DOUBLE HARNESS—Ann Harding
STAGE SHOW—Duke University Glee club.
Quadrangle Pictures—Sat., Nov. 11.

Ann Harding and William Powell in a polished little picture dealing in a rather light mood with the problems of sex and life. It develops in this fashion:

(1)—Ann Harding takes up marriage as a career, selecting William Powell, a professional bachelor of charm and wealth, at a suitable subject.

(2)—Through an ingenious trick she traps her lover. Result: a quick marriage.

(3)—After the honeymoon the husband quickly loses interest and continues on his literary romantic way.

(4)—In a quick succession—Ann Harding turns playboy William Powell into a financial genius. Ann Harding's sister (an accomplice in the marriage trick) jets the cat out of the bag; the husband leaves in high dudgeon.

(5)—Of course she returns and all is as it should be.

COLLEGE COACH—Dick Powell.
STAGE SHOW—Duke Flick and his
"Flashes of Fun."
Carolina—Fri-Sat., Nov. 10-11.

WARNER BROTHERS STUDIO
Hollywood, California.
Dear Sir:

May we at this time sincerely thank you for producing one picture which the great American game of football is not pictured as being all sugar and candy (as we see in "College Coach") a football player who actually quits the game for his studies, a coach who is caught in a no-so-sweet action, and a sample of what happens as a result of turning a game into a business.

We have thoroughly enjoyed this picture and we sincerely hope that all college students will have the opportunity to see it in the near future.

Yours very sincerely,
JOS. COLLIERE.

GAMBLING SHIP—Cary Grant.
Rialto—Wed-Thurs., Nov. 8-9.

Local: a palatial gambling ship anchored off the coast of sunny California. Ingredients: gambling, love, gangsters, and racketeers in about equal portions. Love interest: Cary Grant meets Benita Hume and at once concludes that she is the right one. He determines to give up his gambling past for a life of love and romance. Now Benita Hume is really a gambler's moll all the time.

Capt. Cary Grant—as a gambling ship owner who tries to go straight. Benita Hume—as the girl in the case. Jack Le Rue—as a repellent villain with a touch of the Rover Boy complex. Glenda Farrell—as a blond in the case.

Adventure! Excitement! Romance! That sort of a picture.

CYNAB—Ronald Colman.

"Superior Tonsorial Refinement"

Because—the cast is admirably even and satisfying in its support.

Because—the story has power and interest, and succeeds in taking hold of the audience in taking hold of its audience early and holding its grip to the very last.

Because—the production has what few motion pictures ever manage to achieve: restraint.

Because—the court-room scene is a perfect example of what such a bit of action should be.

Because—it is sophisticated and adult fare produced in a superb manner.

BERKELEY SQUARE—Leslie Howard.
Carolina—Sun-Mon., Nov. 12-13.

One of the greatest plays of all time brought to the screen with as little change as possible. Leslie Howard is again in the leading role. The poetic charm of the piece still seems to cling to it in its screen form despite the difficulty of the medium.

As an example of delicacy and restraint it is in a class by itself. Frank Lloyd ("Cavalcade") has succeeded in catching all of the gentle humor and appealing pathos that made the stage version an outstanding success.

A perfect production—sensitive and provocative direction, intelligent translation from the boards to the screen, superb acting, and an all around flavor that is like nothing the screen has ever had before.

RECOMMENDED without any reservations whatsoever. This is the sort of picture that a college audience should support.

PROHIBITION SUBJECT AT LITERARY SOCIETY

The Columbia Literary society held its first debate of the year at its meeting Thursday night, November 2, in the court room of the Law building.

The subject for debate was Resolved, That it is for the best interests of the United States for the eighteenth amendment to be repealed. The negative side, upheld by Wade Marr and William Murphy, was declared winner over the affirmative side composed of Grayson Brothers and Fred Cady.

The affirmative side contended that the eighteenth amendment should be repealed since popular sentiment favors repeal, since it has increased crime, and that it has been administered with fraud and graft.

The negative side argued that the theory of prohibition is in accord with the constitution and laws, that it has been a financial success and that it has not been a total failure.

As the closing speaker, Dr. Nelson Blake, a former president of the society offered suggestions about speaking in general, with emphasis on the traits of the other speakers of the evening.

