NSA Conference Talks Stress World Alertness

By ARNIE KOHN
Chronicle News Editor

Students from the Carolinas-Virginia region of the National Student Association heard three national officials of USNSA emphasize active student awareness and participation in international affairs this week end.

Al Lowenstein, past president of USNSA and a former president of the student body of the University of North Carolina, keynoted the conference with a speech discussing the role of the campus president in creating an interest in international events.

Curtis Gans, national affairs vice-president of NSA and a former editor of the Daily Tar Heel, discussed the emphasis of education and the educational climate compared to the social climate. Isabel Marcus, international affairs vice-president of NSA, spoke on the dangers of allowing only tourists and businessmen to represent the United States abroad.

LOWENSTEIN

Lowenstein stated that it was the duty of the student body president to stimulate interest on campus in world affairs, particularly in the problems of students throughout the rest of the world.

"The fate of the country depends now as never before," he said, "on getting [students] to know things they now ignore." He defined campus leadership as "helping to provide stimulus and guideposts to help people decide what they want to become of their education."

Lowenstein further emphasized the menace of international communism to the safety and freedom of the United States. He characterized Nikita Khrushchev as "the most effective living politician in a major power." In seven years he has transformed Russia from "an enigma wrapped in a mystery," to the beacon for most of the non-white population of the world.

"Russia represents much more nearly the aspirations of most of the people in the world," he said. This is not fair to the United States, but it is true just the same, he implied.

The United States has half the world's wealth and only six per cent of the world's population, Lowenstein added. But "we must not sit back and think God intended it so. We are the hope for saving humanity from Communist strangulation."

Gans pointed out the fact that foreigners get an impression of America "spouting ideals," but refusing to back them concretely. He pointed to the Hungarian revolt of 1956 as a prime example.

Gans was concerned over the state of education in the United States. He felt that people were not getting a decent education. The emphasis in our educational system is on getting a degree, and nothing beyond that, he stated.

Miss Marcus explained that tourists and businessmen who go abroad are giving a one-sided picture of the United States. This picture, she asserted, is not a healthy one, and it is the task of students to clarify it. Students in troubled areas of the world need moral support and an expression of world public opinion in their favor.

Exchange students can help in this area, she stated, and are doing so in fact now. But she pointed to Latin America as an area in which large companies and few tourists have given the United States a very bad and undeserved name.

Folk Songs of Pete Seeger To Echo in Page December 3

BANJO BALLADEER—Pete Seeger, nationally famous folk singer, will come to Page Auditorium Thursday, December 3, under the sponsorship of the Student Union music and arts committee. Seeger is known for his intimate, neighborly style.

Artist To Appear As Special Bonus

Pete Seeger, folk singer and entertainer, will perform in Page Auditorium Thursday, December 3.

The forty-year-old Seeger, who helped form the Weavers in 1949, remained with them until 1952. A year after he joined the Weavers, the song "Goodnight, Irene" brought national fame to the vocal group.

Downbeat magazine described him as a "sort of reincarnated troubadour who has the genius to make us laugh or cry." He and his wife now are embarking on a two-year study project which delves into folk music's instrumental techniques.

Some of the songs for which he is noted are "Shenandoah," "Pick a Bale of Cotton," and "I Know an Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly."

"Seeger," according to Downbeat, "represents a resurgence of basic qualities associated with true folk song—the neighborliness, the old-fashioned community sing, the active sharing by his audience of his songs and moods."

His talent for communicating music to large audiences was discovered during World War II, when he sang for troops. After the war, he joined the Almanacs, a folk singing group. They traveled across the country and made several recordings. Then came the Weavers and national prominence.

The concert is a Christmas bonus from the Student Union music and arts committee. Chairman of the program is Paige Halsey. No admission will be charged.

Hank Johnson Writes Prize Script For Hoof 'n' Horn Spring Musical

Hoof 'n' Horn has selected And If Elected, a musical comedy by Hank Johnson, for their annual production Joe College Week End.

"It's the best script we've had since I've been here," said Warner Scott, Hoof 'n' Horn president. "It's a fairly subtle script that should do justice to an intelligent college audience. For once we're not having a take-off on the University."

Johnson, who is a junior and a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, received a prize of $100 for his script.

