Over 290 of Rushees Go Into Quiet Period As Greek Shake-Ups

More than 290 of the four hundred and fifty C-average freshmen had shaken-up with fraternities as ten hectic days of formal rush drew to a close yesterday afternoon at 5 p.m.

Freshmen will receive their bids by mail tomorrow morning and must return them to the Faculty Lounge in the Union Building between 1 and 4:30 tomorrow afternoon, stated Jim Barton, Interfraternity Council vice-president.

A $3 fee must be paid with each bid accepted, said Barton. An individual can only accept one bid.

Last year 290 freshmen returned bids to fraternities. Each fraternity can send out a maximum of thirty bids.

Quiet period ends tomorrow at 5 p.m. and at that time fraternities will be able to associate with freshmen who did not make C-averages this past semester. No fraternity men may contact freshmen until 5 p.m. tomorrow. Rushing of non-C freshmen before 5 tomorrow afternoon is a major violation of IFC rules.

The IFC already has limited Beta Theta Pi's pledge class to fourteen members for a rushing violation last semester. Pi Kappa Alpha was restricted from rushing this year by an Administrative penalty.

Office Petitions Due

Petitions for WSGA, YWCA and WRA offices are due in 108 East Duke Building by 5 p.m. Wednesday, WSGA vice-president Ohlyne Blackard said yesterday.

Seven WSGA positions are open. Only four YWCA offices will be filled by election; others are appointed positions. WYCA officers will be elected March 7 and WSGA and WRA officers March 8.

Loyalty Fund Batters Last Year's Record, Marshall Reports to Area Drive Chairmen

The University's current Loyalty Fund campaign was the topic of discussion at a meeting yesterday of 120 area campaign chairman from the Carolinas and Virginia.

"The drive is running 15 per cent ahead of last year," Roger L. Marshall, alumni secretary stated. "We hope to reach $350,000 by commencement, with a greater participation of alumni than last year."

Last year 42 per cent or 12,000 alumni gave $307,000 to the fund. This was more alumni participation than any other major educational institution, Marshall noted.

The campaign chairman reviewed the progress and results of the campaign which began February 12, and also planned the concluding phases of the drive.

Dr. William R. Pitts of Charlotte, chairman of the University National Council, presided at the luncheon session in the Old Trinity Room.

Speakers at the luncheon include Richard E. Thigpen, chairman of the Loyalty Fund Advisory Committee; Edwin L. Jones, Jr., from the executive committee of the National Council; and W. Allen Tyree, coordinator and field secretary of the fund.

AFTER ELEVEN YEARS—Dr. A. Hollis Edens resigned Friday as the University's third President. During his 11 year term of office the University launched its first large-scale building program. Edens feels that the University will continue to move forward despite an Administration change.

Senate Resolution Favors Removal of Loyalty Oath

The Senate last night voted its disapproval of both the affidavit and loyalty oath provisions of the National Defense Education Act, 10 to 0 with one abstention.

The resolution stated that the provisions are not consistent with the freedom of academic thought that it is designed to promote. They act as a barrier to students "who resent the requirement, who find it inconsistent with their ideals, who are over-apprehensive in their interpretation, who are conscientiously opposed to test oaths, and who believe that there should be freedom of thought and freedom of belief."

The provisions are "distasteful, humiliating, and unworkable" for university administrations, who must fill "the unprecedented role of administering test oaths for the federal government," the resolution said. It continued that they also wrongly "single out students" for suspicion in demanding that they account specifically for their beliefs.

Although the provisions seem to be designed to combat subversives, they "will not prevent a subversive agent from receiving federal funds," since such a person would not hesitate to sign. In passing the resolution favoring the removal of the provisions, the Senate expressed its agreement with President A. Whitney Griswold of Yale, that the positive form of loyalty "can only be won by the powerful attraction of unarmed truth implicit in the educational process."

The group will participate in four committee sessions during the conference. These include "disarmament," "discrimination in Southwest Africa," "revision of the UN charter," and "the refugee program in the Mid-East."

West Becomes Russia at Model UN

The West Campus delegation to the model United Nations assembly will represent the Soviet Union, said delegation chairman Fanis Pantazis yesterday.

The model UN will be held in Chapel Hill this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The delegation will also present a resolution urging disarmament to the assembly. "We will try to recreate and use the reasoning of the USSR throughout the conference," Pantazis said.

