With a total enrollment of thirty-four first-year men from twenty-five different colleges and universities, Dean Judd Miller is looking forward to an excellent first year. ## RECEPTION GIVEN

Duke Has Only Theological School in South-Southeast Aspiring Ministers

PROGRAM IS IMPRESSIVE

History of Methodism is Told While Present Problems Are Discussed

The formal opening of the Duke school of religion was conducted last Tuesday evening in York Chapel. The program, which was very impressive in dignity, was carried through in the regular procedure of Methodist worship.

Professor Paul N. Garber, of the Duke school of religion, delivered an address on "The Struggle for a Trained Ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." Dr. Garber spoke on the struggle which preceded the splitting of the Methodist church. Following the separation of the northern unit from the southern unit, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was founded at Vanderbilt university. After this establishment there was no other addition until the Duke school of religion was founded, which is the only theological school in the south organized and carried out solely for the purpose of training aspirants to the Methodist ministry.

TOTAL ENROLLMENT OF FRESH ON EAST CAMPUS IS LARGEST IN HISTORY

The freshman class on the East campus began work for the 1931-1932 school year with a total enrollment of two hundred and twenty-one, which marks a considerable increase over the number of last year. Twenty-three states are represented in the class.

North Carolina leads in number enrolled from one state, with a total of thirty-seven. Other states with large numbers are Maryland, Mississippi, and South Carolina. Eight states having one representative each are Arkansas, Iowa, Colorado, Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

The usual custom of providing freshmen dormitories is being dropped this year. Freshmen women are rooming in all the dormitories.

LEADS DRUM BAND

The sponsoring of a huge dance by the Duke student government organization has just been announced. This marks the first dance ever to be presented by a governing association at Duke university, and thus points to the breaking down of the last barriers against such social functions on the Duke campus.

The music for the dance will be furnished by the popular Blue Devils orchestra and "Jelly" of the University Club orchestra, reputed the finest in the south, who will engage in a "battle of music" at opposite ends of the large floor.

All couples who have paid their dues to the student government are requested to drop by the office of the association in 94 of the Union building on the fourth, fifth, and sixth of October to receive their tickets for the dance. Those who have not paid their dues will be unable to do so on the eighth and ninth of October, at which time they will receive bills for the dance.

All couples will attend the dance by invitation. The tickets are being sold by the Duke student government.

FROSH FRIENDSHIP COUNCIL GATHERS

Third Meeting Discusses Tennis Tournament, Banquet Purpose and Aims Outlined

The third meeting of the Freshman Friendship council was held at 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening, September 22. Forty members were present, the decreased attendance being accounted for by various other conflicting meetings on the campus.

Thirty minutes were devoted to the discussion of future plans and prospects. The council is planning to sponsor a tennis tournament this year among the members of the Freshman class. This event will not only portray freshman ability on the court, but will also aid the tennis coaches in picking out the first-year men for the varsity teams of the future. A committee was named to make arrangements for the tournament, which will be at an early date.

It was decided to hold the annual friendship banquet on Tuesday evening, October 6th. This event will be a great incentive for friendship among the members. One week after the banquet the formal election of officers will take place.

After the individual discussions, Warren Secchia, advisor, outlined the organization's purpose. As the name suggests, the council is for the purpose of promoting the friendships among the freshmen. It is a Freshman Y. M. C. A. with an executive board composed of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, chaplain, and newspaper editor.

COLUMBIA HOLDS OPENING MEETING

Roberson, President, Delivers Welcome Speech; Blake Talk is Feature

The first meeting of Columbia Literary Society was held in room 104, Page auditorium, on Tuesday evening.

After an address of welcome by president Paul Roberson, the program was presented. First, an impromptu speech was given by John Jenkins Davis Williams gave an amusing, but timely talk. Nelson Blake, former society president, and member of last year's debating team faced the importance of public speaking through history. He explained the fundamentals of good speaking, and showed how to develop this ability.

