

TWO MORE DORMITORIES ARE OPENED TO PROVIDE FOR INCREASE IN CO-EDS

Several changes in the housing of women students on the East campus were made during the summer, as well as in the management of the dormitories.

Jarvis and Aycock halls were completely remodeled to care for women students and are now occupied by them for the first time.

Mrs. Hope C. Chamberlain replaces Miss Mary Kestler, who goes to Jarvis hall, as matron of Pegasus house. Miss Evelyn Barnes takes the place of Miss Louise Seabolt at Alhambra house. Miss Mary Grace Wilson and Miss Elizabeth Anderson remain in charge of Brown and Bassett houses respectively.

DUKE MAN APPOINTED AS NATIONAL CHAIRMAN

Prof. H. C. Bird, of the department of engineering, was notified during the summer of his appointment as chairman of the nominating committee of the surveying and mapping division of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Other members of the committee, well known in the engineering field, are: Lieut. Comdr. Frank S. Borden, Washington, D. C.; W. S. Rutland, Collierville, N. Y.; Prof. C. O. Garver, University of Michigan; and F. W. Hough, Beaumont, California.

The Duke professor has also been appointed recently to head the professional practice committee of the state organization.

Faculty Is Strengthened With Numerous Additions To Personnel For Session

13 DEPARTMENTS

Thirty-one New Men Come Here From Over Entire Country

LAW SCHOOL HAS SIX
Sociology, English, Economics, Math, and Science Professors Are Added

The Duke university faculty has been increased by thirty-one members for the 1931-32 school year. These have been assigned to thirteen departments in the curriculum. Both in their varied background and in the various colleges and institutions where they have been serving, the new instructors and professors represent all sections of the country and Europe.

The law school has claimed six of the new men. This is the largest number to join one department, but the departments of sociology, English, economics, mathematics, and science, together with the schools of medicine and religion will be strengthened by their additions.

The new teachers, the names of the institutions from where they come, and the colleges and universities where they studied, are listed as follows:

Donald K. Adams, assistant professor of psychology; from Connecticut Wesleyan faculty for the past two years or research fellowship at psychological institute at University of Berlin studied at Harvard and Yale.

John S. Bradway, professor of law and director of legal clinic; from University of California faculty; studied at Harvard and University of Pennsylvania.

Harvard Carter, professor of obstetrics and gynecology; from University of Virginia medical school faculty; studied at University of Delaware, Oxford, and Johns Hopkins.

David F. Cavers, assistant professor of law; from University of West Virginia faculty; studied at University of Pennsylvania and Harvard.

Alexander H. Frey, visiting professor of law; from University of Pennsylvania faculty; studied at Yale, Columbia and Oxford.

Len Fuller, professor of law; from University of Illinois; studied at California and Stanford.

Edwin C. Hamblen, associate professor of statistics and geology; from University of Virginia medical school; studied at Baylor and University of Virginia. Glenn Harrison, instructor in pediatrics; from University of Iowa hospital; studied at University of Iowa and University of Maryland.

George Hoffman, instructor in English; from University of Alabama faculty; studied at Northwestern.

Howard Jensen, professor of sociology; from University of Missouri faculty; studied at University of Kansas and University of Chicago.

Olay K. Landberg, associate professor of Romance languages; from University of Illinois faculty; studied at St. Olaf and University of Minnesota.

Angus McElroy, instructor in pediatrics; from Johns Hopkins; studied at Davidson.

George F. Osborne, visiting professor of law; from Stanford university faculty; studied at University of California and Harvard.

H. H. Shaw Smith, professor of religious education; from Yale university faculty; studied at Johns Hopkins and Yale.

Howard Warrenbrock, instructor of law and associate director of legal research; from legal staff of National Commission on Commerce and Law Enforcement; studied at University of Michigan.

Miss Frances Brown, instructor in chemistry; studied at Johns Hopkins and Agnes Scott.

Miss Louise Hall, instructor in art; from Wesleyan college faculty; studied at Wellesley and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Wilbert A. Jenkins, instructor in botany; from Cornell university; studied at Cornell and Duke.