The plot centers around a 1960 political convention at which a senator seeking nomination asks a crime-fighting, author's support. Hoodlums, seeing the author and senator scheming, enlighten their boss (who supposedly had been deported, but wasn't.) The boss sends his moll to convince the author not to help the senator. In the process the moll falls in love with the author, and the plot really becomes confused.

"Somehow everything manages to work itself out in about the last 90 seconds of the final scene," explained Scott.

Directing the show will be Gary Tummore; the producer is Marion Berry. Rick Vance is the musical director, and Ginger Tullis and George Clover fill the positions of stage and business managers, respectively.

"There will be a meeting for prospective song-writers and set-designers before Thanksgiving, and scripts will be handed out then," stated Scott.

Vote on Ugliest Man Begins Wednesday

Votes for the ZBT-sponsored ugly man contest will be cast Wednesday in the East Campus Union and Thursday at the West Campus bus stop between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Listed by number to protect the unfortunate, the candidates represent fifteen fraternities.

The winner will receive a plaque at half-time of the Wake Forest game, when the two runners-up will also be announced.

The contest is a parody on the frequent beauty competitions, chairman Tom Menaker said.

Lambda Chi, Tri-Delt Cop Sing Awards

Lambda Chi Alpha and Delta Delta Delta came away with the top honors in last night's Interfraternity-Sorority Sing.

Lambda Chi, who triumphed for the second straight year, and the Tri-Delts both sang in foreign languages to accentuate their performances.

Phi Kappa Sigma and Kappa Kappa Gamma were the runners-up with Alpha Tau Omega and Kappa Delta rounding out the three selections. Eight fraternities and 11 sororities participated.

"Americans Abroad" was Lambda Chi's winning theme. The highlight of their performance was "The Song of Youth," a Ukrainian folk song in Russian.

The Tri-Delts, telling "The Story of Nations in Folk Music" sang five selections in French, English, Norwegian and Hebrew.

At Meeting Here

Interim Council Begins SSL Plans

Representatives from nine North Carolina colleges formed an interim council here yesterday to plan a meeting of the State Student Legislature in Raleigh next spring.

Last year the SSL failed to meet due to a snow storm which blocked all roads into Raleigh. In an attempt to schedule the meeting this year, students from the state participating in the regional National Student Association conference convened to set up the interim council.

Presiding over the meeting was MSCA president Warren Wickersham. Three co-chairmen to lead initial planning were chosen by the council. The three—Ed Knox, Phil Carlton and Joel Ray—are students at North Carolina State College. All the records of the past interim council are filed at N. C. State.

The next session of the interim council is scheduled for December 6 at Chapel Hill. Each participating college will send two representatives to this meeting.

It All Depends

The sponsoring of the regional meeting of the NSA this past week end was, in general, a meaningful contribution by the student government associations here. We think the conference succeeded in two important aspects, both of which will ultimately depend upon what the delegates do when they return to their respective schools.

Regardless of the success, or failure, of the conference to produce specific programs for member schools, the concern of the NSA leaders for penetrating the parochialism of the campus with an awareness of international happenings was, we think, contagious. Unless the delegates were more stolid than they appeared, their subsequent activities on their own campuses will be improved by the international emphasis of Lowenstein, Gans, and Miss Marcus.

Whatever the conclusions of its workshop on human relations, the entire conference was itself a convincing laboratory of interracial cooperation. It largely avoided the pitfall of valuing participation by Negroes, not because they are human beings, but because they are Negroes, an ever-present danger for liberal organizations and the one unfavorable impression we received in our single previous contact with NSA. At this regional conference, no one brandished a brown skin as if it were a red badge of courage, and Negro delegates were not patronizingly cherished as display pieces. Relations were for the most part natural and unstilted. Again, the effect upon the member schools must be indirectly brought about by the future actions of their delegates.

Discussion was at times rambling and purposeless, delegates at times exhorted things about which they knew little and cared less, and concrete proposals were, not unexpectedly, few; but MSGA AND WSGA may be proud of having hosted the regional conference.

Take 'Em Up on It

Of all the money that undergraduates dispense here, from none do they get a better deal than from the ten dollars that goes from each general fee to the Athletic Association. This fee, which includes physical education equipment as well as admission to athletic events, is as low as any such fee in the country; yet for the Wake Forest game, the Athletic Association is experimenting with a still more generous offer to students.

The Association, at the request of the Senate, is selling guest tickets for dates at the almost token price of one dollar, which to us is a great deal more palatable than gleaning $4.50 for an out-of-town date's ticket, and less embarrassing than sending her through the high school gate.