Errett Weatherproof, former Hesperian president and winner of the Wiley Gray medal given by Duke university for public speaking, said that public speaking should be developed solely for the personal pleasure derived from speaking.

Officers for the first semester are: President, Paul Roberson; Vice-president, Arthur Koffler; Secretary, John Poe; Treasurer, J. H. Jenkins; Marshall, Fardus Busch; and Chairman Program Committee, Ray Lundgren.

The meetings are held each Tuesday evening at 7:15 in room 104, Page auditorium. Visitors are always welcome.

ADMINISTRATION MAKES THREE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Rules Concern Seat Assignments, Absences and Rules Pertaining to Absences

Recently all sophomores, juniors and seniors have received or will receive from the office assignments for assembly and class meeting seats. Attendance at the Thursday assemblies and the class meetings on Mondays will be checked regularly beginning Thursday, September 24. If for any reason a student should not receive a seat giving his seat assignments for the following meetings, he should report to Miss Caldwell in room 108 Administration building before ten o'clock Thursday morning.

Weekly reports of absences from classes are made to the dean's office every Saturday. A student may, during the week following the week in which the absence was incurred, explain his absence. Absences will be marked unexcused if they are not explained during the week following the date the absence was incurred. Absences will not be excused before eleven o'clock in the morning.

A small number of students are apparently attending classes without having officially enrolled. It appears that a few students kept copies of their schedule cards which they made last spring and are attending classes according to the copy of the schedule which they kept and have not been officially enrolled through the dean's office. Any student who has not yet secured the official copy of his schedule from the office is not enrolled in classes and in case he has been attending classes without having been officially enrolled unexcused absences will be given in all classes attended until he has followed the regular procedure of registration.

Another Pioneering Step Taken By Law School As Legal Aid Clinic Is Opened

BRADWAY IS HEAD
To Be Aided by Competent Staff in Newest Charitable Venture

TO AID POOR IN LAWSUITS
Clinic Will Fight Causes of Those Financially Unable to Retain Lawyers

Duke university Law school has once more pioneered in the establishing of a Legal Aid Clinic wherein the poor man can receive the finest available legal advice for a price that suits his pocket book. The Legal Aid Clinic was officially opened for business on Monday, September 21, by Professor John S. Bradway, secretary of the National Association of Legal Aid organizations.

Professor Bradway, who came to the faculty from the University of Southern California, will be assisted in his work by competent attorneys who are experienced in handling the cases which will be accepted.

Tests will be given to all prospective clients to determine their absolute inability to pay a lawyer's fee as well as to look into the apparent justification of the case which the client will offer. The good work rendered by former legal aid clinics has received the hearty endorsement of the leading legal profession as a great many of the larger cities have organized legal aid clinics. The American Bar association has particularly approved the clinics' definite contribution toward giving the financially unable man the protection and equality for equal justice under the law.

Duke's clinic will be run in a corresponding manner to the clinics of former law schools, and its operations will adhere to the past records of other legal aid societies. According to a report from Professor Bradway, other law schools of the country began to establish legal aid clinics about 1913, wherein they offered opportunities for experience analogous to internships in medical education. In some cases this was done in a cooperative manner by a local legal aid bureau and an adjoining law school. Now, however, numbers of schools have set up their own organizations. At present, legal aid clinics are existing at Harvard, Cincinnati, Northwestern, Minnesota, California, and Southern California. A few southern cities such as Memphis have legal aid societies but the Duke university clinic will be the first in this section of the south.

Since 1876 legal aid work has existed in organized form and has given assistance to the poor.

SENIOR CLASS MEETS;
GREEN SPEAKS TO GROUP

Officially opening the academic year for the senior class of 1932, Dr. W. K. Green, faculty adviser of the class, spoke to the seniors on the new requirements for graduation. Dr. Green also stated that as the senior class occupies a prominent position on the campus every man should uphold the honor and dignity of his position.

