" during his college career, Mr. Rugh pointed out the fact that extra-curricular activities are taking more and more of the student's time.

Another characteristic Mr. Rugh sees in the American student is that he is "frankness or 'honesty'" as the speaker described it. The crowd does not fear the process of applying concepts in the presence of the "most high" any more than two boys' frank confession to their professor of being drunk as an excuse for incoherent answers.

"The modern students are confused scientifically, socially, and educationally," and the traveling secretary. Thus the speaker proceeded to show how the modern scientific theories in their complexity tend to bewilder the minds of our young men. He pointed out that the social and economic conditions of the time that formerly was used for study and the rapid pace which has been set will not permit a thorough digestion of the college courses.

Mr. Rugh later stated that those who are enrolled in the universities are no longer separated from life as they once were. The radio, automobile, and other modern conveniences have remodeled that. Then he went on to show that the students, however, have no active part in the outside life.

LITERARY SOCIETY TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Political Divisions of Columbia Activity Held Last Friday

Last night, at the regular weekly meeting of the Columbia Society, the two principal political divisions, the Right Wing and the Left Wing, nominated the following officers to be decided upon at the next meeting of the Society from the Left Wing: C. W. Biles, president; C. W. Biles, vice-president; Frank Jordan, secretary; H. A. Linton, treasurer; Walter Johnson, chairman of the Executive Council; and S. E. Underwood, Marshall. Candidates from the Right Wing are: Moody Smith, president; W. C. Hanes, vice-president; Herman Walker, secretary; Wilbur Groen, treasurer; Harvey Frick, chairman of the Executive Council; and S. C. Wiley, Marshall.

About 100 members of the Columbia Literary Society were present at a social which was given in Union Hall last Friday night. This number included several guests of the society.

Mr. W. K. Wood, who is connected with the Durham Y. M. C. A., introduced a series of lively games, and other forms of amusement, which kept the crowd in a jolly mood the entire evening.

Putting the evening's program was a book society meeting in which the members were crudely initiated much to their own enjoyment and that of their guests. Later in the evening a business session was held, followed by a regular program of debates, criticisms, and by the various members. After the business session was over a delicious salad course was served to the members.

WINSTON'S LIFE OF JOHNSON GOING FINE

Dr. Branson is Latest Fall—Cot Night's Sleep But Says It's Worth It

Julius Robert W. Winston's biography, "Andrew Johnson, Polk and Parley," seems to have lost none of the drawing power which gave it such a tremendous reception a year ago. It continues to sell steadily and to draw expressions of appreciation from readers.

One of the most recent praise for the book comes from that of Judge Winston's fellow townsmen, Dr. E. C. Branson, who confesses that the book cost him a night's sleep.

Dr. Branson wrote: "Andrew Johnson" cost me a night's sleep. It was impossible to put it down after I began to read it. It is so fascinating as any volume of Lyman Stoddard, Marston or Gannett. Indeed, it has far greater substantial value than any volume by Lyman Stoddard, Marston or Gannett. Belue Unwieldy to Open Against Pennsylvania on Account of Badly Injured Finger

(By Special Correspondent)
Philadelphia, April 29.—John Belue, who was scheduled to take the mound in the opening game with Pennsylvania, suffered a badly injured finger and was unable to throw a ball. It is hoped that he will be in shape to pitch against Fordham on Y. Y. T.

The long drive from Durham to Philadelphia seemed to have its effects on the players. Many misuses were recorded during slow thinking at crucial moments.

Right high league nukes witnessed the game. They show the wrong day to watch the Blue Devils with three hits has game night have interested them.

Cold weather and the Athletics-Yankee game kept the crowd down to two or three hundred.

Werber started a big sixth inning rally by hitting a home run to deep center. Wilmer, Quicker, Fisher, fell down chasing the ball allowing Bill to lead around the bases.

The more started throwing to the showers. Doubled by Kistler and Parley, a triple by Benetti, and a single by Warren ended his duties for the afternoon.