Sunday School Breakfast
The members of the Sunday school class, sponsored by the Y. W. C. A., enjoyed a breakfast on Sunday morning, November 5, at 7 o'clock back of the stadium. Following the breakfast, the regular service was conducted.

HELL AND HIGH WATER—Richard Arlen.
Paramount—Fri-Sat., Nov. 10-11.

All about what happens when a woman-hating coast-guard captain picks a non-hating woman out of the water. Romance and hate mixed in a sea story of great intensity.

ARCHIVE ADHERES TO STUDENT WORK

With Exception of Comic Page, Magazine Will Be Similar to First Issue

DISTRIBUTED ON FRIDAY

The second issue of the Chronicle for this year will show a continuation of the policy of having strictly student work in the publication. It will be distributed next Friday. In general there will be few changes in the appearance of the magazine and the nature of its contents. A new note will be found, however, in the printing of a comic page showing "what every young man should bring to college." No character sketches of outstanding students will be carried in this issue, but in its place there will be editorial comment on a prominent campus organization. Travel notes will be another feature, and the cover will be as attractive and novel as ever.

Those whose work will appear are: Len Leland Garrison, George Harwell, Amy Duke, Elmer Douglas, Ruby Fogel, Jean Mangert, William Banks Lykes (pseud.), Leslie Albion Spitzer, Sheldon Robert Hart, Nancy Hudson, David McCarrill, W. H. Long, Earle Runner, Milled Taylor, and Betty Knight.

The changes in the typographical make-up of the Chronicle which were introduced in the October issue are again in evidence. These innovations consist principally of the use of three columns of type per page instead of the two used in years prior to this, and the presentation of material in a greater variety of sizes and types of print.

The cover, which is to be in black and white, will be something unusual in the line of design. The name of the magazine will appear on a band running

MRS. BARNES IS MUSIC LECTURER

Discusses History of Opera and Oratorio in East Campus Chapel

Continuing her series of lectures on the "History of Music," Mrs. J. Foster Barnes discussed the beginning of opera and oratorio on Friday, November 3, during the chapel period. Her talk was illustrated by quotations from the Duke university rule selected from Miss Dorothy Keene.

Mrs. Barnes stated that the opera was begun in Florence at the end of the Renaissance through the efforts of a band of Florentine nobles who were known as the Castrati. The first opera was "Euridice," Mrs. Barnes said that music, drama, and interpretation were of equal importance at first.

"Claudio Monteverdi was the first genius of the opera," she continued, "he there were were always six star actors; three of each sex, all lovers. Dramatic schools of music were established in Rome, noted for its choruses, in Naples, where the art of the song was developed, and in Venice, where the instrumental side was stressed."

The oratorio was begun in Rome at the end of the sixteenth century. Its first great master, said the speaker, was Giacomo Carissimi. In Germany the dominating figure was Heinrich Schütz, and in England, Handel was outstanding. His "Messiah" is known all over the world. Bach was also noted for his religious music during this period.

ARMISTICE PROGRAM FEATURES STUDENTS

Orchestra, Glee Club, and Individual Stars Will Feature Quadrangle's Armistice Program

The superb acting of Ann Harding and William Powell in "Double Happiness," a hilarious comedy featuring Charles "Chic" Sale, and one of Walt Disney's most popular Silly Symphonies, are only a few of the attractions on Quadrangle Pictures, program for Saturday, November 11. A complete stage program will be given twice during the day; a matinee at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and another performance at 7 p.m.

The stage show will present Allen Thompson, baritone; Carlos Moseley, pianist; Peggy Becker, dancer; Jack Tannenbaum, violinist; J. Foster Barnes, baritone; Betty Tandy, tap dancer, and the Men's Glee club. The musical number will be accompanied by a 30-piece orchestra directed by Jack Tannenbaum, composed of students under the supervision of Jelly Lewicki.

Jack Tannenbaum will play "Black Eyes," as a violin solo. J. Foster Barnes, baritone, will sing "Guns." The motion picture program is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. There will be no advance in admission price.

