A RENAISSANCE

A new and tremendously important element in student life at Duke was ushered in last week. It had been in evidence before on specific occasions when it was deemed necessary in order that the University might take on an air of equality among other colleges, but this was the first time during our four years of existence that the student body has taken the matter so much to heart. The appearance of so-called "school spirit" on the campus came as the result of an anonymous publication, the necessity for student unity against a common foe, a series of timely "pep" meetings, and the enlisted support of members of the administration.

A college may have an excellent football team or coaching system, that is doing brilliantly well, yet, if the individuals who comprise the personnel of those organizations do not make a direct contact with the members of the student body there can be no mutual feeling of cooperation. The above has been only too true of the situation which existed here. In former enthusiasm meetings held preparatory for a game, only a very small representation from the team could be prevailed upon to appear before the pep sessions. Then, student body has taken the matter so much to heart. The appearance of so-called "school spirit" on the campus came as the result of an anonymous publication, the necessity for student unity against a common foe, a series of timely "pep" meetings, and the enlisted support of members of the administration.

This year the spirit started off in the same old ruts. The team struggled almost through only a mediocre football season. Then, student body has taken the matter so much to heart. The appearance of so-called "school spirit" on the campus came as the result of an anonymous publication, the necessity for student unity against a common foe, a series of timely "pep" meetings, and the enlisted support of members of the administration.

The spirit shown at the Duke-Carolina game, according to the expressed opinion of numerous servers throughout the state, was the best that has been exhibited on a North Carolina field in many moons. The band, cheerleaders, and the student body as a whole aroused the admiration of even the most severe critics by the support they gave the team last Saturday, although the score was disastrous for Duke. Nothing is more pleasing to an enemy of ours than to note a weakness in our loyalty lineup. Let's be on our toes!

We are beginning a new era at Duke. School spirit should and will play a prominent part in our future development if we as students will lend our earnest support. It is the duty of every student to cooperate in the making of worth while traditions and the establishment of high ideals that will create an enviable prestige for Alma Mater.—V. F. S.

DUKE UNIVERSITY DAY

This is the University day. Alumni and alumnae associations throughout this state and in large cities of the east meet today to commemorate the fifty anniversary of the signing of James B. Duke's indenture which, among other things, changed Trinity college into Duke University.

Five short years ago today, James B. Duke, late manufacturing and industrial genius, quietly gave a sizeable part of his vast riches to the cause of education, religion, and the health of his homeland. His decision to help his fellow countrymen came not as passionate desire for personal admiration, but as a climax to the gifts of his auspicious family whose benefactions date back to the time when his own name was comparatively obscure. Furthermore, Mr. Duke expressly stipulated that his gift should be taken as a memorial to his father and other members of his fast fading clan. He realized, no doubt, that his days were limited. His fabulous riches no longer charmed him; he wanted to see his life's work put to good account; hence his stroke of December 11, 1924. Although each year we receive a further gift, farther from this memorable day, we are coming more and more to appreciate the real value of Mr. Duke's gift. Several millions of dollars seem trivial in a country where wealth is measured largely in billions of many figures on paper. We cannot fully realize the greatness of the late philanthropist's indenture until we have seen it in its material setting. It has taken the form of magnificent edifices devoted to learning, of magnificent churches, removed parts of our state; and of hospitals over areas unable to care for their own. This state and the south have received direct, tangible benefit from the indenture, time alone can measure it with the consciousness of Mr. Duke's benevolence.

Probably the greatest single provision in Mr. Duke's famous indenture was for Duke University which was to be formed around Trinity college. The expansion of the several graduate schools then existing and the creation of new ones, the erection of new buildings, the establishment of a new and separate school of medicine, and an increase in faculty members were vital stipulations of the indenture. These provisions are materializing. We have already seen the opening of new schools headed by able leaders. We are witnessing the construction of a beautiful campus. Yearly we note the increase in new and prominent professors. Indeed, we are living in the midst of a transitional period; progress is evidenced on every hand—if we can only see it.

ANENT FOOTBALL

Not presuming to be an authority on the intricate tactics or ultimate purposes of football with all its accompaniments, we shall hereafter endeavor to weigh such matters pro and con for the purpose of arriving at some conclusions, or at least discover some light on the subject.