Members of the delegation, selected after interviews last week, include Byron Battle, Sandy Levinson, Dave Holt, Tom Pearson, Pantazis, Dolph Adams, Hamid Kizilbash and Jerry Wilkinson. Alternates and observers are invited to participate in the three-day conference, Pantazis said.

The group will participate in four committee sessions during the conference. These include "disarmament," "discrimination in Southwest Africa," "revision of the UN charter," and "the refugee program in the Mid-East."

President Gives Resignation Friday Committee To Nominate Successor

By BOB WINDELER
Chronicle News Editor

The University will continue to move forward despite a change in Administration, asserted Dr. A. Hollis Edens last night in commenting on his resignation as University president.

"I don't believe in the indispensable man theory, and a University doesn't change overnight because of one decision. A University is too powerful and its principles too firmly set to be deviated from its course by a change of Administration," Edens said.

Edens' resignation, announced Friday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Undergraduate Faculty, will be formally submitted to the Board of Trustees March 23, and will become final when a successor is chosen and takes office. The Trustees were informed of the decision last Tuesday by a letter from Edens which asked that the decision be considered final.

Board of Trustees chairman Norman A. Cocke has appointed Trustee P. Huber Hanes, Jr. of Winston-Salem to head a committee to appoint the President's successor. Hanes said yesterday that the committee would meet sometime this week but that it wouldn't have a decision "for a long time."

Edens gave as his principal reason for retiring "that the next ten years in the life of this University are going to demand vigorous promotion and management on the part of an administrative leader who can be expected to remain at the helm over the entire period of development. Therefore, I believe you (should) select as soon as possible a new president whose normal tenure will extend over a longer period of time than I would wish for mine."

Edens said he was sorry that the students had been the last to know of his decision: "I hope the students will accept this at its face value and know that the University is not going to change direction nor is my enthusiasm for the University lagging."

He cited the Long Range Plan instituted in 1958 as one of the highlights of his eleven-year term as President. Edens came here from the University of Georgia system in 1949.

Whitaker To Resign For Florida Position During Mid-Summer

Frances M. Whitaker, assistant dean of undergraduate women for the Woman's College, has resigned to accept the position of dean of women at Florida Presbyterian College in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Her resignation will become effective in mid-summer, when she will assume her new position. The newly established Florida Presbyterian College will begin operations in September of this year.

Dean Whitaker came to the University in 1946 as house counselor to Brown House. She moved up through various administrative positions to her present office.

Her present duties include supervising the Woman's College Housing Bureau, serving as adviser to the treasurers of campus organizations and being in charge of student employment.

Mrs. Whitaker graduated from Winthrop College and holds an M.A. from Teachers College, Columbia University.

Before coming to the University, she was a history teacher at Central High School in Charlotte.

Ogburn To Succeed Heckroth As Chairman of FAC on East

Jean Ogburn will head the Freshman Advisory Council on East Campus next year.

Miss Ogburn was chosen Friday under a joint recommendation of this year's FAC, an administrative representative, FAC chairman Judy Heckroth, and Dean Huckabee. She will be installed in April along with WSGA officers to be elected March 8.

A rising senior, Miss Ogburn was a freshman advisor in Jarvis this year. She has also participated in the glee club and in the chapel choir and was a member of Sandals, leadership honorary for sophomore women.

OGBURN

Miss Ogburn plans to begin a three or four-week training program for next year's FACs in April. No date has yet been set for the selection of the freshman advisors from each house on East.

According to Miss Heckroth, the usual duties of an FAC chairman also include taking part in any evaluations concerning the Woman's College freshmen and heading the orientation program for East Campus, as well as working in general with the FAC advising during the year.

Central Tension

Earlier this year in a speech at Agnes Scott, President Edens told his audience that he had often felt that when an administrator admonished a student to be responsible, the administrator really meant, "don't criticize, don't rock the boat."

The administrator of a university, particularly a status seeking, middle-aged one, values its security and wants nothing to interfere with its advance. He and his colleagues are much more comfortable when things are stabilized, when all the weight is low and centered, when no one rocks the boat.

The creation of a great university is a notable achievement, but a great university, an institution which is dedicated to the search for truth, cannot advance if it does not face its own realities and honestly face the truths of its own existence. It must rise above its own embarrassments. If it cannot do this, it cannot rise at all.