Student Directory

The Student Directory, issued under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. along with the Duke handbook, will be out November 10. It has been delayed until that date, so as to include final room changes. The directory, edited by Pardee Bunch, with Robert Nixon as business manager, will be distributed to each individual connected with the university. This will necessitate at least 3,500 issues.

Various graduating classes have given donations to Duke university. The statue of Pallas Athena, which is in the library was given by the class of 1900, and the one of Venus de Milo by the class of 1904. The granite seat in front of Aycock was given by the class of 1907.

PAGE TO SPEAK IN RALEIGH SUNDAY

Noted Lecturer to Address Volunteer Union; Duke Students Expect to Attend

Kirby Page, internationally known author-lecturer and editor of the World Tomorrow, will deliver the principal address at the North Carolina Student Volunteer Union Fall Institute, next Sunday morning at the Pullen Baptist church in Raleigh. Mr. Page's theme is "Humanitarianism vs. the Missionary Enterprise." This is also the theme of the conference.

The Union, which will open its session on Saturday at 2:00 p.m., is crammed full of very interesting discussions, lectures, and socials. The convention will convene Sunday noon. Eighteen colleges of Eastern North Carolina will be represented, and Duke is expected to send a large delegation.

Any and all students interested in attending this revealing institute are urged to notify Pardee Bunch on Grove Phillips, immediately. Delegates will be provided with rooms for Saturday night. The three meals will be served at a very reasonable cost. Registration fee is but fifty cents. Total expense should not exceed a dollar and a half.

Casting for the mystery thriller "Ropes" an unexpected snag last week, when the medical faculty of McGill university refused to loan a corpse for one of the scenes in the production. A quest for a living corpse has begun, the requirement being that he stay in a casket two hours—preferably without breathing.

McGill

Squashing attempts to set a standard for student apparel at the University of Texas campus, Dean V. L. Moore announced recently that students might wear whatever they pleased, provided that their clothing was decent and was not intended to attract attention.

Army, Princeton, Duke, Georgia, and Michigan are the only teams east of the Mississippi which have not tasted defeat so far this season.

"Distaff Has Justified Expectations"—Patton

There is much in having a good name, and in this matter the Distaff is singularly blessed. It has a name which should bring it good luck. It has, unfortunately, it has demerits, but a demerit is behind which there lurks, I suspect, not a little impertinence. I was, then, a bit perplexed on opening the present issue to find a rather lame and apologetic note giving a bald explanation of the word—an explanation which, after all, does not explain.

The magazine is now, I believe, entering its fourth year. It was founded under adverse conditions, and it has had its difficulties which its supporters have overcome with commendable persistence. And now with faster days presumably ahead of the project, the editors are evidently thinking again of its place and purpose in the college. The answer as given on the editorial page is that while the primary purpose is literary, they are beyond that to create a new type of student opinion. A very salutary resolution, in my estimation, and one which will tend to raise the publication, substance and tangibility. I feel a certain satisfaction, therefore, in reading Miss Halena's narrative of travel, "Angels," here are the actual thoughts and experiences of a member of the Women's college, the staff of reality. Heaven knows we can't have too much form and style in the writings of any of us, but do we not all feel that the cause of college literary magazines is that they are likely to become belittled, attenuated, remote? I cannot deny there is just enough of this tendency in the present Distaff to make me wish that the writing of student views had begun in this issue, to make it more local and personal. This expression of opinion must begin with someone; why didn't the editors start it themselves?

Having said so much by way of carping, I should like to testify to the great pleasure I had in reading this Distaff. Those talented writers, Miss Duke and Miss Douglas, are again represented by stories. Miss Duke's originality is shown in her imaginative sympathy, her ability to understand her characters from the inside and I was impressed with Miss Douglas's really professional grasp of the technique of writing. An unfortunate error of Miss Taylor's, however, is that she challenges comparison with one of the most adroit artists this age has produced, the late Ring Lardner. The poetry of this issue is pleasant. I liked especially Miss Ethel White's "Happiness," she brings her thought to a point with deftness and economy. All in all, the Distaff seems to be justifying the expectations of its well-wishers.

W. A. A. PLANS FIRST FIELD MEET TO BE HELD DEC. 2

The athletic board of the Women's Athletic association met Monday evening, October 30, at eight o'clock in the Women's college gymnasium, at which plans were made for the annual fall field meet.