The reference made recently in The Ohio State Lantern in an editorial entitled "Playing with the Cards" has aroused our attention. The "Player-Control" system as outlined which is being used in a number of New York high schools, as well as in many schools of the Middle West and Pacific Coast, was first suggested by Coach Tad Jones of Yale. The system which placed in the hands of the captain and team the responsibility of running the team, the decision of tactics and plays to be used, and the substitution of players without even the intervention of the coach between the halves, has been indorsed because of objection to a grid game which seems to be an antiquated managed by a monarch, the coach, as if in a game of chess.

Being unable to say whether or not this system, if accepted by the competing colleges, were best, we would at present consider the common system of the game which does not seem to us to develop individuality, leadership, and initiative to an unusual degree.

Is the purpose of the game to emphasize the importance of physical prowess by endless hours of practicing, submitting to this all other phases of college life which might more nearly lead to higher culture? Is the purpose of football to work out excitement and so-called "school spirit" superficially at sporadic intervals by arousing a desire to rise in victory above the other college degraded in defeat, so that students will show their fear from lofty natures in various exhibitions of football excitement, as lately seen on this campus. Is it even the purpose of football to organize a student body that all individual claims to free action and opinion are bound to bow before mere idols of the sod? Must this cooperation at athletic activities inspire the aspiration for the alma mater in other fields?

Perhaps, the real purpose of the game is to foster physical skill along with fair sportsmanship and thereby entertain with a spirited game those who choose to see such sport. The intense interest shown the game along with other specific evils, we are afraid, would not exist if such were the case. For then football would not justify or be able to obtain the overvalued importance it is now given.

After all the desirable phases of the game seem to have grown out in later periods of football history and would not be desired by those who first promulgated the game. But they now seem unseparable accompaniments of it.

HOOFES, HORNS & TAILS

By S. & S.

What a fall this has been. The stadium was about half full, some of the companies were more than half full, and the score board was full of figures on one side.

The Chronicle is even full of news. A Duke junior is selected as Rhodes Scholar, Ted Davis is elected captain of the football team, sixteen seniors are taken into Phi Beta Kappa, this is Duke University Day, and another year of splendid fraternity comes to Duke. Some of these items might call for editorial comment, but we are not editorially inclined tonight.

The columnists of the Carolinian are writing in the conservative spirit of Duke students which are some too complimentary to our personal poverty. They lead us to believe that the "millionaire methodists" or the "millionaire methodists." But in spite of such cracks from their columns, we notice that we are and we are sorry to hear (in a general way) that they are to be suppressed from circulation because of a supposed radicalism.

The editor of the Daily Tar Heel is waging a noble campaign for a better spirit between Carolina and Duke. His latest suggestion is for the presidents of the two student bodies to get together and plan for a meeting of the faculties and student leaders of the two universities. We are sure that we notice that his editorials on this subject are receiving very favorable notice in papers throughout the state. We are right with him in more ways than one.

We compliment ourselves for having had the patience to refrain from writing a column last week when everyone was so hot and bothered. We are sure he believes that discretion is the better part of valor. And while we are complimenting we might say that the spirit of the Duke students at the game was admirable. No one can now make any cracks about Duke students just sitting—and doing nothing.

The Ochsens' column, whom we enjoyed immensely, have come and gone. We wonder how many other students enjoyed it. We think there were more who enjoyed it to leave even during a number, and many more left between the songs. Two students and one student body surprised. To have your hopes of victory shattered and still be able to carry your team from the field to put on your splendid band serenades for the victims, and to comfort yourselves as if you, and not we, had gained the larger score—these things stamp you as foes worthy any man's steel. And I want you to know that any of us which your treatment much more than we do the victory. In the natural course of events, the time will come when you will be the losers. But you have already won something much more important, and that is the unqualified admiration of your school fellows.

I am sure that you will agree that with Duke and Carolina hiked in a game, it is not the State and South. It is not the ideal world of a trial? It will not put your thoughtful students and alumni join in an effort to make the ideal a reality? To ask the question of such a time to receive an answer. I am sure, had I confidently look forward to the time in the near future when we should see no more of the petty bickerings of the past as mere reminders of the days of irresponsible youth.