With this in mind, we face a decision which requires us either to state the actualities of President Edens' resignation or to perpetuate an illusion and preserve appearances. We choose to state the issue.

President Edens' statement to the press which appeared in Saturday morning's Durham Herald was an accurate one. The statement issued by the unnamed University Trustee was also accurate. And, though it is admittedly difficult to accept under the circumstances, Chairman Cocke's statement was probably accurate also.

Edens is resigning to make way for "an administrative leader who can be expected to remain at the helm over the entire period of (long range) development"—a leader who is capable of "vigorous promotion and management."

At the same time, there are tensions within the Administration. Indeed, it would seem odd if there weren't tensions in a time of planning and change. In conjunction with this latter statement there are assertions on the part of knowledgeable faculty members that Edens considered handing in his resignation last year and that several weeks ago he was offered the position of University Chancellor. As this latter position does not exist and as it can be created only by action of the Board of Trustees, it is somewhat hard to believe that the Trustees had no inkling of the pending decision.

Since the President's decision to resign was announced to the faculty on Friday, speculation as to the real reason for his resignation has run rampant. ("For every argument there is a good reason—and the real reason.") Rather than allow this speculation to lead into raucous rumor, it is best to state what the basis of the "tension" referred to by the unnamed Trustee is.

There is a conflict of personalities coexisting with a conflict, not in matters of basic policy, but in concepts of forcefulness or action—a difference in the concept of what is required of the leader of the University. There is the feeling among one member of the Administration and some of the faculty that Edens lacked forcefulness. We stand on the fact that this conflict does exist and that this conflict played a part in Dr. Edens' decision.

How large a part in his decision this conflict played is a matter of conjecture. No one can really know. We can only say that we feel it played a large part. To paraphrase from a biography of Wilson which is applicable here: He retired from the arena of university politics to the relative quiet of national politics.

Committees

It has been brought to our attention that though we spent a great deal of space explaining the functions of the Executive Committee of the University in last Wednesday's issue of the Chronicle, we failed to list the names of the members of this Committee. We list them now. In addition we list the names and addresses of the members of the committee which will search out a new President for the University.

Probst--Painter, Personality

Paintings and drawings by Joachim Probst, a New York artist, were shown to the University public for the first time last night. The exhibition opened in the inadequate Alumni Lounge and will endure under those conditions until it is moved to the Morehead Planetarium Gallery in Chapel Hill on March 5. Despite the poor facilities, credit must be given to Art Brandenburg and others of the Methodist Student Center which was the major force at work in bringing the show to the University.

SELF-TAUGHT

Forty-six-year-old painter Probst has claimed to be self-taught. In as far as he has not studied painting under the direction of any institution the claim is true, and one is happy to find good art outside the frequently sterile family of academic artists. What one finds even more pleasing is Probst's abstinence from the slap-dash subjectivism of second-rate but popular abstract expressionism. In a time when most painters are cramming the galleries with complete abstractionism, or working in the reaction of stark realism as Edward Hopper does, Probst has made an effective compromise which blends unblushing self-revelation and abstraction with the best techniques of the good realists. The result is a powerful type of symbolism which is best illustrated by his many daring and probing paintings of Christ or of characters from Moby Dick.

SINGLE IMAGE

Detail and narrative are in most instances non-existent, leaving the entire canvas focused on the unity of a single image. The interest is in the spiritual drama implied by light, color, texture, and form. Such singular concentration on great figures of Christianity and literature has proved to be the fatal acid test for many would-be greats. At his best, in paintings like "Christ in Thorns" and "Ahab," Probst's success is admirable. The observer's eye is carefully led into the painting of the canvas. The audience enters into the work emotionally rather than "looking at a nice picture."

CRITICAL FAVOR

While Probst's technique is modern and often distinctly original, the way he designs many of his paintings to focus on the single image mirrors his professed master Rembrandt van Rijn thus undermining, but not significantly, his claim of being self-taught. He reserves his own critical favor for only a brushful of past and present painters, among whom are El Greco, Blake, van Gogh, Cezanne, and de Kooning. Although conforming to the role of misanthrope and mystic by being a man of deep meditation and few words, he will say enough in one of his infrequent conversations to permit the careful listener a glimpse into his personal philosophy. He largely follows Blake and Baudelaire in emphasizing the irrational, spiritual element of great art. Like Blake, he has said "All great artists are in league with the Devil," and "I paint because I doubt." His latest major work in oil, "Flowers of Evil," captures the spirit of Baudelaire with more than its title.

