

THE BLUE DEVILS

WITH THE BLUE DEVILS

By FRANK MATTHEY, Sports Editor

AFTER A FEW MONTHS OF hot discussion on the part of football fans all over the country, the official rules committee, meeting in Asheville, N.C., last week, did little to change the game, and the great full play will look just about the same from the stands as it has in the last two seasons. Kicking a ball ball will give the ball to the opposing team on the point of foot, and a kick-off going out of bounds will be given to the receiving team either at the point the ball went over the sideline, or on the 35 yard line. The latter change will be more noticeable than the former and will probably restrict the present practice of some teams of kicking off from the side of the field. As the rule stood before, it allowed the team kicking the ball to kick off over on one side of the gridiron and proceed quite effective at times as a method of not only breaking up the receiving team's blocking, but keeping the ball away from the spin-off-man.

There's Nothing Like A Good Argument

HOWEVER, THE MOST debated rule of mass intercollegiate football, remains unaltered, except that a supplementary note was added which clearly restricts the officials that the defending team was added much light to the ball as the receiver, and any "badly contact, however severe, between players are making a loose ball attempt to catch or bat the ball shall not be construed as interference." Thus, fans must spend another season arguing over alleged violations. But suppose that the fans have to have something in their about the spectators, however, should any team wish to take the identity of its backfield men from its opponents it can merely have the jersey which the team the same color and make them so small that they can't be seen.

SPEAKING OF HIDING IDENTITY, Pop Warner outlawed everyone of the last two years when Temple took the Duke's back on pass plays as they were no identifying numbers on their jerseys. With a Temple's reputation was thought of it, but after the first play a Michigan back arose from the play to find himself marked with a large charcoal cross on chest. Before five minutes had passed, every Michigan State player was distinctly marked, and the job of spotting them was considerably easier for Temple. Although the officials stopped the game and went down for the clock, it was never found, being safely tucked up inside the player's sleeve. Which all goes to prove that if you don't want to be marked, men, don't wear white shirts, but then if you wear dark, there's always chalk. You can't win!

Duke Promises Two Major Events for the Devil Fans

THE WEEKEND PROMISES two major events for the Devil fans as the homecoming matches tonight with Carolina and the Duke-State hardwood battle tomorrow evening. The latter, after having the court event with Washington and Lee by dint of Bob Spenser's second half-coming options, should be in the right frame of mind to turn back the Tar Heels. Should Duke be able to stop both Carolina and State in its own court, it would have the Devil "even-up" with the other three major opponents when the conference begins rolls around on March 3. It would mean that the Blue and White had split with Washington and Lee, Carolina, and State, and should be seated an even chance on a neutral floor with the other three squads for the title. State brings its splendid court, Coach Mack Berry, and stellar guard Captain Dalyrymple, to face the Devils. The Tar Heels took two wins over Duke last season, but we look to the home five to come through tomorrow evening.

THE CONFERENCE TOURNEY in Raleigh, Durham, will probably find these same four teams seeded in the top four places, which means that if they all come through their first rounds as expected, the semi-final and final rounds will be a battle of the top four. The Tar Heels have never before had four such evenly matched outfits being carried together, and it should be a side-scaner race. However, a "dark horse" may always be counted on to upset the odds on the track, and just what will make up the other four teams is as yet quite indefinite. The events last year bear out this contention. Carolina, conceded little chance to stop Washington and Lee last year, but the Tar Heels, led by the Blue Devils in regular season play, proved much too powerful for the Catamounts in the second round. The games in the next week will reveal a lot more information on the competitive strength and final selections of the top entries.

Duke Baseball Prospects Dimmed For This Season

Greatest Lack of Experienced Material in Several Years Reported; No New Prospects Expected to Step Into Shoes of Lost and Wounded Veterans

There was a general trekking over to Carolina last week-end for one reason or another. Some people went to see the basketball game Friday night, others to see the German club dances and away to the rhythms of Tommy Dorsey.

Things were not so quiet here. The fight with North Carolina last Saturday attracted many people, and the return of the fifty-five Sunday afternoon caused an anxious moment for many a Friday night.

On the other hand, many were interested in the entertainment for visiting officials furnished by the state of North Carolina, and rounded out a full week-end.

NEW FRATERNITY EXALTING CHRIST ORGANIZED HERE

Some more of a regular college club set-up with the expressed purpose of carrying out its general objective. At the present moment several committees composed of the charter members are planning an initiation ritual, a constitution, and program for the year.