Again assuring you and your student body of my warm regard, I am, With best wishes to all, A Carolina Alumnus.

Note: Because I hope that the effort for a better understanding between the Duke and Carolina students may come from the student body, I would prefer for you not to use my name—if this letter is published—for our students might think that the member of the faculty, seek to use coercion.

used that she was having trouble with this column, so we find it necessary to explain its function—a thing that is so easy, well, there's nothing to it. Here goes: Hoofs—that which tramples upon; Horns—indispensable for every columnist; Tails or Tails—(here, me and Mr. Webster align)—that which begets and endeth a column; 8—nine—tenth letter of the alphabet; &—ditto.

Editor, Duke Chronicle:

I have attended football games for twenty-five years, but for sheer devotion to a team and for such well as for the many marks of genuine, gentlemanly sportsmanship. During intermission, delicious refreshments were served, and the students were invited to about fifty guests. The Blue Devil Orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

PAN-HELLENIC DANCE

One of the most successful social functions of the fall was the dance given Friday night at the Washington Duke Hotel under the auspices of the Pan-Hellenic Council.

The dance, which is the third of a series of dances to be given this year by the Pan-Hellenic Council, was held in the large ball room at the hotel which was very attractively decorated for the occasion.

Made for the dance was furnished by the Duke University Club Orchestra.

DORMITORY GIRLS TO ENTERTAIN

On Friday night, the dormitory girls will entertain the town girls at a Christmas party in the Southgate gym.

This party, which is a return courtesy to the Co-Ed Prom given by the town girls last spring, is expected to become an established tradition among the University women.

DINNER GUESTS AT SOUTHGATE
On Thursday evening, Miss Sarah Rowe had as her guests at dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garber, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Cannon and Mrs. Stevens.

FRESHMAN CLASS TO ENTERTAIN
On Friday evening the Freshman Class will entertain at a theater party at the Auditorium. Refreshments will be served at the Union where an informal gathering will be held after the movie.

ENTERTAINERS AT DINNER

Mrs. Wray Ramsey entertained at dinner Sunday her sister-in-law Mrs. C. W. Ramsey and her Mrs. Thornburg.

GUESTS AT DINNER

Dr. and Mrs. Wm. MacDougal and Dr. Pringhouse were the dinner-guests of Mrs. Hazen Smith on Sunday.

GUESTS AT SOUTHGATE

Miss Clyde Allison had as her week-end guest, her sister Miss Elizabeth Allen, of Yanceyville.
Kappa Alpha Theta had as their guest Friday and Saturday their district president, Miss Lydia Schuler, of New Orleans.

Miss Ethel Lucas had as her week-end guest Miss Helen Berry of Charlotte.
Miss Nellie Gray Wilson had as her week-end guest Miss Annie Parrott of Oxford.
Miss Mildred Holten, a graduate of the class of 1928, was the week-end guest of Miss Hal Grimes.

STRONG TAR HEEL TEAM OVERWHELMS BLUE DEVILS

Carolina Backs Feature 48-7 Win Over Duke In Final Game of Season

Greatest Tar Heel Eleven of All Time Experiences Little Difficulty in Beating Devils

PEELER STARS FOR DUKE
Branch, Farris Star for Carolina. White, Thorne, Bule, Murray and Godfrey Stand Out for Duke

In the last game of the season the Duke University Blue Devils went down to defeat before the smashing attack of a strong team from the University of North Carolina. The final score was 48-7 and it is indicative of the type of game that was played. The Devils were fighting hard most of the game but they were outclassed and outplayed.

Carolina's Tar Heels got off to a fast start and before the game ten minutes old the Heels had put up their first score. The Devils lightened up and began playing some of the hardest football that they have shown this season, but neither of the teams were able to score during the remainder of the first quarter. The second quarter was full of action and the Tar Heels held the upper hand. Duke was able, by luck of having a great break, to push the ball over during this period, but it was really a break and not great playing that got them 7 points. During this 25 minutes Carolina was able to ring up 14 more points. The score at the half was Carolina 21-Duke 7.

After the half, Carolina seemed to have more pep than at the first of the game and the Devils saw 14 more points go up for the Heels. It seemed that the Devils went to pieces in the last quarter and Carolina repeated her performance of the third quarter by pushing over two more tallies. The score at the end of the game was 48-7.

