Several years ago Florenz Ziegfeld, of "Follies" fame, lured a star away from one of Mr. Wagner's Broadway productions. It happened, as a coincidence, that this particular star was Sidney Black, a former student at the University of North Carolina. In looking for a pinch hitter, Mr. Wagner persuaded Will Rogers to take over the part. At first Rogers did not go over so well with the public, due to his custom of making too many cracks at the expense of Ziegfeld's "Follies." As soon as he took up politics and politicians as the butt for his jokes, he was well on the way to his present success.

In explaining Mary Garden's constant appearance in newspaper headlines, Mr. Wagner stated that her attempts not to be there are the largest causes for her publicity. Her hale and hearty, yet modest, bearing and ready wit with her companions have been of great

Latin-American Volumes Increase In Duke Library

J. Fred Rippy of History Department Raises Number of Diplomatic Books From Five Hundred to Fifteen Thousand

In the past six years, the Duke university library has increased the number of volumes on Latin-American history and diplomacy from a meager 500 books to at least 15,000. Many of these volumes are rare works and can be duplicated in very few collections in the United States.

The bulk of the work of securing these books has been done by Prof. J. Fred Rippy of the Duke history department. Since his arrival here from the University of Chicago, Dr. Rippy has been busy with instruction duties and with the culling of the publications of the Duke university press, but has still been able through his connections in London, Paris, Mexico City, Panama, and other large cities to procure books, of great value to those interested in research work.

Dr. Rippy has been materially aided in his work by Professor John Tate Lansing and Professor Alan K. Manchester. Dr. Lansing came to Duke after graduating from the University of California, and was soon granted an extensive tour of South American countries, subsidized by the Guggenheim Foundation. With comparatively small funds, the Duke professor was able to purchase some two thousand important volumes.

Dr. Manchester is one of Dr. Rippy's own students. He is at the present time one of the two or three Brazilian scholars in this country. Through his intimate contacts made up six years' stay

DATES ALREADY FIXED FOR PASTORS' SCHOOL

Representatives of Both State Methodist Conferences Designate Jan.
13-24; Begin Extensive Plans

Dates for the next Duke university pastors' school have already been set for June 13-24. Representatives of the two Methodist conferences in this state, composing the board of managers of the pastors' school, have begun plans for a notable term next June.

The board of managers met at Duke last week and outlined plans for the next session. Officers for the board were elected as follows: Rev. M. T. Flyler, president; Rev. E. K. McLaury, vice-president; Rev. H. G. Harding, secretary; Rev. H. M. North, treasurer; Rev. J. M. Grunard, clerk.

A group of prominent platform speakers and a strong faculty are being selected in order to supply the increasing demands on the curriculum.

In addition to the officers, already attending the board sessions here include: Rev. J. F. Kirk, Rev. Thomas Mangum, Rev. Walter West, Rev. J. C. Wooten, Rev. W. A. Stansbury, Prof. H. E. Spencer, Dr. H. L. Flowers, L. E. Giddell, Rev. E. C. Frew, and Rev. W. V. McLean.

RUTH RUSH IS SPEAKER AT Y. W. C. A. MEETING

Negro Dean Speaks at Y. W. C. A.
Meet on Race Conflict and Prejudice

Using the race problem and the part that college students may play in it as her subject, Ruth Rush, dean of the North Carolina College for Negroes, spoke to the Y. W. C. A. Monday night a week ago in a Christmas program arranged by the world fellowship interest group.

After she had pointed out the reasons for race prejudices and conflict, the speaker presented several objectives that college students might set up to help them overcome their race prejudices. It is not only necessary to make some study of the background and character of the other race, but some personal contacts must be made as well, if there is to be real understanding of the problem, she stated.

In keeping with the spirit of the program, Peggy Harrell sang a Christmas carol hymn.

B. O. S. AWARDS FOUR IN ASSEMBLY LAST WEEK

Four students were awarded gold pins by Beta Omega Sigma, sophomore fraternal order, in the Thursday morning assembly held in Page auditorium. The awards were presented by Harry Rossiter, vice-president of B. O. S., and were given for scholarship, athletic prominence, and general leadership ability. Warren Scoville and Louis Gans received $5 for their excellent scholarship record, Horner Hendrickson for athletics, and Philip Weaver for leadership. This year the awards were limited to four in contrast to last year when twelve were awarded.

In the same assembly Dean W. H. Wainman expressed the hope that no student would take advantage of the moving up of the Christmas vacation and leave the campus on either the 17th or 18th. In view of the consideration displayed by the faculty for the student body, it hardly seems fair to take advantage of the lengthened recess, he opined.

INTERCLASS SPLASHERS BOW TO FEMALE FROSH

The freshman team was victorious in the coed swimming meet held by the Women's Athletic Association of TAD on Thursday, December 10. The freshmen triumphed over the sophomores by only a four-point margin.

Juliette Abrams and Mary Alice Dewey were outstanding for the freshmen, and Mary Watkins and Mary Gould Chappell were sophomore stars.

The freshman team, making 62 points, consisted of: Dorothy Wyvell, manager; Juliette Abrams, Mary Alice Dewey, Mildred Pollock, Virginia Goldsby, and Betty Robinson.

The sophomore team, scoring 58 points, was: Lydia Banks, manager; Mary Gould Chappell, Betty Wheeler, Bernice Ross, Mary Watkins, and Mary Parkhurst. The junior-senior team made 21 points, and the members were Frances Davis and Margaret Parsons.

Confidence Building

Through storm and calm, thick and thin, good times and hard times, it's the fellow who can hold things together, and go steadily forward that you learn to trust. You have confidence in him.

The same is true of an institution. For over 40 years the Fidelity Bank has been steadily going forward during all kinds of economic conditions.

We feel that we have gained the confidence of this community. We shall continue to strive to merit that confidence.