This arrangement, it should be pointed out, is strictly an experiment; and unless there is sufficient response, guest tickets for dates will soar back to the $4.50 bracket. While the men of West may stop short of abandoning Hanes and East for imports in their zeal to cooperate, the one-dollar date tickets decidedly eliminate the need either to borrow or to lend student books for the game.

Restraint and the Court

Anyone who has picked up a paper in the last months has been very much aware of the steel strike, even if he has not felt its effects directly, and the facts, in that they are known at all, are known by all who have read a news magazine, glanced at the Times, or listened to a decent serves only to perpetuate ignorance of the content and attitude of the high Court. Ah, politics!

The Court, you will remember, was asked to render an opinion on three questions: 1) Is there a national emergency? Does there exist a danger to the "national health or safety?" 2) Are the emergency provisions as provided for in section 208 of the T-H Act constitutional? (This is settled by the nature of the decision itself.) and 3) What was the intent of Congress in ratifying these provisions?

In the opening two paragraphs of the majority opinion, the Court manages to reprimand both parties in the injunction dispute for cluttering up the case with news-cast. And, for the person who is able to stand back and view the whole mess objectively, the progress of the strike and all its implications is interesting and even satistically amusing.

There has been much to interest the close observer: the attitudes of labor and management, the coverage in the press indicating the increase in public awareness and the change in direction of the public sympathy, and the change in the attitude of the national administration from "hands off, democracy at work" to "sick and tired" to actually putting the Taft-Hartley emergency provisions to work.

Things of interest are to be noted in the text of the Supreme Court decision upholding the injunction, but these are not likely to be brought out in the local papers. In a way, this deletion serves the purposes of the states rights brand of Court hater, but in another way, it

Little Symphony Orchestra Gives Concert With Three Soloists Wednesday on East

The Little Symphony, a 48-piece orchestra composed of selected members of the University Symphony Orchestra and other local musicians, will present a concert Wednesday night in Woman's College Auditorium.

Featuring three members of the University music faculty as soloists, the program will begin at 8:15 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Professor Allan H. Bone, Little Symphony conductor, will be clarinet soloist for an arrangement of Concerto for Clarinet and Strings by Handel.

Tenor John K. Hanks will sing four songs by Samuel Barber based on poetic texts. Alice Wilkinson, pianist, will be featured in Ernest Bloch's Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra and Piano Obligato. She will also solo in Prelude and Fugue by the same composer.

Other numbers to be included on the program are Ballet Suite, Gretry; Suite Number 2 for small orchestra, Igor Stravinsky; Ralph Vaughan Williams' Pastorale on "Greensleeves"; and Little Suite from Comedy on the Bridge, Bohuslav Martinu.

The University department of aesthetics, art and music and the American Federation of Musicians are jointly sponsoring the concert.

Will Redmond, president of the Men's Glee Club, acted as emcee for the program.

Accident on Myrtle Drive Causes Minor Loss

An accident on Myrtle Drive at 7 yesterday evening involving two University students resulted in slight damage to both cars and no injuries to any of the passengers, Durham police reported.

Rodney Jack Roth was driving his 1954 Ford along Myrtle Drive and attempted to make a left turn onto Anderson Street. A 1955 Chevrolet driven by Robert C. Milne tried to pass Roth as he made his turn.

The left front of Milne's vehicle struck the right rear of the Ford. Damages to Milne's car were estimated by the police at $150, while Roth sustained damages of $50. Roth had one passenger in his car. No charges will be filed by the police.

irrelevant arguments, i.e., "issues of national labor policy, the availability of other remedies to the executive, the effect of a labor injunction on the collective bargaining process, consideration of the conduct of the parties to the labor dispute in their negotiations, and conjecture as to the course of those negotiations in the future." Then it goes on to say that, for the reasons listed in the opinion of the lower court, a danger to the national safety does exist, but it refuses to resolve the question as to the definition of "national health," and here lies a tale.

The Court has been accused of and damned for precedent shattering, and has, especially in the past few years, earned the hate of various interest groups (guess which ones and where they are located) for what they term its mania for power. Yet, for a Court that has "passed up no opportunity" to increase its own power and the power of the federal government, this refusal to "pass on" the definition of "public health" seems incongruous. It is made to seem even more odd by the fact that the lower courts were perfectly willing to speak to the problem of definition and, indeed, had agreed with the government's contention that the phrase must be broadly construed.