The first official function of the fraternity will be held on March 4, at a luncheon. It is scheduled in honor of Dr. Frederick B. Fisher, who will be on the campus for "regional" purposes.

The general objective of the organization is, first of all, to make it plain publicly that there is an association of students who are not material students who want to put Christ first in their lives. To carry this through, this group wants to try to live for Christ in any campus organization to which they may belong. They feel that a student can put Christ first and still mingle with their fellow students without any loss of social life.

They realize that this attitude is nothing new, but they believe that a new and vital attempt to follow this line in a local situation is needed. This effort requires an organized approach.

Hood Rules Again. This is a very good humor which, although not very subtle, is often on grounds of success and success.

In the sport department King Wade comes forth with "Again They Play With Blocks," which is a very interesting analysis of intercollegiate basketball.

Other Departments

Offer departments include "Pop Quiz," "Editor's Easy Chair," "The Current Events," "Commentary on the campus political situation by Duke's own R.D.T., etc. and Gerry Griffin's authentic explanation of style trends.

The jokes which are scattered throughout the longer features are actually funny and a large number of them are even original. The staff contributors several extremely good cartoons: those of John Camby, Walt Frank Moore, and Betty Earle being particularly outstanding. The cover design by Joe Prevett is extremely well done.

BALLET STAR

Tom Murray, Duke Graduate, Starts Career As Announcer On Staff Of Radio Station W.D.N.C.

By Ben Reuss

"You are listening to W.D.N.C. in the city of Durham, North Carolina."

At least thirty-five times daily these words are broadcast by the local radio station in identifying itself to many thousands of listeners.

To many Duke students this timorous sentence has taken on a more familiar tone during the last two months as it has been frequently uttered by Tom Murray, for four years an undergraduate here and now a regular announcer for the radio station which has its studios at the Washington Hotel. Those who knew Tom well during his undergraduate days remember him as being one who was enthusiastic in all things that he did, enthusiasm has gone with him, out to radio in radio, to an announcer must always be "on the spot" or he will be put "on the spot" in radio.

As a student here Tom was a member of B.O.S., intramural manager for three years, and a member of the now extinct Trident club. He was also president of Phi Kappa Sigma, being one of those who did much toward the founding of this fraternity, which grew out of a merger of Phi Epsilon Phi and Sigma Alpha Omicron and received national recognition during the past semester.

Upon completing his college work early this month, Tom Kappa Sigma became a "freshman" in the radio business, and fellow workers down W.D.N.C. say that he has the qualifications necessary for becoming a success in the broadcasting business. If enthusiasm and interest in work means anything, we predict that Tom will not be so prominent a figure in radio as he was in college.

Ernie Orsatti, former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder who retired to the private sector of a brother-in-law's agency in Hollywood a year or two ago, is contemplating a comeback with the St. Louis Browns.

Letty Gano, Yachter, pitcher, is pretty sure about the large pay package tendered him this year by Colonel Huggert. If Gano says it was not a cut but an annihilation.

Tom Murray, Duke Graduate, Starts Career As Announcer On Staff Of Radio Station W.D.N.C.

By Ben Reuss

"You are listening to W.D.N.C. in the city of Durham, North Carolina."

At least thirty-five times daily these words are broadcast by the local radio station in identifying itself to many thousands of listeners.

To many Duke students this timorous sentence has taken on a more familiar tone during the last two months as it has been frequently uttered by Tom Murray, for four years an undergraduate here and now a regular announcer for the radio station which has its studios at the Washington Hotel. Those who knew Tom well during his undergraduate days remember him as being one who was enthusiastic in all things that he did, enthusiasm has gone with him, out to radio in radio, to an announcer must always be "on the spot" or he will be put "on the spot" in radio.

As a student here Tom was a member of B.O.S., intramural manager for three years, and a member of the now extinct Trident club. He was also president of Phi Kappa Sigma, being one of those who did much toward the founding of this fraternity, which grew out of a merger of Phi Epsilon Phi and Sigma Alpha Omicron and received national recognition during the past semester.

Upon completing his college work early this month, Tom Kappa Sigma became a "freshman" in the radio business, and fellow workers down W.D.N.C. say that he has the qualifications necessary for becoming a success in the broadcasting business. If enthusiasm and interest in work means anything, we predict that Tom will not be so prominent a figure in radio as he was in college.