Paul Kraemer, instructor in botany; from Ohio State faculty; studied at Miami university.

Marshall D. Ketchum, part-time instructor in economics; from University of Chicago; studied at Syracuse university.

James M. Koch, instructor in economics; from Georgia School of Technology; studied at Duke.

Llewellyn Plankhagen, instructor in economics; from Harvard university faculty; studied at Minnesota and Illinois.

J. H. Roberts, assistant professor in mathematics; from University of Texas faculty; studied at Texas.

Kenneth W. Clark, instructor in New Testament; from University of Chicago; studied at Yale, Chicago, and Colgate-Rochester school of divinity.

Kenneth C. Gerard, physical education department; from University of Illinois; studied at Illinois.

Carl Voyles, assistant director of athletics.

DWIRE OUTLINES ALUMNI PROJECTS FOR COMING YEAR

Feature Is Home Coming Day October 1 For Old Graduates

LUNCHEON TO BE HELD
Fall Program Will Lead to Duke University Day in December

Three major alumni projects for the fall and early winter season have been outlined by the Duke university alumni association, according to Henry R. Dwire, director of public relations and alumni affairs of the university.

First of the principal events on the alumni calendar will be the home-coming observance of Saturday, October 3, the day on which V. M. I. plays Duke in football at Durham. Hundreds of former students are expected to join the throngs to pour into the campus on the occasion of Duke's first home game, the initial home appearance of a Duke team coached by Wallace Wade.

In addition to the athletic feature of home-coming day this year, alumni are to be treated with other features especially planned for them.

A second fall alumni feature will be the observance of November as alumni month by former Duke students. The purpose of this period is to renew old former students' close connections with their alma mater, and to encourage their continued support of alumni and university undertakings. Varied features of this month will be led by officers of the alumni associations in many states.

The fall alumni program will lead up to the climactic occasion, the general observance of Duke University Day, on December 11. This is to be the sixth anniversary celebration of the signing of the indenture of trust by James B. Duke the indenture which created the Duke Endowment. Dinners and other gatherings will be held by alumni in every section of this state, and in many other states. Several meetings may be held in foreign countries. Last year 30 alumni gatherings were held on December 11, one of them in Japan.

An early alumni activity will be a luncheon to be held in Columbia, S. C., on September 28, before the South Carolina-Duke game. Former Trinity and Duke students from many sections of South Carolina are expected at this luncheon.

"Since I lent him my pen it has never been the same!"

Often said, but NOT of Parker Duofold

Don't make yourself unpopular by borrowing students' pens. Unless the pen is a Parker Duofold, your hand is apt to foul the point, or change its action. Don't expose yourself. Stop at the nearest pen counter and pick the Parker Duofold that fits your hand to a "T." You'll be prepared then for any emergency—even for lending—graciously. For no style of writing can foul, or alter Parker's miracle Duofold point. Still it writes as easily as you breathe with amazing Pressureless Touch! And even the Parker Duofolds at $3 have 22½ to 60% more elasticity than some pens of other makes priced 50% higher. Yet none has Parker's stylish, balanced, streamlined design—"America's Shapeless"—or Parker's Invisible Filler, or Patented Clip that lets the pen set low and unobtrusive in the pocket. Blue Devil Gridders Begin Training For Tough Season

Finish Preliminary Conditioning and Start Semester With Many Candidates For Each Position; End First Ten Days' Practice With Few Posts Settled

For the last ten days the candidates for the first Blue football team at Duke have been plugging and tumbling in an effort to get in good shape for the opening game on the 20th of September at the University of South Carolina. About forty-five men have been reporting for the workouts and it is from this bunch that Coach Wade must select a team to defend the name of Duke this fall. These men have had two daily workouts, one at nine and the other at 3:30 with skill drills, liberally mixed in between times.