Somewhere, someone is mixed up. Perhaps it is the Court. Even more perhaps, it is a certain group of senators.

Waters Announces Card

Imp Cage Schedule Features Outstanding Service Squads

By JOE BOWLES
Chronicle Sports Editor

A sixteen-game freshman basketball schedule was announced this morning by Blue Imp cage coach Bucky Waters. The schedule, which includes games with such outstanding service teams as Fort Bragg, Fort Gordon and Norfolk Navy, features three-game series with all other Big Four freshman clubs.

"I feel that this is a very tough freshman schedule," commented Waters. "The service teams will be composed of professional and ex-college players, while we play three of the finest freshman squads in the country in Wake Forest, N. C. State and Carolina."

Currently holding down the top position for the Blue Imps are center Scott Williamson, guards Arthur Heyman and Steve Cupps, and forward Bucky Pope. Battling for the other forward position are Dave Day and Fred Cox.

The Blue Imps open the season December 1 against Wilmington Junior College as a preliminary for the varsity encounter with Georgia Tech. The game is being billed as a duel

Varsity, Frosh Harriers Run Today In Carolina Championship Marathon

"This is the one we've been waiting for," asserted cross-country coach Al Buehler. "The boys have been working all year for it, and I'm confident that they'll get it."

Buehler was referring to the North Carolina State Championships, which were held this afternoon in Raleigh on State's course.

"Approximately 75 men will be running in each division, varsity and freshman," explained Buehler.

"Of course, we expect Jerry (Nourse) and Cary (Weisiger) to be right up top. They've both done fine jobs this season; any coach would be proud to have them."

But our primary concern is trying to get at least three others up there within a reasonable distance of them at the finish. I'm also looking for the freshmen to do a good job. They've had a good year, and there's no reason why they can't continue in that tradition."

Clemson Defeats Devils, 6-0

Tough Line Allows Single Tiger Score

It was another of those "near and yet so far" afternoons for the Blue Devils against the Clemson Tigers in Clemson Memorial Stadium Saturday.

The Tigers came away with a hard-earned 6-0 triumph in the confines of Pappy Howard's "Death Valley." But the Dukes had given them its right down to the wire in the ACC contest which entrenched the Palmetto boys in the number one spot in the league.

The Dukes played an inspired game on defense. The Devils were able to stop the Tigers on all but one occasion and that time Captain Mike McGee and two other Devils were rushing the passer extremely hard.

The Clemson winning score resulted from a perfect pass from second-unit quarterback Lowndes Shingler to end Ed Bost after the Tigers had recovered a Devil miscue at the 45 and advanced to the 34.

Joel Arrington almost did it again Saturday. Early in the second quarter, he appeared to be trapped for a five-yard loss when he spun out of the grips of two or three Tigers and then bulled his way through several others before being stopped for a 10 yard gain.

In the fourth period, Joel almost dashed all the way when he got 31 yards around right end to set up the first bid by the Dukes. The Tigers were just barely able to pin him in against the sidelines to prevent their goal from being crossed.

WILSON GAINS YARDAGE—Jack Wilson breaks into the clear momentarily in Saturday's game with Clemson, but is hauled down from behind by an unidentified Tiger.

Imps Top Cavaliers; Futrell Scores Once

The Blue Imp football squad preserved its undefeated record Friday, sloshing to a 7-0 victory on the mud-splattered field of the UVA Cavalier freshmen at Charlottesville.

"They are the best team that we have met so far," declared coach Bob Cox. "Although I feel that we could have done better on a dry field, I was very satisfied with the play of the boys."

The lone touchdown of the dreary afternoon was scored by Imp halfback Bill Futrell early in the third quarter. Futrell scampered eleven yards for the score after the baby Blue Devils had recovered a Cavalier fumble on the UVA 30.

The Imps next encounter the Deaclets of Wake Forest Friday afternoon in Winston-Salem.

Persons Issues Call For More Swimmers

"We are in desperate need of swimmers who can compete in the new 200-yard individual medley event," stated swimming Coach Jack Persons yesterday.

"The event was just added by the NCAA this year, and we do not have enough good swimmers to fill this spot," declared Persons. "Anyone interested in swimming for the Devilfish should contact me immediately."