How Lawless, who relieved Parley in the sixth had trouble finding the plate. Three wild pitches were recorded against him.

Nick Warren and Bill Werber hit the Blue Devils attack with three hits apiece. Two of Nick's hits found short.

BLUE DEVILS OF HILL-TAR HEELS

Duke's Heavy Hitting Too Much For Carolina

Bennett and Kistler Get Circuit Blows For Blue Devils

JENKINS ALLOWS 5 HITS
Devils Bombard Two Tar Heel Hurlers for 15 Hits; House Gets Two Homers and Jacked One

Carolina was able to get only five hits out of the battery of Lefty Jenkins and was set down by the score of 9 to 6 at the hands of the hard and often hitting Blue Devils.

Carolina started off with a rush by scoring four markers in the first two innings on a smelt of two home runs by one man on each team. But the Blue Devils showed their teeth and started hitting the ball all over and out of the lot while Jenkins grew more and more stung with his hits. The game was played on a warm, clear Saturday afternoon before a crowd of about 4,000 spectators.

By hitting two Tar Heel pitchers, Earl Fleming, for a total of fifteen hits and giving all-right support behind start pitching, the Duke team showed promise throughout the contest. Duke's first scoring came in the second inning when Tom Bennett hit a long drive into center field from following "Old" Murray's single. Another came in the third on Adam's double, a base out and a single by Werber and Murray respectively. Another came in the fourth due chiefly to Jenkins' heavy hitting. In the fifth, Duke tied the score and stepped out into a two run lead. During the first part of the game, one man on base, Kistler made the long out home run of the afternoon by driving the ball twenty feet over the center field wall. Ball was then relieved in favor of right-hander Fleming, who fared no better at the hands of the Duke sluggers. Hawkins, who bats left-handed, was sent to bat for Bennett. The change resulted in a two-bagger which had two men on base. Nick Warren then golfed one over the right-felder's head for a three bagger, ending in the two men on base and making the score 8 to 6 in Duke's favor. Duke's last run came in the sixth as a result of the team's second big homer, which was hit by Deane, and a sacrifice fly by Werber.

House was the most outstanding Tar Heel performer. The bulky bat accounted for three of Carolina's runs by hitting two homers, one with a man on base. He also handled a few hard chances in left field. Jackson also hit for the devil with one man on base.

The Blue Devils have only two more games against state teams, one against State in Raleigh, and the other a return game with Carolina in Chapel Hill. With a victory over each of the four leading competitors for the state title, the Blue and White team is expected to finish the season without a defeat at the hands of a state team.

Penn State Wins Annual Relay at Philly Saturday

Last Saturday in Philadelphia at the annual Penn State relay, the Duke four-mile relay team composed of Ashworth, Simon, Dancy and Woodward slipped off a fast four mile to place ninth in the nationwide competition. Penn State won the relay, breaking the record of 17:01.15 which was set by Cornell in 1916. Penn State's time was 17:48.25, breaking the former record by slightly under two seconds.

The way in which the teams placed was: Penn State, Seton Hall, Maine, Wisconsin, Michigan State, Notre Dame, seventh place was taken by a late entry which was not on the official program, Harvard, Duke, Cornell, Dartmouth, and Columbia. The relay was won by Carolina last year with a time of 19:14.25. This time was slow due to the fact that it was a relay day.

DUKE LICKS VILLA NOVA YESTERDAY

Lefty Hawkins Pitches Well and Gets Support in 3-2 Win Over Philadelphians

The steady pitching of Lefty Hawkins combined with the support of the Blue Devils was enough to defeat the Nabe Lancers of Villa Nova 3-2 on Villa Nova's home field yesterday afternoon. Up to the last of the ninth inning, the Philadelphians were leading 2-1, but "Big Train" Kistler's double in the last of that frame with Werber and Adams on put across the winning punch for the Devils.