There were outstanding players on both teams, but the Heels had the edge in this department also. Branch, Carolina quarterback, was the most spectacular player in the game. His broken field running was beautiful, and he showed up well in the closing end of the game. Nash and Ward played good games, and were closely pushed by their teammates Spaulding, Hume and Jackson.

Among the outstanding Duke players were Peeler, Bule, Thorne, Murray, and Brewer. Peeler, playing his last game with the Devils did some great work at end, and his teammates Thorne played an exceptionally good game at guard. The backfield hours were fairly well divided between the other three men mentioned above.

This was not a game of breaks. Carolina smothered Duke with a better brand of football. The only real break in the game belonged to Duke and it was good for the only touchdown that the Devils were able to make.

The lineup is given below:

Carolina	Pos.	Duke
Hoel	Warren
Koenig	Carpen
Farris	Rupp
Lipscomb	E. Adkins
C. Ryan	Thorne
F. Adkins	Davis
Peeler	Peeler
Branch	Rocky
Ward	Bule
Nash	Murray
Spaulding	Brewer

Tombs Puts On Boxing And Wrestling Bouts

First Matches of Season to Be Held in Gym Monday Night at 8 o'clock; Admission 35c

LOVE SCENE TO BE SHOWN

"Have Mercy" Bynum of Aycock to Meet "Broomhandle" Forney of Jarvis for Championship of Juniors of Campus

Monday night in the gym at 8 o'clock, the Tombs, literary athletic order, will sponsor a series of boxing and wrestling matches. With these matches, the winter sports program at Duke will open. Coach Tex Tison, wrestling and boxing mentor, has picked out the two outstanding men for each weight, and these two will fight in our Monday. Good scraps are assured, for two Southern Champions, Starnes and Martin, will be seen in action, while Captain Bule, Amond of the boxing team, and ex-captain Currier of the same team will also be fighting. Saint Amond is fighting 125, while Currier is 145.

Coach Tison will referee all the bouts. "Ready Cash" Tyle, famed through Jarvis as a Champion sports writer, will be on hand to get A.P. reports of the bouts for publication in all cities of the world. It is rumored that Ready Cash will also broadcast the bouts to the audience, he having talked out during every performance held here this year.

Perhaps the most spectacular bout of the evening will be the one between "Have Mercy" Bynum, the pride of Aycock and "Broomhandle" Forney, the battling terror of the north end of Jarvis. Jarvis and Aycock have been bitter rivals for the past few years, and spirit is expected to run high when these two battlers meet.

For the benefit of Slack girls who might want to attend these bouts, Tombs arranged for two of the most famous lovers on the campus to put on a hot loving scene (no, Rocky Cash, we are not talking of Jakey Lippard when we said great lovers). Joe Croson and Dummy Pierson have agreed to show the Slacksters just how loving is correctly done.

The only sad part of this program is the fact that a 35c admission charge will be taken.

The tentative program is:
Wrestling:
115 pound class—Gentry v. Gamble.
185 pound class—Caplan Starnes v. Wall.
158 pound class—Perry v. Edwards.
Boxing:
115 pound class—Martin v. Edwards.
155 pound class—Captain Saint Amond v. Miller.
135 pound class—Starnes v. Phillips.
145 pound class—Warren v. Matheson.
Unlimited class—Bule v. Matheson.
Jim Rowe, jokes and dancing.
"Have Mercy" Bynum v. "Broomhandle" Forney.
Love scene (last on program because it is feared all will leave during it), Joe Croson and Dummy Pierson.

1930 CAPTAIN
Lee "Red" Davis, one of Duke's most popular linemen, has been elected as captain of the 1939 Blue Devil eleven. Red has played for the past two years and is rated as a good, fast lineman. He is a second year law student, his home being in Waynesville, N. C.

