... of time or place. If a man has reached a university, the highest seat of learning, and still doesn't know time or place, then he is about to be kicked out without further ado until he makes it a point to learn these things. There is a time and place for everything, even hereafter. BUT in this lounge room it will never be the time nor the place for anything except the gentlemanly conduct. This room is our reception room, and we hope it will be filled away with guests as well as students, so out-of-orderness should not be tolerated in the least.

So that the lobby and reception room can keep as it must be, a full time employee should be provided whose sole job shall be to keep the lobby and reception room in order and clean all day long, and to direct guests through the union. This is very necessary since constant care is required in any lobby which accommodates thousands of people daily. We must stop this destructive first impression that guests receive on entering our lounge.

Let's think a little farther and not sprawl all over the furniture to clothes which we would be ashamed to walk past the East Campus. Let's give the way for fixing all the union into similar guest and lounge rooms by showing our consideration for all the effort and expense that has been expended. Let's show our guests by example that Duke men are gentlemen.

GENEALITY AT DUKE IS REWARDED

(New York Star)

When Duke experienced the exquisite pleasure of knocking out North Carolina Tech, last Saturday, the university's athletic office was in a way receiving dividends for a generous coaching budget and an expression of faith in the head gridiron professor, Wallace Wade. Duke had a long time to come to the realization that the Blue Boys, renewing his contract for another five-year term, and at a time when it might have been least expected that Wade was in line for such a nice gesture.

For Wade's contract was extended right after he had dropped two games in a row, to Georgia Tech and Auburn. Wade, they say, had been getting $110,000 a year, and the report around was that the Duke was raising him to be lathered up on a long-term document the first of this month. That seems to be one way of stopping a losing streak, for in their next game the dual Dukes kicked Tennessee and then continued their Division One North Carolina, leaving them only North Carolina State to go for this season.

Carl Snavely over at Chapel Hill is on the second year of a three-year contract that the boys say is worth $60,000 a year. So it took a man getting twice as much dough to jam the clutch for Carl, when he was hoping for an undrafted season. ... Snavely is of Swiss extraction. ... He should have appealed to Geneva for the application of a constant and the most realistic aim of the wealthy study of the Dukes of Durham. ...

Or in it appears from a recent magazine study of political attitudes that Duke University has almost everything, from formal gardens and private forests to golf courses and oodles of art. It even has a statue of a man holding a cigar between his lower fingers. ... This is surprising, not only because Durham is a cigarette manufacturing town, but because the cigar in sculpture is very rare, and generally only in the old-fashioned wooden cigar store stands, looking out a bunch of decrees. ... The bronze statue of the man with the cigar, we were told, was that of the campus patron saint, James B. Duke, whose glorious endowment fund, established in 1890, has been the mainstay of Duke, from little Trinity into giant Duke, fastest to be one of all institutions in the storied Southland. ...

Duke will make a game time with Princeton, for the architectural championship of the Atlantic seaboard. ... Lacking such a Duke, the Duke has grabbed themselves an interesting and colorful Eastern foe for an early game in 1936. ... W. W. ...

TAG LETTER

Duke University is unusual in its arrangement of the Woman's college as a separate unit from that of the Men's college. The segregation has benefits, but it also has tended to isolate the minds of the students that East is East and west is not belonging to the West. I mean, class unity is lacking. There is a boys' senior class and a girls' senior class, a boys' junior class and so on. The other officers for the classes are separate, and meetings are separate, and there is little or no effort on the part of the two classes to get together at meetings, socially, or even on the class gift.

At graduation the two classes are thrown together, acting as if they had never been apart before, and they probably never have seen the whole class together. What are these two classes called, why the class of 1936, or whatever class you might be.

Consider that there is some way in which the classes could meet together socially so that they might get to know one another. Most year class meetings for the first time at graduation seems a little out of keeping with the whole idea. The present senior class is the only union lounge and recreation room, highly commendable. To Mrs. Fred Hanes, a student body officer, their sincerest thanks for her untiring work in decorating the room, and for her generous contributions of furniture and decorations.

It is now up to the students to take care of the room now that we have it. One of the first questions that arose at the opening was—What are you going to do when some guys start roughing around here? Well, first, I don't believe that there will be any such roughing in this room for Duke. But if there is rough-house in the lounge room, I would say to bounce the fellow out of it.