Concluding his talk, Dr. Green made a plea for all seniors to cooperate in every way with the faculty. Six men from the senior class will be appointed as a committee to represent the seniors in all connections with the administration.

ally legal advice to many thousands of poor persons.

It will be the endeavor of the Duke Law School to provide third year law students, who will be permitted to observe and perform such portions of the clinic's work as may fall within their particular abilities, short of actually practicing law.

In this way the student may be able to observe the procedure and handling of each case by older and more experienced attorneys who will be able to present a practical view of law practice as differing from a theoretical view. This constant association with the best of legal advisers in performance of their profession will lend invaluable aid to the student observer.

According to the procedure of legal aid clinics, all personal injury cases where a contingent fee can be secured will be declined by the Duke clinic. Likewise, divorce cases will be accepted only under the most exceptional circumstances. Professor Bradway has pointed out that it is the experience of communities in which legal aid work is carried on that the various types of cases coming before the clinic will include such matters as the recovery of wage claims involving small sums, the giving of advice in landlord and tenant difficulties, matrimonial disputes, and the protection of women and children in various respects.

In addition to having practiced in Philadelphia and being affiliated with the Legal Aid association, Professor Bradway has taught at Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, and Southern California.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS BEGAN FUNCTIONS WITH MEETING LAST SUNDAY

The first regular meeting of the Open Forum Bible class was held last Sunday in York chapel. Both the freshmen and several from the upper classes heard Dean Herring, the class teacher. After a short devotional meeting which included several sentence prayers, the program was turned over to the speaker.

Speaking of freedom, he said that it was very well and good for the students to want freedom from all prep school restrictions provided they know how to use this freedom wisely. The problem of students owing and operating cars on the campus was discussed along this line. Although there was a fairly large attendance there to hear this discussion, the crowd was not representative of the campus. With about 2,000 here, only 80 or 90 attended the meeting. It is hoped that attendance will be larger in the future.

FACULTY ENJOYS SUMMER STUDIES

Women Professors Report Summer Spent in Interesting Research Work

Several members of the Women's college faculty spent the summer doing interesting research work in their particular fields. Miss Ruth M. Adams, head of the biology department, did research work in the horticulture division of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. She spent some time studying methods of fertilizing cranberry plants, concentrating especially on the use of ammonium salts in this connection.

This is the second year that the New Jersey experiment station has conducted research work on cranberries, the cultivation of which is one of the most important industries in the state. Miss Adams also did some interesting research work on the nutrition of young apple trees.

Miss Anna Wyche and Miss Virginia Moore, assistants in the physical education department, spent six weeks at the New York university summer school camp for physical educators. This camp is located about forty miles from New York City on Lake Sebago in the Catskills and is the best camp of its kind in the country.

Miss Wyche and Miss Moore will be teachers and leaders in their field under some of the foremost physical educators in the United States.

Director Leftwich states that several other trips with the football team are planned for the hand, and he anticipates a very successful season.

A PIPEFUL of good tobacco is distinctly a man's smoke. The women (along with they wave) have taken over most of our masculine privileges. But pipe smoking still belongs to men.

In every walk of life, you'll find that the men at the top are pipe smokers. And most college men agree that the pipe offers the rarest pleasures a man could ask of his smoking.

When you smoke a pipe, be sure you choose the tobacco that will give you the greatest enjoyment. In 42 out of 54 colleges Edgeworth is the favorite. You can buy Edgeworth wherever good tobacco is sold.

DURHAM CHURCHES RECEIVE STUDENTS

City Churches Act as Hosts to Duke Men on Hosts to Sunday

The annual "Visita-Church" Sunday, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., especially for the benefit of the students on the campus proved even more successful this year than it has been in the past.

The members of the church council of the Y. M. C. A. have secured cooperation with the pastors of nearly a dozen of the Durham churches and arranged to have cars on the campus to convey students to the churches of their choice. Cars from Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal, Lutheran and other churches were in front of the Chapel at 10:30 ready to take the first group of church-goers immediately after the adjournment of Dean Herding's Sunday School Class in York chapel.