It would be easy to go on talking about the man himself, his possible affectations and his profound seriousness, but they are not important when one may view his work directly, for after all the paintings are his final statements on all the subjects. Grave statements they are, transcending the individual, yet taking their life from his life.

THREE WHO PASSED IN THE NIGHT

Last year, as everyone knows, 1,210,614 undergraduates dropped out of college. 256,080 flunked; 309,856 got married; 375,621 ran out of money; and 309,254 found jobs. As you have, of course, observed, this accounts for only 1,210,611 out of 1,210,614. What happened to the other three?

Well sir, to find the answer, I recently completed a tour of American campuses where I interviewed 40 million students and sold several subscriptions to The Open Road for Boys, and it pleases me to report that I can now account for those three elusive undergraduates.

The first was an LSU junior named Fred Gaugin. He was extremely popular, always ready with a smile, fond of folk dancing and pralines, and last semester his Chi Psi brothers unanimously elected him treasurer of the fraternity. This proved an error. Gaugin, alas, promptly absconded with the money and went to Tahiti to paint. The fraternity is bending every effort to extradite Gaugin, but Tahiti, alas, is currently observing the feast of Dipthong, the Sun-God, a five-year ceremony during which all the islanders wear masks, so nobody, alas, can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

Nobody can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

The second missing undergraduate is William Cullen Sigafoos, Oregon State freshman, who went one day last fall to a reputable vendor named A. M. Sashweight to buy a pack of Marlboros. Mr. Sashweight did not have any Marlboros because Marlboros are only sold by reputable vendors. However, he told Sigafoos that he had another brand which was just as good, and Sigafoos, being but an innocent freshman, believed him.

Well sir, you and I know there is no other brand as good as Marlboros. That fine filter, that flavorful flavor, that pleasure, that joy, that fulfillment—are Marlboro's and Marlboro's alone. All of this was quickly apparent to young Sigafoos and he flew into a terrible rage. "As good as Marlboros indeed!" he shrieked, kicking his roommate furiously. "I am going right back to that mendacious Mr. Sashweight and give him a thrashing he won't soon forget!" With that he seized his lacrosse bat and rushed out.

Mr. Sashweight heard him coming and started running. Now Mr. Sashweight, before he became a disreputable vendor, had taken numerous prizes as a cross-country runner, and he thought he would soon outdistance young Sigafoos. But he reckoned without Sigafoos's stick-to-itiveness. At last report the two of them had passed Cleveland. When they reach the Atlantic Seaboard, bad Mr. Sashweight will get his lumps from Sigafoos, you may be sure, and I, for one, am glad.

The third missing undergraduate, also named Sigafoos, is a Bennington sophomore named Celeste Sigafoos and, ironically, she never intended to leave college at all. She was merely going home for Christmas on the Natchez, Mobile, and Boise Railroad, and during the night, alas, her upper berth slammed shut on her. Being a Bennington girl, she naturally did not wish to make an unseemly outcry, so she just kept silent. The next morning, alas, the railroad went bankrupt, and Miss Sigafoos today is lying forgotten on a siding near Valparaiso, Indiana. Fortunately she has plenty of Marlboros with her.

The department of aesthetics, art and music will present a concert of recent works by Dr. William Klenz, professor of music here, tomorrow night at 8:15 in the Music Room of East Duke Building.

The String Quartet of the University of North Carolina and the Madrigal Singers will assist members of the music faculty in performing the selections.

Participants will be Loren Withers, pianist; John Hanks, tenor;

Players To Present Reading in Branson

Duke Players will present a reading of Under Milkwood, Dylan Thomas's last work, Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:15 in Branson Hall.

The cast, composed of Bob Bannard, Rosalind Candlin, Susan Griswold, Lola Powers, Gary Schenk and Larry Werner, will perform under the direction of Earl McCarroll, who will also narrate the play.

Each member of the cast will portray several characters in the play, McCarroll noted.

The play describes the events of a single day in a small Welsh coastal town. It has played off-Broadway and received favorable reviews from the Saturday Review and the New York Times.

There will be no admission charge for the production.

Rankin Nomination On Committee Slate

The Judiciary Committee of the U.S. Senate will consider President Eisenhower's nomination of Dr. Robert S. Rankin to the Civil Rights Commission "when it gets around to it," Rankin said yesterday.