The first week of preliminary work on fundamentals and conditioning was culminated by a scrimmage between the first two squads last Saturday. While this first real encounter was not completed on account of the weather, it served its purpose in letting the players feel their strength and also gave the coaches a check-up on the progress to date. In the Saturday game the first squad was held scoreless by the second squad and on many occasions was in its trouble for no gains. Both teams showed possibilities of great defensive power although both were very inexperienced offensively. The starbusts and fierce tackling of both teams and the superb punting by Fowler and James were about the only encouraging things of the afternoon.

There is no doubt but that eleven men can be picked who would be dependable if they could last the entire game, but with injuries liable at any moment and with three of the best forward wall men temporarily further injured might not fare. In the backfield the problem confronting the coaches are not as involved, plenty of reserve material being on hand, although no outstanding players have developed yet. Coach Wade has been experimenting this week by shifting a few players, both from the line to the backfield and vice versa and from the second to the first squad. He has also been shifting players on the forward wall, so it is practically impossible to predict the final first team which will take the field next week. There are ten days yet to go before the first whistle which is to decide the fate of 1931 machine and many things can happen in that time. If things go right the Devils ought to

STUDENTS TO GET PLENTY OF CHOICE

New System of Physical Education Let Men Choose Own Exercise

The athletic department is taking a big stride this year in an effort to do more for the student body at large, instead of just helping those who are already adept in some branch of athletics. In the past, each student has been required to take four semesters of collegiate in the gymnasium before graduation, but he was not allowed much leeway for personal likes or dislikes. Beginning with this year, physical education will be more of a study of, and a participation in various sports according to the desire of the student.

According to the plans laid out by Coach Wade, students who are physically handicapped will not be exempt from physical education as has been the policy in the past, but will be examined and required to take the course to the best of their ability. He said they should be prepared to take advantage of the breaks, however. He said that winning a contest was not the real victory, but the knowledge that they had done their very best. Coach Wade is doing a great service to the youth of today by telling and teaching them how to get the most out of their bodies. He reached a high point in his life and he is enjoying the very best of his life and he is enjoying the very best of his life and he is enjoying the very best of his life.

FROSH FOOTBALL WELL UNDER WAY

Record Number of Candidates Report For Practice to Raise Hopes

While the varsity squad has been rolling forward, the future Blue Imps have been working hard to get into the game with the pigskins. A record-breaking squad has been answering the coaches' call, numbering over 125 and including high school and prep school stars from all parts of the country. It is even more futile to pick outstanding prospects from this large group than from the varsity, but some of them are beginning to shine forth and in another week or so it will be possible to see what can be expected from them. They will have a pretty tough goal to shoot at, to beat last year's record of 10-1 and to establish this with this sign they will work all the harder.

The freshmen are working on the same field that was used by their predecessors in other words, the field above and to the west of the stadium, but they have an advantage over the men last year. The field is well sodded now and they do not have to battle with boulders and dirt as well as some of the freshmen. Their first game is on October 18th with the State Wolf Puppers and the game will be played at Raleigh.

In their first ten days of practice, they have not experienced much sweat and arm lumps, but now that the cooling and drill on fundamentals has toughened them up they are getting a crack at scrimmage. Later they will be given a crack at one of the varsity teams, just as soon as a few of the best have been singled out. By the time the first game is called they ought to be ready to eat up the Pups and it is only hoped that they can do so. Anyway, they will have plenty of time to get into the game, going to have the honor of opening the game. Suspense is the spice of life.

Attention Students!
All persons without special permission are requested to stay off the stadium field while the football team is practicing.

ALL SPORTS HAVE TRAINED COACHES

Each Duke Coach is a Leader in His Respective Field of Work

There is not a school in the south that has such a group of coaches as Duke, each of whom is a leader in his field. These able men directing the athletes of Duke it will not be long before the Devils will be one of the leading powers in Southern Conference circles. Already they have demonstrated their power in basketball, baseball, boxing and wrestling and within a few years they will be Duke in football which is king of all sports.