The field meet will be held on Hanes athletic field on Saturday, December 9. There will be events in hockey, soccer, and riding, followed by an open swimming meet.

A planned cabin party was attended by the members of the athletic board and a dozen invited guests. They left for the cabin from the East campus at eight o'clock Sunday morning. The party cooked breakfast and dinner at the cabin, starting in the late afternoon.

THE BLUE DEVILS ARE ABOUT TO RETAIN CLEAN SLATE

Devils Pass Way To 13-7 Victory Over Plainsmen

Locals Continue Winning Stride by Turning Back Auburn Attack

PASSES RESULT IN SCORES

Rossiter Passes to Rogers For Third Period Score 121 1/2 Yards Through Air

Scoring twice as a result of two spectacular passes, Duke university's Blue Devils continued their victory march Saturday by turning back a fighting Auburn eleven 13 to 7 in the final stadium before 1933 season. It was the sixth consecutive win for the locals this season.

Playing almost for the entire game without the services of its star half back, Corky Cornelius, the Duke team completed the air for its major gains, posting three out of ten passes for a total yardage of 119. Cornelius was kept out on the contest by a chafy horse and was inserted into the fray only to attempt the extra point after Cox had scored in the second quarter.

The first quarter was marred by both teams' over-zealousness which resulted in numerous off-side penalties. Early in the second quarter Rossiter got off a quick kick that was downed on the yard line by Tom Rogers. Auburn pointed out to the 39. After Cox made three yards at the line, Rossiter faked back and heaved a long pass to Hendrickson who caught it on the run on the three-yard stripe and ran it to the one before being stopped by Talley. In two plays Cox went over for the game's first score. Cornelius failed to convert the extra point, the ball hitting the uprights and falling back into the playing field.

Duke scored again early in the third period when Rossiter found a ten-yard pass to Rogers who carried the remaining 30 yards for the second score. Auburn came back quickly and scored on the most spectacular play of the day. After Duke had kicked, Cass Embury, from punt formation, tried left and behind perfect interference for 73 yards and a touchdown. After Devils had the extra point.

In the last period the Blue Devils had golden opportunities to score but were turned back by the fighting Plainsmen. After Duke received the ball on the 30-yard line on an exchange of punts, Laney

With The Blue Devils

By Duke Hissner

With the ranks of the nation's undefeated and untied teams becoming swelled every Saturday, Duke still remains in the select class. The Blue Devils will probably retain their unbeaten record against Maryland and add that that game another hard stretch confronts them. Carolina, State, and Georgia Tech, although not outstanding this season will provide plenty of opposition for the home team.

The Tar Heels and the Wolfpack will come to the Duke stadium to spill the blood of their neighborhood rival. In these traditional games the highly favored team does not always win. Then again, Georgia Tech is one of the hardiest teams in the country to beat in their own backyard.

Duke's victory over Auburn proved what a great team we have here. Playing without the services of Cornelius and Captain School, the Blue and White eleven showed the same class that spelled defeat for Tennessee and Kentucky. The backfield combination used last Saturday was not on the very eve of the game, but worked with the precision of a well-oiled machine. On the day before the game Cornelius was stricken with a painful chafy horse, and Hendrickson took his position at wingback. It was the first time the distinctive field general played this position this season, but he filled the job well.

Not enough praise can be given to "Torso" Hendrickson who proved to be the star of the game. Playing with three painful injuries—a dislocated shoulder, a broken hand, and a bad cut over his eye—he ran, blocked, and called plays in a manner creditable to any all-American quarterback. His after disregard for the injuries proved him to be one of the playing fields of the Duke stadium.

Much credit for the victory must go to the fine play of Tom Rogers who seemed to be the equal of Gump Adair, the Plainsmen's all-American end. It was Rogers who caught Rossiter's pass in the third quarter and raced 30 yards for a touchdown.

TAR HEEL-DEACON BATTLE FEATURES STATE GRID CARD

Wake Forest Invades Chapel Hill For Only Big Five Contest of Week

STATE-SOUTH CAROLINA

Contest at Columbia Decides Fate of Southern Conference Leaders

For the fourth consecutive week the North Carolina football card will feature a "Big Five" championship contest when Carolina and Wake Forest come to blows on Saturday at Chapel Hill.