Presently a consultant with the Commission, Rankin is to replace John S. Battle, ex-governor of Virginia. Rankin, head of the political science department here, will remain with the University. Since the Commission meets only once a month, "I have no intention of giving up teaching," he asserted.

Five commissioners head the Civil Rights Commission which is composed of a staff of between 65 and 70. Staff members investigate claims by citizens in all parts of the country concerning violations of civil rights.

The content of the exhibition seems to have an air of anachronism in Duke's pseudo-Gothic atmosphere and it merits more than the attention of just those interested in religious art, but the dominant quality and nature of the work makes it an especially attractive asset for a campus which is allegedly devoted to Christian education.

SU Board of Governors To Conduct Interviews

The Student Union Board of Governors will hold interviews tomorrow and Wednesday nights from 7-10 in 201 Flowers Building.

Rising seniors having a year's experience in the Student Union are eligible. Those interested should fill out an application in 202-A Flowers by 5 p.m. tomorrow, said board member Jerry Brammer.

Probst Exhibit To Continue Till March 5

An exhibition of the work of artist Joachim Probst began today in the alumni lounge and will continue through March 5 under the sponsorship of the Methodist Student Fellowship.

An American artist, Probst has concentrated on the theme "Christ and the Crucifixion" for the past 20 years of his career.

A private showing was held last night for several hundred people from the Chapel Hill, Raleigh, Durham area. Host Arthur Brandenburg, chaplain to the Methodist students, was assisted by David Greer of the Collectors' Gallery in New York.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

Dr. Frood, Ph.D.

Dear Dr. Frood: Would you please explain Einstein's theory of relativity in simple terms.

Physics Major

Dear Physics: Gladly. It is a theory. It is about relativity. It was thought up by a man named Einstein.

Dear Dr. Frood: I wear button-down shirts. I wear grey flannel trousers. I wear fine tweed jackets. I wear British-made shoes. I wear thin striped ties. But still I have no friends. Why?

Friendless

Dear Friendless: Your ties must be a trifle too thin.

Dear Dr. Frood: My sociology Professor says parents should be held responsible for juvenile delinquency. Do you agree?

Soc. Major

Dear Soc: Only if they are very young.

OBFUSCATED ENGLISH PROF. FAILS TO FOOL FROOD

(see below)

Dear Dr. Frood: Very soon the major corporations will be scouting the colleges for capable seniors. They'll be offering fabulous salaries, big titles, golden opportunities. Whom should I work for to guarantee myself a secure future and top income?

Capable

Dear Capable: Dad.

Dear Dr. Frood: Recently I saw this slogan for Lucky Strike: "Remember how great cigarettes used to taste? Luckies still do." I wonder if the Lucky Strike people realize there is a most serious obfuscation here. The modifier is awkward. Does "great" modify "taste"? Or does "great" modify "cigarettes"?

English Professor

Dear English: You can answer that one yourself. Simply put a match to a Lucky Strike and puff.

Dear Dr. Frood: For many months I have worked nights in the lab, developing the formula that I am convinced will make possible the perfect crime. It is a deadly poison that works externally, rather than internally. To test my formula, I have placed a large amount of the poison on this letter that you are now holding in your hands. Sorry it had to be you, old man.

Wolfgang

Dear Wolfgang: My secretary received your letter. Now that there is no one to care for them, I'm sending you her 14 cats.

Devils, Cavaliers in Rematch

Kistler Shines, but Blue Dukes Lose To Hot-Shooting Deacon Five 83-64

By HENRY GOLDBERG

Vic Bubas' Blue Devils travel to Charlottesville tonight where they will meet the lowly Cavaliers of Virginia.

Virginia, currently holding up the rest of the league from the cellar position, suffered a 74-61 licking at the hands of the Naval Academy Saturday.

Led by Doug Kistler and Carroll Youngkin, the Devils coasted to an easy 78-66 win over UVA last Tuesday, but hit the skids and lost to Maryland, 71-61, and were soundly thrashed by Wake Forest, 83-64, in Saturday's regionally-televized contest.

Both fives were hot from the floor, but the Dukes were not hitting the charity line. The Deacs controlled the backboards at critical times mainly through the efforts of Dave Budd, Len Chapell and Jerry Steele.

Balding George Ritchie was the most valuable player on the floor. The Deacon backcourt ace accumulated 27 points including key buckets at the outset of the second half when Wake led by only four points.