BASKETBALL TEAM GETS UNDER WAY AT SHACK

Ten Teams Have Already Entered; Spirit of Competition Very Keen

Interest in Co-Ed Athletics, especially in basketball, is certainly on the boom at Duke. Teams are being trained by the seniors, the Literary girls, the Town girls, the Graduate School girls, and the non-senior dormitory girls. Even the Family visits expect to compete for the Duke Championship.
Not only is every sorority putting out a team, but the non-seniority girls have

TALKING TURKEY BY GORBEL

SWAN SONG FOR DUKE STARS
The final whistle of the Carolina game brought to an end the careers of six of Duke's outstanding football players. These men who ended their football playing are Kistler, Warren, Peeler, Thorne, Godfrey, and Bule. These men have starred for Duke for the past three years and are now ready to hang up their molasses. Duke fans will miss these men very much; football will not seem the same without these fellows around. Anyway, fellows, we wish you the best of luck in everything.

BASKETBALL SOON

Duke opens her basketball season next week against Oglethorpe, on December 17. This will give Duke students their first opportunity to see the 1929-30 edition of Duke basketball. Last year, Duke's first in the season conference, the "Billboard Baby" was the "dark horse" of the tournament, going to the finals where Duke was defeated by N. C. State. This year Duke has practically the same team back, and we are looking for a "Southern Championship." Let's go, gang.

DUKE SPIRIT

At last Duke University has come into its own, and now is showing better spirit than has ever been shown here before. In spite of the defeat at the hands of Carolina last Saturday the student body kept up continuous cheering. And then after the game the members of the team were carried off the field on the shoulders of the Duke students. This is one of the best things that the present student body and we think that every Duke student is to be congratulated, and especially should credit be given to "Goofy" Lapton and his corps of hard working assistants.

JARVIS VS. AYCOCK

On Monday night the cohorts of Jarvis and Aycock will take the Duke gym to their former favorites on to victory. In a novel entertainment put on by "Tombs" the champions of these age-old rivals will meet in deadly combat. It will be a battle to death when "Have Mercy" Bynum, of Aycock, meets "Broomhandle" Forney, the pride of Jarvis. The two dorms have been holding pep meetings for the past few nights in preparation for this "Battle of the Century." Several boxing and wrestling matches will also be held, but the interest of the fans will be centered on the main attraction of the evening, when Bynum and Forney step into the ring. The farmers

Runners Up in Last Year's Southern Conference Tournament Open with S. I. A. A. Team

BOLLEY FARLEY IS CAPTAIN

Captain Farley, Werber, Councilor, Thorne, Croson, and Rogers Are Letter Men Forming Team This Year

With the football season at an end the students at Duke are beginning to think seriously of the approaching basketball campaign. Indications are that the team will be the best ever to represent the school. An imposing array of veteran material will be in uniform, but these men will face some stiff competition from the members of last year's star freshman team. Duke will have a letterman from last year's runner-up in the Southern conference tournament at Atlanta. Two of these men are all-southern, while another man was given considerable publicity by the sports writers at Atlanta. Bill Werber and "Shorty" Croson made the all-southern, while "Chalky" Councilor made the "Second" Team. The lettermen returning this year are Captain Farley, Councilor, Thorne, Croson, and Rogers. These men likely to see action are Bower, Garber, and several others.

The Pine is the favorite rendezvous for Club gatherings, Bridge Luncheons and Fraternity suppers. We admit the kind of patronage, feeling certain that service will be highly pleased. Mrs. Vickers has a happy faculty for assisting in the preparation for such functions and will cheerfully render her assistance to make such gatherings a huge success. For these associations and organizations which like to have dancing as a feature of their program we offer our Dance Floor. For a simple luncheon or a banquet, The Pine solves the problem. We also feature an afternoon tea service for ladies' clubs and societies.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT
GETS UNDER WAY AT SHACK

two teams, and they expect to enter a third before the Christmas holidays. Competition is keen, but friendly, and at all hours one may hear the boom-boom of basketball practice in the Southgate gym. Each group feels its honor at stake, and the championship will, indeed, be hard fought.

The object of this rivalry, according to Miss Grant, is to develop the individual girls, and not to train a team to perfection. It is a part of the system of constructive athletics being worked out so ably by Miss Grant and her assistants.

More than 1,000 people crowded into the New Watts Hotel when it was thrown open for inspection and formal presentation to the City of Durham last Thursday afternoon. Open room work was suspended at the college and all the students were invited to attend and take their part in the ceremonies that marked its opening.