Duke and State are once more boldly invading the lines of foreign opponents when they move into the camping grounds of Maryland and South Carolina respectively. Each of these contests is a southern conference tilt and will have a direct bearing on the occupancy of the foremost position of that league as both Duke and South Carolina are yet undefeated in conference play. Duke has registered but a lone victory, while the Gamecocks are credited with two defeats.

Down at Davidson, the Wildcats will come to the tide to the Citadel in their last home game of the season. The Tar Heel-Deacon contest is one of the oldest contests in the state, in fact, the first intercollegiate football game on record at Carolina, was played with Wake Forest in 1880. The boys from Chapel Hill lead the series with 22 victories, six losses and one tie, the tie occurring last year.

Both teams seem to have improved one hundred per cent since their early season contests and a terrific battle looms in the horizon.

The Deacons, having yet to score a point this season, are anxious for the Tar Heels in a manner that is providing plenty of worry to those in charge at the Hill. The problem is all the harder when one remembers the terrific battle waged by the Wake Forest boys last year when they held Carolina to a scoreless tie.

State, in clashing with the conference-leading Gamecocks, will have to be at her best. The Columbia boys have consistently been giving their opponents more worry than was welcome and have bowed before two unbeaten teams only after the most terrific struggle put up by a southern team.

In the Clary brothers, the Gamecocks have a pair of excellent backs, Earl being a consistent triple-threat man. State came out of the Carolina game in excellent physical condition and will unleash an attack that seems doomed to remove the Columbia boys from the top of the conference.

The second inter-Carolina game to be played this week at Davidson is also a traditional game. The Citadel and the Wildcats have swapped blows in a series

DUKE HARRIERS TO RUN AGAINST NAVY

Varsity Encounters Navy Today: Fresh Lose to Baby Tar Heels

Hoping to avenge last year's defeat by Navy, the Duke cross country team departed for Annapolis Tuesday morning.

The meet, which takes place at 9:30 today, should prove to be as closely contested as any on the schedule. The Blue Devils have shown constant improvement in practice since the early meets, and the engagement with Navy will be a thorough test of the strength of this year's aggregation. The team is to be commended for its progress. The boys in the V. M. I. meet, namely, Bryant, Jester, Heritage, Ford, Paist, Kline, and Herby. Although the team has shown its best form in recent practices, lack of balanced strength may prove its downfall. The fitness of the service will be another point in Navy's favor. Last year Duke lost by one point in a hard fought encounter. Both teams lost one valuable man through graduation.

Placing men in first, third, fifth, and seventh positions, the North Carolina freshmen harriers overpowered Duke's 19 to 36 here last Friday. The meet was run over a makeshift course, because the stadium was being used for football practice. Hence the exact length and time were inaccurate. More, in second place, Ferris in fourth, and Pruitt, who finished sixth, shared up with Duke. Some of the men were troubled with stiches in their sides, an ailment common among cross country runners. However, the harriers will have an opportunity to retaliate for their first defeat in the return meet scheduled for November 17 at Chapel Hill.

By scholarship Maryland lost some of her veterans, but Oak Ryd has developed a scrapping sophomore team. The line is a typical one of the school, being heavy but a bit slow. It is fed by a sterling center, Webb, who, with two strong ends, compose a well-balanced front. Assailing Wylburn in the backfield, a tugging position is Nelson, another fast, shifty man.

SCHOCK APPOINTS SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Carl Schock, president, with the assistance of the other senior class officers has selected a social committee to take care of all the social functions of the class of '34. The following men have been appointed members: Thomas Baird, chairman; Lou Ganz, Harry Rosette, Claiborne Gregory, and John Martin.

At the last class meeting Chairman Baird gave an outline of the plans for the year. The main features include a formal dance the last night before the Christmas holidays, a junior-senior series, and perhaps a senior ball to climax the social calendar of the senior class.

The social committee is working together with the junior council on plans for the first junior-senior dance to be given at Duke. The women's gym has LS been reserved for this event which will take place in the spring. At present there is a movement to secure the services of some leading dance orchestra in the country.