Budd and Chapell added 18 and 16 points respectively for Wake Forest while Doug Kistler paced the Blue Devils with 22.

Trailing by 14 points after ten minutes of the first half had elapsed, the Devils caught fire with Howard Hurt, Fred Kast and Kistler playing inspired ball. They scored 16 points within two minutes and managed to tie the score at 32, but Ritchie countered with a field goal and two free throws for a 36-32 Deacon edge at halftime.

The loss was the Dukes' ninth against eleven wins and the conference mark stands at 6-6. Wake Forest by virtue of their win moved into the ACC lead as South Carolina whipped UNC 85-81 in Charlotte.

Varsity Grapplers Face Carolina Matmen Today

The Blue Devil wrestling squad travelled to Chapel Hill this afternoon to meet UNC in a match rescheduled after being cancelled during the snow of February 13.

The charges of Coach Carmen Falcone, now sporting a 2-4 mark, hope to upset the favored Tar Heels. The Devils registered an easy 23-15 victory over State Friday in the Indoor Stadium.

Intramural Playoffs To Begin Wednesday

Intramural basketball action for the regular season draws to a close following tonight's games but the playoffs are scheduled to begin Wednesday night, according to assistant intramural manager Marty Brueggemann.

The playoffs, which will decide this year's intramural champions, will be fought between the leaders in each division plus the runners-up in the first two divisions.

The leaders and their records in the respective divisions are as follows: Division I, Snowbirds 8-0; Division II, Kappa Sigma 8-0; Division III, Phi Delta (B) 6-1; Division IV, Sigma Chi (C) 7-0; Division V, Pi Kappa Alpha (B) 8-0; Division VI, Delta Tau Delta (C) 7-0; Division VII, Phi Delta (D) 7-0; Division VIII, Sigma Chi (F) 7-0; Division IX, KA (E) 6-0; Division X, House V (A) 8-0; Division XI, House K (A) 7-0; Division XII, House G (D) 4-0.

Brueggemann rates the Snowbirds as favorites in the playoffs, a position unique for an independent team. The Snowbirds combined a balanced scoring attack with their average height of six feet four inches to win the favorite role, downing the KA's, last year's champions, 28-21.

Following the KA game the Snowbirds preceded to win over the Betas by forfeit and to dispose of the Sigma Chis 70-37, the SAE's 64-49, and the Law school team 51-31. The KA team which finished second behind the Snowbirds also is figured to be strong in the playoffs.

FROM THE CORNER—Doug Kistler has been the high scorer in two of the last three contests. Kistler had 22 against Wake Forest.

Steve Smith Sets Two Records in 62-32 Defeat

Despite two ACC records set by Steve Smith, the Blue Devilfish were swamped by Maryland at College Park Saturday, 62-32.

Smith set records in the 50-yard freestyle (.22.8) and the 100-yard freestyle (.50.9) to preserve his undefeated record. The loss leaves the swimmers with a 5-5 record for the year.

Weisiger Cops National AAU 1000-Yard Run Championship

Cary Weisiger Saturday became the first Blue Devil trackman to win a national championship since 1954 as he copped the National AAU Championship in the 1000-yard run.

Weisiger recorded a time of 2:12.3, four seconds off the world record in that event. His victory over the second-place finisher was the big news. Cary topped Penn State's Ed Moran, one of the top distance runners in the country today. Moran has the run the mile in 4:01.

"I took the lead the quarter mile," said Weisiger, and held it until the curve at the backstretch when he (Moran) passed me.

"He must have tired, because I came abreast of him going around the last corner and had enough kick left to beat him by about two yards."

Weisiger's time is all the more impressive when it is revealed that he ran in the third of three qualifying heats for the final event less than an hour before the race got under way.

"We are all very proud of Cary," asserted Coach Al Buehler. "He worked hard for the race and deserved to win."

Footballers Finally Open Spring Drills

Delayed by snow and wet grounds, the Blue Devil football squad finally began spring drills Friday and Saturday of last week.

The Dukes will continue workouts Tuesday through Saturday until March 19. Scrimmages between the Blues and the Whites will feature most Saturday action.

Currently leading the Whites is quarterback Don Altman, while Walt Rappold is guiding the Blue squad.

"Much of our success will be determined by how our sophomores come through," asserted Coach Murray.