As was expected, the number of cars for each church did not in every case take care of the exact number of students going to that church, but cars from other churches cooperated and carried the students to whatever place of worship they cared to attend. It is estimated that there were over 1,000 cars and thousands of students who took advantage of this opportunity to be carried to and from the morning church service.

The Y. M. C. A. expresses its appreciation to all church members who brought their cars, the pastors, and the students who helped to make the attempt successful.

ing to Dr. Hickman.

"Whereas, we today try to reason out God, the Hebrew people assumed God, and reasoned from Him," said the speaker, in pointing out that we should not look for God in the scientific laboratory, but should take God with us into the laboratory. "To assume God is to find him, but if we try to reason out the God we shall never find him," said Dr. Hickman.

The message brought out the fact that the idea of God in the minds of men had a definite growth as it is traced through the books of the prophets in the Old Testament and on into the New Testament, until it has its greatest revelation in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ.

It was shown that the book of Genesis was not written until after man's experience had combined in enlightening the Hebrews, and that it is not, as we assume, a primitive book. "However," said Dr. Hickman, "it would be foolish to expect to find in the book of Genesis a scientific explanation of the creation."

The university made quietest sang two numbers. "Blessed is He that keepeth his word," and "What Did He Do?" The quartet was composed of C. S. Hooper, Jr., E. K. McLeary, Jr., W. M. Updegraff, Jr., and James Danner.

Miss Norma Louise Craft, the president of the Y. W. C. A., read the scriptures chosen. Mr. William Farthing, president of the Y. M. C. A., presided over the service.

On next Sunday afternoon, the service at 4:00 o'clock, in York chapel, will be addressed by Dr. McNeil Poter, pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist church of Raleigh, who is one of the leading Baptist ministers in the south. He is very well known as a college speaker. There will also be social music.

It is also announced that, after the vesper service next Sunday, in the reception hall of the Union, on the West campus, will be held an informal tea.

attention to the activities of the law school. For the first time since its inception, the law school is publishing a Law Review in mimeographed form which has been introduced in anticipation of a regular monthly publication to be edited next fall.

In a national convention at Atlantic City, the American Bar Association re-elected Dean Justin Miller to the duty of the section of criminal law. Dr. Miller's work in this position has attracted much attention in the last year, and it is expected that this efficiency had something to do with his re-election.

Six professors have been added to the law school faculty, among them men of national prominence and importance in legal circles. They are John S. Bradley, graduate of Harvard and University of Pennsylvania law school and secretary of the National Association of Legal Aids; George B. Calverly, LL.B., S.J., of Harvard; Alexander H. Frey, graduate of Columbia and Yale law school and assistant professor on the subject of Corporations for the American Law Institute; David F. Cavers, graduate of Harvard law school; Lon L. Palmer, graduate of Stanford law school and editor of Legal Fiction; and Howard Warrumbrook, J.D., S.J.D., of the University of Michigan law school and member of the Wickersham Commission on Law Enforcement.

WADE GUEST OF HONOR AS LEGIONAIRES MEET

At a recent meeting of the American Legion chapter in Durham, Coach Wade Wade, of Duke, was the guest of honor and speaker of the evening. Eddie Cameron, Duke basketball coach, was also a guest of the Legionnaires. Wade was also a guest of the Legionnaires.

In his address, Coach Wade stressed the importance of sportsmanlike in all walks of life. His talk was an appeal to the nation's youth to combine hard work and clean living into the routine of every day life. The talk made a great impression upon those present. Coach Cameron's talk was also well received by his listeners.

ing and water polo teams during the summer. It is hoped that he will continue this performance and that the team will turn out well this year. More and more interest in these sports has been shown every year at Duke and there is probably more material out this year than ever before.

The varsity squad needs considerable bolstering in the back stroke and diving departments, but someone to fill these departments should be developed before December.