This game was a goal a pitcher's battle as has been seen in college base ball in a long time. Hawkins of Duke held the northwestern 4 hits, while Duke General 5 morning out. Basil, right winged holder for Villa Nova, Hank held the Blue Devils hitless until the sixth when Tom Bennett, Duke out-fielder, stepped into a fast one for safety. Duke scored her first run in this inning. Bennett going to third a moment after leaving hit on Nick Warren's double, then coming home when Morgan, center fielder for Villa Nova dropped Hawkins' long fly.

Villa Nova put over two runs in the first and third innings, but never after that did the threaten to score, as Hank had then eating out of his hand. They scored in the first when Werber crossed on Gillespie's to short. Aside from two errors by Werber and one by Dea, the Devils played air tight ball back of Hawkins.

Duke played Princeton today and Durham tomorrow.

Seniors Play Errorless Ball Behind Two, or More, Pitchers to Loss Annual Classic; Only 37 Misses Made by Future "Men of World"

(By Chronicle Staff Correspondent)

It is the last of the ninth inning, scored tied at ball, two out, a man on third, and Deane Wannamaker next. The Faculty and the Class of '29 of Duke University have battled to a draw during the last inning, and upon the mighty shoulders of Deane Wannamaker rests the responsibility of a glorious victory for his side, plainly expected of him by his men. Certainly, the mighty slugger will not fail at this crucial moment. The Dea hit up a Chestfield, and puffed contentedly before coming to bat. "What a Chestfield means to me now," he exclaims. The crowd roared as the Dea took his place at the plate. Zipl went the ball. "Strike out!" called Judge Bryson, before Deane Wannamaker had assumed the angle. Another strike got by a second later. Fisher John Werber was sending down the line. The next ball was the Dea's "meat," and he swung hard and heavy. With a crack that was drowned out by the roar of the crowd, the ball sailed high and wide into the wide open space between middle and right field.

FROSH CONTINUE WINNING STREAK

Take Second Win From Carolina Tar Babies by Score of 8-3 in Game Monday

The Duke Blue Imps added another win to their win column on Monday when they took the Carolina freshmen for a ride and won the game by an 8-5 score. This is the second win of the year for the Imps over the Tar Babies, the first for the Imps over the two being won by the Imps by about an 8 run margin.

This game gave the little Devils clear score among the freshmen team in the big five, and it looks like they are heading for a state championship which will be played off in Atlanta.

Last Monday in Lexington the Blue Devil golfers added to their already long list of wins by taking Washington & Lee into the camp by a score of 12-6. This was the second match of the year with Washington & Lee, the Devils winning the first one also, by a score of 11-5.

As a result of this win, it looks altogether probable that the team, or at least part of it, may, right or wrong, be picked over but was wild a couple of times with disastrous results.

The Dakers really hit the ball harder than did Penn. Bill Werber got a home and two other hits out of fast trips to the plate. "Big Train" Kistler got a long trip and one other hit. Nick (Continued on page 6)

DEVIL LINKS MEN WIN FROM W. & L.

Take Second Match of Year from Washington and Lee in Lexington by Score of 12-6

The timely hitting of the University of Penn last Monday combined with the prowess of Duke pitcher's resulted in the Devils taking the game by a 9-6 score. Both teams got 11 hits, but the boys from Penn bunched their six as to push over enough runs to win.

Martin Peiser, right hander for Penn, started the game and went well for five innings before Penn got next to him. Lefty Hawkins who relieved Peiser pitched well but was wild a couple of times with disastrous results.

DEVIL NET MEN TAKE TWO NORTHERN MEETS

The Duke tennis team has just returned from a very successful northern trip having won two of the three matches played, and losing the other by a very close margin.

The first match was with the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. The Devils came through in fine form to take the match by a score of 6-3. The Virginia team was supposed to be one of the best in the southeast, and the Devil triumph was a good one.

The second match was with the strong Navy team. Here the Devils lost after putting up a mighty game fight. There was also a match scheduled to be played (Continued on page 6)