Led by Wallace Wade, whose envied record makes his name a power in sports circles, these men should make every Duke man proud to follow in their team. Wade came to Duke last spring from Alabama where he has coached the Tide to successful seasons for the last seven years. He has with him Caldwell, Hagler and Singleton, all of whom went to school at Alabama and studied under him, becoming wonderful players. Hagler and Singleton are helping Wade with the varsity while Caldwell is working with the freshmen. Eddie Cameron came here several years ago from Washington and Lee and is coaching the backfield now. He is also the basketball coach and has led the Devils right up to the top. Carl Voyles came to Duke last spring from Illinois and is coaching the end now. He came highly recommended by Zuppke. Wade came to Duke this year from Asheville and is coaching the freshmen along with Caldwell. Jack Combs puts the Devils through their paces on the diamond and a better man is yet to be found in the country. Ad Warren is to be boxing coach this winter and he sure ought to be able to show the prospectors a few things.

South Carolina Gamecocks Battle Duke In First Fry

Strong Team Composed Largely of Sophomores Expected to Give Devils Stiff Competition in Season Opener For Both Schools

Talking It Over
By JOE SKINNER

Well, do you think Dempsey will make a come-back? Sports writers and followers of the ring have always said that they never come back and yet some guy is always trying to be the first one. If Dempsey gets enough set-ups the public may think he is going to be a big gun again, but nobody can ever beat Old Man Time, and least of all an athlete. Sports take youth and a young heart and now those are gone it's just too bad. Both the public and the athlete know this and each has a different reaction. The public is ever eager to say "He's through" and the athlete claims "I'll still get my old stuff." Babe Ruth and Bill Thibault seem to be about the only men who are able to keep pushing back the time limit.

Looks as if it will be getting time for the big leagues to divide up players again. If all the names were put in a box and the teams were chosen by lottery, enthusiasm might pick up again for the little clubs. The way it is now, all the good players have collected on just a few teams and the others don't even come close to getting a crack at the game. We'd like somebody besides the A's to win a change.

It's almost time to start giving the Southern Conference winners this fall, but after seeing the way the predictions for big league winners went wrong, we are a little afraid to commit ourselves right now. Everyone said that Brooklyn was sure to win the pennant this year, and just look how they embarrassed one and all.

What with "Miracles of Sport" and "Believe It or Not" showing us every day all the goofy things in the world there isn't much left to a guy's imagination—what do you think?

Where Friends Meet for Better Service

On September 26th the Blue Devils venture forth to try their mettle on strange ground, with the only team that served them defeat last season, namely, the South Carolina Gamecocks. This game has the interest of the entire south both because of last year's result, and because it will be the first game for the Devils under the Wade system.

Last year the Gamecocks came up here and took the Devils to a close game, losing three times while they held their opponents scoreless. Having been caught napping, the Devils spurred themselves on, and went through the remainder of the season undefeated, although they got two draws. This year they will endeavor to be side-awake and they are thirsting for a chance to avenge last year's defeat. However, they are working under a system which is comparatively new to them, and for a while at least they are bound not to have the precision which is theirs towards the last of last season.

On the other hand, the South Carolina boys have a football coach, a familiar system and they are supposed to have a team which is much stronger than the one which met Duke so successfully last year. Captain Miles Bledsoe and Earl Clark are two boys who may play havoc with the Devils if they have half a chance.

The Carolina team will more than likely outwork the Devils in every department, since they have several men who tip the beam at 200 or better. Fourteen out of the first twenty-two men are sophomores which may give them a slight advantage when it comes to varsity experience, but every one of them was almost stellar in ability on the freshmen team last fall and are real ball players. The freshman team which was composed largely of these fourteen men last year went through their schedule without a loss.

The Duke frosh made a perfect record last year so that may cancel their advantage, but it is not likely they could quite a feather in Billy Ray's cap to defeat Duke this year in a row, so this opening engagement is sure to be fought with and ball. It is not known just what the game will be and how the game will be played, but it is known that they are really and truly strong in every department, so that it will take every ounce of brains and grit that the Devils have to gain a win when they are meeting the Gamecocks on their home grounds. Breaks either way may throw the game to one team or the other.