It is very unfortunate that hoodlums must always be counted on—these Duke boys that never grow.

I tag Alma Hall, president of the Young Women's Christian Association, to submit a tag letter for the next issue of the CHRONICLE.

Duke's Mixture

... in retrospect ...

Saturday marked the end of another football season for Duke. For the very first time in the history of the football season measured in terms of games won and lost—winning 5, losing 10. It must also be taken into consideration that the two games we lost were by the two backwash routes. ...

So that the lobby and reception room can keep as it must be, a full time employee should be provided whose sole job shall be to keep the lobby and reception room in order and clean all day long, and to direct guests through the union. This is very necessary since constant care is required in any lobby which accommodates thousands of people daily. Co-ed Ball Eclipses Social Calendar Of Thanksgiving Week

By JANE LOVE

In the nature of a prophecy, "Tomorrow night, on Thanksgiving eve, there will be a general migration from the West campus to points east, the crowd will be there for the arrival of this long-awaited event that comes twice a year, the anticipated festivity that has complete control of the atmosphere is reaching an ebullient stage. To complete the perfect picture, which the week promises to attain, the annual Varsity ball greets the calendar Friday night and Thanksgiving Day is sandwiched between the two hope.

The close-meshed Social Standards committee which is in charge of the Co-ed ball has allowed little information regarding the plans to escape. The dance will be from nine to one, and Les Brown with his hand will furnish the music.

In anticipation of the coming ball, several institutions and colleges have been announced. Kappa Sigma leads the activity with the initiation of James Little of Kappa Alpha. Roy Fleming of Wernham, N. J., and John Simmonds of Brooklyn, N. Y., Duke State P.A., after putting on another top-notch Black and White party Friday night, announced the pickings of Robert Alexander Hamilton, Jr., of Guilford, Park J., of Meyer of East Orange, N. J., has recently pledged Duke State Delta.

With the Alpha Delta Pi cabaret party Sunday at Rensselaer, the dance was a temporary break in the mounting tide of teas and attendance offices which have completed activity. The singing and action of Alpha Epsilon Phi, however, carried on last Friday night at a coffee for the pledge officers of all other societies, while the pledges of Kappa Delta entertained in a similar manner at a tea Sunday afternoon. P.D. Ma held a coffee in their chapter room Sunday night.

crushed momentum and Parker came through with flying orders as he tackled the ball under his arm and sailed it deep through State to dash 41 yards for the only score of the game. Sam "Stumpy" Gardner also kicked the extra point.

State made its strongest bid for a win in the second quarter when Ward fumbled on the Duke 46 with Curre recovering. With Berlinick, Bardeen, and Brumley hitting the Blue State picked up three yards. At this stage of the game, Hank Anderson and Les Gorbey Robinson who immediately passed to Berry for a gain of 27 yards to put the pigskin on the Duke five. The Wolfpack tried hard to push it over but the Blue Devils tied their jobs and the State advance was cut short.

State Threatens

After Berry's kick, the red-jeroged gridder started another drive. Hurdles and Robinson made it first down following which Robinson heaved a beautiful long pass to Gadd to make it first down on the Duke 38. Robinson passed to Berry, but the alert Duke safety man, Parker, intercepted the pass. On the following play, Hurdles picked up four yards through center. Robinson faded back free a pass but finding all his ball not well covered by the Duke's second level and reached the Duke free yard line where he was brought to the ground by Jack Himmelfarb. Hurdles and Rybinski hit the line but failed to make any gains. Duke broke up Robinson's next two heaves as the ball came to an end with Duke in possession of the ball.

Saturday's game brought to a close college grid careers of eight Duke players: Jack Himmelfarb, Jack Alexander, Gus Diermer, Ed West, Captain Jim Johnston, Jim Bell, Jack McAnish, and Jack Ward.

Note Dame's Gamblers, whose rallies are fast becoming a sad habit for their opponents, turned the trick again to come from behind and topple the Trojans of Southern California. The air was filled with punts as both teams took to the aerial route to pave the way for all but one of the afternoon's touchdowns.

Anders and Duke took the Southern conference honors for the day as the Paladins had another one of its good days and made easy work of Georgia, 19-0, while the Blue Devils took the Southern conference crown by virtue of a 41-yard run by Clarence Parker for the day's only score in a 1-0 victory over North Carolina State.