LANNING SAYS STATE
DESIRES INDIVIDUAL

The security of a system which exercises such vast powers is fortified, the speaker insisted, through a facility in control of public opinion.

Schools, from kindergarten to college, are held to strict accountability by the manipulators of public opinion, by the holders of power, to such an extent that teachers and students alike are shackled in their quest for truth. Only such facts and opinions as appear to the taste of nationalism, orthodox theology, and industrialism can be given currency in church and state institutions ostensibly devoted to education.

"The newspapers," Dr. Lanning added, "are now the tools of industrialism. No longer the vehicles of public opinion, they have passed into the hands of exploiters."

the state. The man with capital alone can influence editorial policies."
"Fear of defeat in war," he continued, "is the most prolific source of power. A man, at the command of the state must submit to the horrors of the battlefield. A wave of emotion, blended with his love for home, his pride in the unit to which he belongs, winged submission from the average man as a prospective soldier. Wars are of economic consequence to only a few persons and they never see the battlefield."

One must not only be willing to relinquish his life but his opinions in peace and war for the supposed good of the state, the speaker pointed out. In foreign affairs, the activity of the individual is regulated by the demands of the state, and in internal conflict between exploiters.

talistic and labor interests, the power of the state is thrown into the hands of the industrial, who is usually the political, Car.

The individual as a political factor is inconsequential, for the simple reason that elections are determined by demagogues. Non-voting, therefore, is not due to a disunity, but a sense of futility.

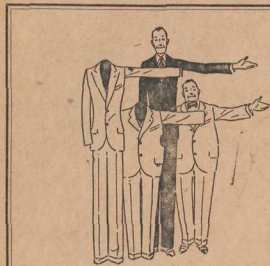

"The state," the speaker concluded, "is not the repository of the collective forces of its citizens. The majority is controlled by the effective holders of power, who in turn depend upon propaganda, which, I have tried to show, is without the sphere of the individual."

After Dr. Lanning addressed a spirited discussion was held by the club members.

CHESS PLAYERS TO MEET
HERE THURSDAY EVENING

Chess enthusiasts are invited to attend an initial meeting to be held Thursday, 8 P. M., Graduate dormitory, room B-4. The purpose of this meeting is to formulate a feasible plan for the organization of a University CESS club, create a chess tournament, find out just "Who's Who" in chess at Duke, and secure a chapter of Chi Eta Sigma, national honorary and social chess fraternity on the Duke campus.

All chess aspirants at Duke regardless of class, age, ability, experience, and aptitude for the "royal game" are cordially invited to attend this unique and convivial assemblage of delightful games.

Here's a new stepper in the right direction!

It's the newest dance record by Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadian, as of course it's another puppy foot-warmer. Lombardo plays these snappy hits (no need to introduce them to you!) in the smooth, moderate tempo you hear on all the smartest dance floors. And into each number he injects skillful musical embroidery of his own that will have you saying, "Give me that one!"

Hear these other new hits, also . . .

WHAT YOUNGER COLLEGE MEN ARE DOING WITH WESTINGHOUSE

LIGHTNING HAS LONG BEEN A COSTLY RAIDER OF POWER LINES

Wild lightning meets his master . . .

REMEMBER how you used to sit on the porch during a thunderstorm and shudder just a little at the forces that seemed to tear open the sky and shake the hills? Electrical men have often shuddered in grave seriousness over those same forces. For lightning has been a costly raider of power lines.

Now, however, many means of defense are available, and many more are being developed. Science has been studying lightning, and experimenting with it. Down in the mountains of Tennessee a group of Westinghouse men have been making photographic records of the voltages developed by lightning, with the cathode-ray oscillograph and the klydonograph. Guided by their findings, another group in New Jersey is enabled to reproduce lightning artificially, and study its effects on a high-tension line. And in East Pittsburgh, with a generator that will produce lightning strokes equivalent to 350,000-600 horse-power and with a laboratory that duplicates power line conditions, others are learning new facts about the behavior of powerful devices.

Much of this work is carried on by young men recently out of college. Their achievements will save millions for power companies, and eliminate many hazards to life in substitution operation.

Lightning jumps the gap between these Westinghouse arcing horns, and spurs the simulators.
